12 ST. CHARLES AIDS OUSTED IN SLAYING PROBE

Move for Indictment of Accused Killers.

Rodney H. Brandon, state director of public welfare, announced yesterday that 12 employés of the St. Charles school for boys have been discharged after an investigation into the fatal beating Wednesday of a young inmate by two employés of the school. The two accused of the beating are being held in the Kane county jail on charges of murder.

William T. Harmon.

School officials refused to make known the names of those dismissed. It was said several resigned before the dismissal order was issued.

Plan Temporary Replacement.

The state director said their places will be filled temporarily from civil service lists until a plan for employing university graduates, specially trained for the work, has been completed. This plan, under which graduates who have specialized in sociology would head the school's disciplinary, cottages, has been suggested by Gov. Dwight H. Green.

The record of every employé at the school is being investigated and, in addition, Brandon said, every employé of the welfare department is being finger printed by the state bureau of criminal investigation under the direction of T. P. Sullivan, head of the bureau and also the state police department.

William T. Harmon, superintendent of the school, said 228 employés, nearly all of whom are civil service workers, are on the pay roll at the institution. He said that with few exceptions, however, all have been hired in the last six or seven years.

Inquest Set for Tuesday.

State's Attorney Charles G. Seidel of Kane county said he will go before Circuit Judge Charles D. Page in Geneva tomorrow and ask him to recall the February grand jury to hear evidence in the fatal beating. He also asked L. Victor Peterson, Kane county coroner, to hold the inquest Tuesday morning.

The victim of the beating was James Williams, 16 years old, colored, of 1260 Jefferson street. He was committed to the school in January, 1940, for auto theft and had been sent to the school's disciplinary cottage for the theft of a bottle of ink. Other inmates said he was beaten when he complained of being ill while working on a coal pile.

The two employés held on murder charges are Robert Adams, 33, of Lanark, Carroll county, and William Laird, 27, of Elgin. Adams had been employed at the state hospital at Manteno and left without notice during the typhoid epidemic. A. L. Bowen, former director of the welfare department, characterized his departure as cowardly and ordered that he never be rehired by the department.

Chief Discloses Record.

Police Chief A. J. Weiscz of Lanark reported that Adams had been arrested several times for drunken driving and beating policemen. He was fined last October for assaulting a Lanark policeman while drunk, Chief Weiscz said.

Adams' appointment to the St. Charles school was recommended by W. R. Sherlock, Carroll county Democratic chairman. Sherlock, whose home is in Savanna, said the recommendation was made in the regular course of political procedure and at the request of the Lanark Democratic committeemen.

He said he did not know of Adams' record at Manteno or his record of arrests for drunkenness. He said he knew Adams' father, George Adams, a Lanark real estate dealer who died recently, but knew young Adams only slightly. Sherlock said the Lanark Democratic committeemen are Paul Harmon and Maynard Lindsay.

Laird was put on the pay roll last December, soon after John Stelle became governor.

Five colored clergymen in Chicago yesterday sent a telegram to Gov. Green asking him to investigate the beating. They called the slaying a blot on the state's penal history.

FREIGHT TIEUP ORDERED AFTER RAID BY BRITISH

Service to Southern Ports Stopped.

Significant Straws

Indications of big developments in Italy or the Mediterranean were seen last night in two dispatches received from the Associated Press.

From Rome came word that the only American consulates south of Rome were being closed at the request of the Italian government. They are at Naples, west coast port, and Palermo, Sicily. Foreign residents already have been expelled from the zones, which have been designated war areas, and Italy has forbidden all foreigners, including diplomats, to travel without special permission.

A dispatch from Berne, Switzerland, said Italy had suspended postal communications with Switzerland. The action followed unofficial closing of the Italian-Swiss frontier on Feb. 6.

ROME, Feb. 15 (AP).—Italy halted freight traffic on several southern Italian rail lines today while all Fascist Black Shirt formations in the zone south of Naples hunted down British parachute dynamiters who are intent, authorities said, on disrupting communications.

The communications ministry announced that, owing to "the present transportation situation," freight could not be accepted on lines connecting several stations in Naples to Taranto, the naval base; Foggia, important railway center near the Adriatic coast; Brindisi and Bari, on the coast, and Lecce, near the coast.

The high command yesterday said an undisclosed number of "chutists had been captured before carrying out the important damage to communications and waterworks they had intended." Others were reported today to have been chased and caught by the Black Shirts.

Treated As Usual Prisoners.

There still was no official word on how many of the expedition had been captured. Last night, the Rome radio mentioned 19 specifically.

Military sources said that the regular military uniforms which the parachutists wore would save them from the fate of spies. They will be treated as regular prisoners of war, it was said.

The newspaper Il Tevere told Italians that "dropping a few clusters" of parachutists did not constitute a real military danger.

Damage Done, British Suggest.

LONDON, Feb. 15 (AP).—The government today confirmed official Italian reports that British parachute troops had landed in southern Italy on a mission of destruction, and suggested that some had carried out the job and escaped.

The ministry of information said: "Soldiers dressed in recognized military uniforms have recently been dropped by parachute in southern Italy.

"Their instructions were to demolish certain objectives connected with the ports in that area.

"No statement can be made at present about the result of the operation, but some of the men have not returned to their base."

Accounts Generally Agree.

The official British and Italian accounts varied only in this detail: The Italians attributed to the parachutists the specific assignment of damaging waterworks and communications, while the British attributed to them a broader task.

It was noted here that the Italians did not directly deny that damage had been done.

[The British fortified island of Malta, in the Mediterranean, appeared the most likely possibility.]

The gulf of Taranto area in which the chutists descended has many harbors. It is wild and thinly populated and offers places where the Britons might hide until they could reach the coast for rescue by sea or air.

NAZIS EXTEND YOUTH GROUPS

Order All Children Over 10 to Join.

BY ALEX SMALL.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Feb. 15.—New regulations for making this totalitarian nation more so thru control of children and young people were announced today.

Within a few days, all children from the age of 10 years will have to enter either the Hitler Youth, for boys, or the Society of German Girls. For each child a specification will be made as to his fitness for the service. Older boys and girls, who until now have not served in these organizations, will be checked and their cases considered.

To Be Career Basis.

The new regulations mean to set a basis for the life career of each German, which is that no man or woman will have a place in the community without doing early service in the youth organizations. The only acceptable excuse for failure to do this service will be ill health. Service, however, may be postponed for certain reasons, among them being farm work or a job in a key industry.

For no reason but health may a 10 year old child be excluded from the national organizations. The official view is that every child may be educated to become a useful member of the community.

Face Severe Punishment.

But after 14 years of age, exclusion from the Hitler Youth organizations may be ordered for various reasons. This is the age when the child passes out of the group called "little people." Such exclusion may be suspension or permanent expulsion, and will be taken only after special procedure to guarantee the full rights of the accused. Such exclusion will amount to virtual civil death and is practically the heaviest punishment which can be inflicted on any individual.

Unless an expelled person can gain restitution of his rights he will be condemned like the Russian who has his passport and worker's card taken away from him. He will be, in fact, an outlaw, unable to claim the title of "volks genosser," meaning that he is a normal citizen and in possession of ordinary civic rights.

Spring! And Soldiers March Again Amid Old Battlefields

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Pleasant Hill, Tenn., Feb. 15.—From Stone river to this upland of pasture and pines there is definite evidence of the coming of spring. Under the moaning of the winds thru the pines and the whispering of the dead leaves in the forest, there is a hush, an expectancy. The ancient miracle of life in new form is about to repeat itself.

"It's greening up," the farmers say as they hitch up the team to plow the garden. The hens follow the rich black furrows.

Planes Drone Overhead.

The sky is blue and there is a drone of airplanes. Five planes in army formation appear on the horizon. It is a passing cloud in the thoughts of men.

The first testimony of spring was found in the fields back of Andrew Jackson's old home, the Hermitage, just outside of Nashville. Dandelions were growing there. And near the spring where Old Hickory drank, the edges of a little stream were deep green in grass and watercress.

Along the river there are other evidences, not certain and flaunting as yet, but timid and coy.

Meadow Lark Is Heard.

Insect life is still torpid. The birds are flitting about in fence rows and cedar copses and at last the song of a meadow lark is heard. This is an event like the coming of the herald angels. It floats above the broad meadow of the old Stone river battleground, above the muted cannon as their ancient muzzles point skyward some 30 miles south of Nashville.

This is a sweet and orderly place now, with the Stars and Stripes floating high above it. But once it was a cloud of war in a black hurricane of death. Once there were other people here—prehistoric races of whose wars nothing is known. Then came the pioneers who cleared the wilderness road and sent the Indians to another springtime in the land of the great spirit.

A Great Battle.

Another hundred years and the union army of the Cumberland and the confederate rebels met here as the springtime of 1863 was hesitating over the hills. Thirteen thousand boys of the north went to their death here, as did 12,000 sons of the south. Bragg and Rosecrans fought here for three days, the union guns beyond the river finally settling the issue.

Now along the Nashville pike new troops are passing. Ohio, Michigan, Illinois go into camp again on southern soil, facing a new cloud that gathers over this beauty.

Their Predecessors Rest.

The ranks of that other springtime sleep peacefully now, row upon row, under drooping cedars.

"On fame's eternal camping ground,
Their silent tents are spread,
And glory guards with solemn round
The bivouac of the dead."

Names, in some cases merely initials and numbers, mark the weathered stones. There are unknown soldiers here also, not in the glory of Arlington, but, in the greater glory of eternal spring.

On sheltered slopes, along the crooked fence rails, in dooryards, there is a stir and push of life. In the churchhouse yard the yellow golden-bell is already blooming. There is a flash of bluebird wings and the tentative song of a cardinal.

Another spring and more signs of war. The boys march away to camp, northern boys down here, Tennessee boys to Georgia. The government takes over miles of mountain land for a rifle range. The warplanes rise above the old Murfreesboro battleground, in a peaceful sky.

The boys go to town and register for the draft as in Lincoln's day. Voices come over the air, voices from Washington and England, from the churches and the universities.

His 8 Sons Register.

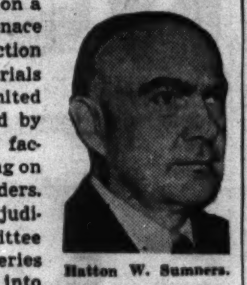
One farmer down the valley had eight sons to register for the draft. He is against war on principle, and said he would rather see his boys dead at the farm gate than to have them go to war. Others have volunteered. The preachers are "all tore up" over the war, as one farmer expressed it.

And as the war talk hums thru the towns and villages the wind sighs thru the ancient pines. They have looked on many springs. And the wind in their branches is a song that blends with the sound of warplanes passing over the valley.

Strike Inquiry by House Set for Tomorrow

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 15.—After weeks of delay, congress has focused its attention on a growing menace to the production of war materials in the United States caused by strikes in factories working on defense orders. The house judiciary committee will open a series of hearings into the defense labor situation Monday with Assistant Attorney General Thurman Arnold as its first witness.



Hatton W. Sumners.

The decision to conduct the investigation was announced by Chairman Hatton W. Sumners [D., Tex.] after the committee had held many executive sessions at which members discussed the mounting danger of a major tie-up in defense industries.

Eleven Factories Closed.

Sumners said the quiz would cover defense strikes and charges that a number of unions have required exorbitant initiation fees from new workers on defense projects.

As of today, labor disputes have caused more than 24,000 employés to stop work at 11 plants in which government orders totaling 110 million dollars were being carried out. Steel, automotive, electrical, and heavy machinery industries have been affected as well as factories manufacturing aviation materials and parts needed by the army and navy.

Seek Union Advantage.

Representative Clare E. Hoffman [R., Mich.] charged that the strikes called by the C. I. O. were started deliberately by the communists in line with their well known and much tried tactics of stirring up strife in times of national emergency.

"The C. I. O. and its communist backers have seen their opportunity," he said. "They are attempting to sabotage the national defense and, at the same time, strengthen their organization. The judiciary committee should inquire into the communistic connections of those C. I. O. unions which have called out workers on defense orders."

MATE ACCUSES MARION TALLEY OF 8 ROMANCES

Los Angeles, Cal., Feb. 15 [Special].—An eighth man—a married Los Angeles physician—was injected today into the bitter legal controversy between Marion Talley, former opera singer, and her estranged husband, Adolph C. Eckstrom, voice teacher.

The doctor, unnamed, was added to the seven men including radio and screen stars, with whom the singer already has been accused by her husband of "committing improper acts."

Eckstrom's accusation was included in an affidavit filed in support of a motion to strike from the Superior court record charges of the singer that he had sought to blackmail her out of $150,000. Miss Talley contended that Eckstrom attempted to extort money from her by threatening her with charges that she was friendly with various men.

Eckstrom is seeking custody of their daughter, Susan, 5 years old, on charges that his wife is an "improper" person to take care of the girl.

DR. FRANK C. JORDAN, ASTRONOMER, AND HIS WIFE KILLED BY FIRE

Pittsburgh, Pa., Feb. 15 (AP).—Dr. Frank C. Jordan, 75 year old nationally known astronomer and director of Allegheny observatory at the University of Pittsburgh, and his wife, Harriet, 72, died in a fire in their home tonight.

Dr. Jordan was burned to death apparently while fighting flames that broke out from a gas furnace. Mrs. Jordan, confined to bed by illness, struggled to a window as smoke poured into the room, opened it and collapsed over the sill. A passerby called firemen.

Dr. Jordan was a member of the university faculty since 1908. He became director of the observatory in 1930. A native of Cordova, Ill., he studied at Marietta [O.] college and the University of Chicago. He taught astronomy and mathematics at Marietta college, at Portland, Ore., High school, and Colorado Springs, Colo,

GROUP PICKED BY GOVERNOR TO DRAFT PROGRAM

Calls for Revision of Entire System.

BY PARKE BROWN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., Feb. 15. — Gov. Dwight H. Green today announced his adoption of the biggest program of tax reform and governmental systemization ever undertaken in Illinois.

He appointed an advisory committee of 23 men and women, many of whom are veterans and experts in the field in which they are to serve. He said that the committee will call a state-wide conference to be held in Springfield on March 6.

Wants Report by April.

The conference will create committees on special subjects and he hopes that a definite program of suggestions for legislation will be submitted to him by April 1.

Observers believe that one of the determining factors leading up to this plan is the problem of taking the sales tax off food, which was repeatedly discussed during the campaign. Many lawyers hold that such a step cannot be taken without an amendment to the state constitution. That amendment would involve revision of the revenue article, a proposal that has been defeated repeatedly heretofore because it would open the way for a state income tax.

Summary of Purposes.

An announcement of Green's plan summarized the purposes he has in mind as follows:

1. State-wide uniformity in the assessment of general property taxes.
2. Investigation of at least the six major taxing bodies in Cook county, seeking the elimination of inequalities, duplications, and conflicts. [Those six are the city of Chicago, Cook county, the Chicago Sanitary district, the Chicago Park district, the Chicago Board of Education, and the Cook county forest preserve.]
3. Preadjudication of all tax levies.
4. Definition of the powers of the state tax commission.
5. Resetting dates of general property assessment to permit more efficient operation.
6. Increasing the powers of the state tax commission over corporations operation on a state-wide basis.

Division of Authority.

7. Elimination of the division of authority between the state tax commission and county assessors in the taxation of capital stock.
8. Establishment of scientific methods in the taxation of all classes of property.
9. Equalization of personal property assessments and tax collections.
10. Relief for real estate from local taxation.
11. Supervision of local governments by the state tax commission in the form of budgeting, uniform accounting, and statistical reporting.
12. Compulsory budgeting by all taxing bodies.
13. Periodical auditing of the affairs of all taxing bodies.
14. Uniform accounting by all local governments.
15. Reduction of tax delinquency by stricter administrative procedure, better bookkeeping, mandatory foreclosures, and improvement in the legal status of tax titles.

Statement of Governor.

Gov. Green's statement follows:

"My purpose in asking the committee to serve and to call the general tax conference, with the later naming of committees to go into every separate phase, is to devise practical ways and means of achieving the maximum of effectiveness and equalization in tax collections and effectiveness of economy in the operation of state and local governments in Illinois. In this way we may be able to secure the greatest return in useful public service for every tax dollar expended.

"The conference should include both state and local tax problems, because they are so closely related. As regards the local tax program, it will be strictly on the basis that we are trying to provide local government with more efficient and economical methods than that there is any desire to interfere with any of the functions which local government should determine for itself.

"With the growing demands and needs in the national defense program it became imperative that state and local governments coöperate in every way so as to make all possible reductions in costs.

"The tax conference, rather than conflicting with the worthy purposes of the Swanson house committee, will coöperate with it in every possible way. We expect that the reports of the research of the tax conference should be of assistance to the special house committee.

[The Swanson committee was appointed last Wednesday by Speaker Elmer J. Schnackenberg to investigate real estate tax delinquency in Cook county. Representative David I. Swanson (R., Chicago) is chairman.]

"It seems particularly desirable to check carefully into the activities of at least the six major taxing bodies in Cook county with the view of determining what can be done to straighten out the tangle that has existed for years.

Provides for Audits.

"The officials of these bodies are continuously asking for help from the legislature and the governor, but there does not seem to be any definite program calling for efficiency and economy. The taxpayers have indicated that they are looking toward state government to take an aggressive stand in this matter.

"I expect the tax conference to explore thoroly the whole question of peg levy legislation and bonding, as well as the deficit financing of these taxing bodies. Consideration will be given to strengthening the budget provisions of the laws relating to these bodies, as well as requiring that they be audited and other steps be taken to insure stricter accountability to the taxpayers.

"All taxpayers could benefit from the preadjudication of tax levies. The tax conference will consider possible legislation which would be sustained by the Supreme court.

"I feel that the whole matter of personal property tax assessment should be reviewed, with the desire of finding a solution to a bad situation. More scientific methods may be developed for the assessment and particularly the collection of personal property taxes.

Seeks Relief for Realty.

"A great share of the cost of local government is borne by real estate and with the constant increases in this burden the ownership of farms and other property becomes less desirable. One of the most important efforts of the tax conference will be to determine whether relief can be obtained for the real estate owner.

"With emphasis on the determination that there shall be no interference with local government, it seems desirable, however, that the assistance of the state should be offered in setting up a uniform system of budgeting, auditing, accounting, and reporting of financial statistics.

"To this end, it has been suggested that a division of local finance be set up in the state tax commission for working out forms for various procedures. In this has been included the suggestion that every tax body be audited periodically and that every tax body be required to set up a uniform system of accounts.

"One of the most perplexing problems, particularly in Cook county, relates to tax delinquency and the improvement of tax collection machinery. Not only does tax delinquency add to the tax bill of the paying taxpayer, but it seriously impairs the financial standing of the local taxing bodies affected.

Urge Mandatory Foreclosure.

"Among the suggestions that have been made is that tax foreclosure laws be made mandatory rather than discretionary. For example, it has been suggested that after five years of tax delinquency, the state's attorney shall be required to foreclose and sell to the highest bidder. In this connection the conditions relating to tax titles should be remedied."

[When the list of the governor's appointees on his advisory committee became known, there was widespread comment that it did not include the name of Philip W. Collins, Chicago insurance man, who has put on an aggressive campaign for appointment by Green as chairman of the state tax commission.]

Following are the members of the committee who have accepted appointment:

Leverett S. Lyon, chief executive officer, Chicago Association of Commerce.

Douglas Sutherland, executive secretary, Chicago civic federation.

Morgan L. Fitch, president, Chicago Real Estate board.

THE TAX MUDDLE: A PANORAMA OF WIDENING CHAOS

Crisis Upon Crisis Is History in County.

BY WILLIAM SHINNICK.

The action of Gov. Dwight H. Green in Springfield yesterday in appointing a committee to draft a program of statewide tax reforms focused attention on Cook county's tax problems.

For more than 12 years, the levying and collection of taxes in the county have been marked by crisis after crisis until the only way to describe these functions correctly is to draw a broad panorama of chaos. Some of the components of the picture are:

A total of 433 million dollars of past due taxes uncollected.

More than 400 taxing bodies, the largest of which have blithely appropriated and spent each year 90 per cent of total levies when only about 80 per cent has been collected.

Six major governmental bodies entering 1941 with 25 millions of unpaid bills.

One-Third Delinquent.

A third of all real estate parcels—400,000 out of 1,200,000—in delinquency.

Only 25 per cent of persons billed for personl property taxes actually paying.

Officials striving to levy still greater burdens on the paying 80 per cent while the slacking 20 per cent are allowed to escape.

How did this muddle come about? Why did local government employés go thru payless paydays? Why are they threatened with the same thing again? Why aren't the delinquencies collected?

You have to go back to 1928 for the beginnings of the answers. There were taxes in that year—the 1927 lecy. In that rosy era the usual collections on a levy ran to 95 per cent. But there were complaints of injustices, and the state tax commission, headed by William H. Malone, ordered a reassessment.

Tax Payments Lapse.

The revision was made in 1929 under the direction of Harry S. Cutmore, designed to save the discredited assessment system. Collections were delayed not only by the revision but by political sabotage. There was a penalty date for taxes on May 1, 1928. There wasn't another until July 10, 1930. For more than a year beyond the normal paying date the property owners kept their tax money in the bank or spent it.

Many of them got the habit of not paying and found it pleasant. The operating governments which customarily spent up to their limits suffered a crisis. A citizens' committee had to do something about it and somehow raised a tideover fund of 74 million dollars.

Along in 1929 came a depression. In 1930 and 1931, when the tax bills finally came, many taxpayers didn't pay.

Echoes Still Reverberate.

Some could not pay; others didn't want to pay, and still others believed the new assessment was unjust, so 30,000 of them formed an organization called the Association of Real Estate Taxpayers, and held mass meetings and filed suits to prevent collections under the 1928 and 1929 levies. It required a long time and many readjustments to clear up this organized tax strike. The echoes of it still reverberate.

Today the county treasurer is holding 11 millions of taxes which he refuses to distribute to the hard pressed governing bodies because suits have been filed attacking the levies. Many taxpayers still are litigious.

After 1931 things got just a little better, but in 1934 Chicago, of all the large American cities, had the highest rate of tax delinquency, and still does.

Real Estate Carries Burden.

The Illinois law requires that all property be assessed on the same basis, and theoretically this has always been done. In actual practice, however, real estate carries much more than its share of the load. This is one of the things that arouse the ire of realty owners. On an average, since 1928, they have paid 89.49 per cent of the amounts levied against their holdings. The personal property levies, in the same period, have averaged only 55.76 per cent paid.

Just to show how astronomical tax figures can become, the total of realty taxes levied in the 12 years 1928 to 1939 inclusive was $1,884,771,448. The county total of personalty tax bills in the same period was $641,015,174 [Source: The Chicago Real Estate board]. The real estate paid more of its total, presumably, because real estate is difficult to conceal.

A recent study showed that tax delinquency in other Illinois counties was comparatively small; that only five counties downstate collected less than 90 per cent of levies and that 47 counties collected 98 per cent or more!

Little Incentive to Bid.

One of the reasons why even realty taxes are hard to collect from an unwilling owner is that buyers at tax sales have little incentive to bid. State laws will not allow such buyers a clear title, even after years. As a result, many properties in arrears are sold for taxes, at small amounts, to the tax dodging owners. The payment, which clears up the owner's title, is always much less than the tax bill.

Personal property taxes are, for many individuals, far easier to escape. In Chicago a vast army of citizens receive its bills and does nothing—and nothing is done. Unquestionably some persons do not report their intangible holdings of securities, and the assessor knows not what they are.

Most of the personal property paid comes from large taxpayers. The little fellow sometimes gets a notice he is delinquent, accompanied by the threat to sue. He isn't sued because it is uneconomical to carry amounts like $14.30 or $23.40 to court.

Slightly Better in Suburbs.

In some suburbs collection is slightly better. The delinquent who waits too long is haled before a justice of the peace. The J. P. and a constable collect fees and the affable court reduces the tax bill at discretion. Sometimes the taxpayer finds it cheaper to wait and deal with the justice of the peace than to pay at once. Legal experts maintain these court revisions are illegal, but they still go on.

The county treasurer, under existing law, has the right to seize personal property without court order and sell it to cover the taxes, but no county treasurer in decades has tried it.

The incumbent, John Toman, has indicated he might exercise this power if provided with a bond to protect him against law suits growing out of the procedure. Members of the county board have promised to get him such a bond soon, and County Assessor John S. Clark has prepared a list of delinquents for him to work on.

Laggards Fear Discrimination.

Outstanding is the opinion of tax experts that often the delinquent citizen does not pay promptly because he feels he is being discriminated against, or that something may happen to reduce his payment if he pays under protest. Five hundred thousand have actually paid under protest. Proposals to have the courts review levies in advance and guarantee their correctness have been made. Such laws have been passed but have been found unconstitutional.

Some observers hold that there can be no betterment of the situation until the taxpayers—the 20 per cent as well as the paying 80—come to believe in the inevitability of collection.

That this belief is receding instead of growing is evidenced by the 1940 tax collections. A total of $215,885,000 was billed. The collections up to Jan. 1, three months after the last penalty date, were only 77 per cent.

And the total collections of 1940 taxes and delinquent taxes in the year were only $185,764,000, the lowest amount received in any year since 1935!

12 Year Record on Tax Payments

These graphs show real estate and personal property taxes billed in the years 1928 to 1939, inclusive, and the amounts collected in each year. The figures were obtained from the Chicago Real Estate board. Railroads, a separate classification not shown on the graphs, paid 91.91 per cent of the taxes billed against them in the 12 years. Each graph is complete in itself; they are not scaled for comparison.

SOUTH AFRICANS SEIZE KEY PORT IN SOMALILAND

Aided by British Fleet and Air Force.

CAIRO, Egypt, Feb. 15 (AP).—The British announced today that South African troops, aided by a British fleet and air force, have captured the important Italian Somaliland port and military center of Chisimaio.

Much equipment and many prisoners were said to have been taken, but the chief gain was seizure of a strategic point for Britain's apparent effort to seal the Somaliland coast, shutting the Fascists off from supplies and reënforcements, as she did in Libya.

By capturing Chisimaio, on the Indian ocean at the mouth of the Juba river, the South Africans had put behind them the most difficult country, a desolate stretch of desert. Chisimaio is about 120 miles up the coast from the Italian Somaliland-Kenya colony border and ahead lies a good 250 mile coastal road to Mogadiscio, capital and principal port of the colony.

Like Climbing a Ladder.

Chisimaio apparently is the bottom of a gigantic ladder the British have begun to climb in Italian Somaliland. Its uprights are two north-south roads, the one on the coast and another inland, joined by connecting runglike east-west roads.

The British said the force occupying Chisimaio marched from Kenya. This, presumably, is one force of the British column which began penetrating Somaliland in the El Wak region. It advanced 70 miles in two days from the captured inland town of Afmadu.

Another has pushed northward inland in the western part of the colony near the triborder junction of Somaliland, Kenya, and Ethiopia, where some of the largest Fascist military camps in Somaliland have been reported at Dolo and Lugh.

Oil Tanks Set Afire.

Other Italian forces are said to be along the coast, at Brava, about 150 miles north of Chisimaio and the next important point on the line of the British coastal advance; at Mogadiscio, and at Illig and Bender Alula, harbors in northernmost Somaliland.

Chisimaio's submission, the British said, was due in part to pounding by warplanes and naval forces. They said oil tanks were ablaze, one ship was found scuttled and three others damaged in the port.

Thrusts into a new sector on the edge of Italy's Ethiopian empire also were reported by the British. They said Queissan [Gezan], near the border, and Asosa, about 25 miles inside Ethiopia and 50 miles further south, had been captured. Both are south of the Blue Nile in the region west of Lake Tana.

Increasing Pressure on Keren.

Increasing pressure was reported on the Keren defenses of the Italians in Eritrea, despite reënforcements received by the Fascists. No action was reported in Libya, hundreds of miles away on the North African front, but the British middle eastern command declared 103 field guns had been counted from the capture of Bengazi. Other booty enumerated included 28 light anti-aircraft guns and two heavy ones.

The royal air force reported that its bombers had sunk a merchant ship in the central Mediterranean in an attack Thursday night on a convoy of four Italian freighters and two destroyers.

Rome Reports "Violent Fighting."

ROME, Feb. 15 (AP).—Violent fighting was reported in the Chisimaio zone of southern Italian Somaliland in the Italian high command communique today. A British cruiser was reported struck by bombs off Chisimaio.

Both German and Italian planes were said to have attacked British mechanized units and troops on the Libyan front and bombed shipping off the North African coast.

A "score of natives" were reported killed in British plane attacks on "a locality in Eritrea."

Italian planes last night attacked Malta, the communique said.

British Hemming in Italians in East Africa

Latest developments in the British campaign against the Italians in East Africa make the attackers' strategy more apparent than it has been heretofore. While cutting off Italian supplies and reinforcements the British are protecting their lifeline to the Indian ocean thru the narrow Strait of Bab el Mandeb.

ITALY LOSES 30 SHIPS IN LIBYAN ROUT; FOUR DESTROYERS INCLUDED

ALEXANDRIA, Egypt, Feb. 15 (AP).—The British today summarized the following Italian naval losses as a result of the push to Bengazi:

One cruiser, four destroyers, 22 merchant ships, two torpedo boats, and one tug, a total of 30 ships.

The old cruiser San Giorgio was found burned at Tobruk along with two destroyers and 17 ships of various types sunk and wrecked. Two destroyers, four freighters, and two torpedo boats, were found sunk at Bengazi. The Italians lost one 3,000 ton merchantman and one tug at Derna.

PETAIN TIGHTENS RULE AS INTERIOR MINISTER QUITS

Peyrouton Post Given Darlan; His Fourth.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

VICHY, France, Feb. 15.—Marshal Henri Philippe Petain's governing junta became more concentrated tonight with the announcement that Minister of Interior Marcel Peyrouton has resigned his post, turning it over to Admiral Jean Darlan, and will leave Feb. 19 to become once more France's ambassador to Argentina.

Admiral Darlan already was vice president of the council of ministers, minister of marine, and minister of foreign affairs. The prefect of Lyons, Angeli, will become undersecretary of the interior department.

Four Chief Figureheads.

Darlan, holding four posts; Yves Bouthillier as minister of finance, Gen. Charles Huntziger as minister of war, and perhaps Joseph Barthelemy, minister of justice, thus become the four chief figureheads in the marshal's "directorate," as it was described in a recent communique announcing the refusal of Pierre Laval to return to the government.

What appears to be taking place is an organization of the government on technical lines, with decisions in matters of policy being taken by two or three men who are in the confidence of Marshal Petain.

Apart from the ministers mentioned, there are seven secretaries of state, but they do not have ministerial rank and are summoned only when their advice is needed. They are Pierre Cazot, agriculture; Rene Belin, industrial production and labor; Gen. Jean Marie Bergeret, aviation; Jacques Chevalier, education and youth; Jean Berthelot, communications; Rear Admiral Rene Platon, colonies, and Jean Achard, food and supplies.

Revisions Possibly at End.

It appeared likely that the setup as outlined might complete the present phase of cabinet changes following Laval's refusal to return and Foreign Minister Pierre Etienne Flandin's resignation.

Peyrouton, as minister of the interior, was congratulated at Montpellier by the Spanish generalissimo, Francisco Franco, on the police service incident to Franco's recent trip thru France to Italy. He was the French ambassador to Argentina up until last May.

HURRICANE HITS LISBON; 3 DIE; AIR LINER SUNK

LISBON, Portugal, Feb. 15 (AP).—At least three persons were killed and scores injured today when a hurricane, sometimes blowing 100 miles an hour, crumpled houses and sank the giant British Airways flying boat Clyde in the Tagus river.

The Pan-American trans-Atlantic Dixie Clipper carrying four passengers and 5,000 pounds of mail left on a westward flight before the storm, but landed at Port Etienne, French West Africa, to escape the gale.

BRITISH LOOSE BIGGEST RAID ON INVASION PORTS

Waves of Bombers Strike Thruout Night.

LONDON, Feb. 16, Sunday (AP).—British bombers pounded the German held channel coast from Ostend to Boulogne last night and early today in the longest and fiercest raid yet made on that stretch of Nazi territory.

As the bombers switched from target to target, great clouds of smoke rolled over the Dover strait, stabbed by flashing bursts of bombs, the glare of great fires and flickering searchlights.

It was a running series of attacks in great force extending northward from Belgium down along the narrowest stretches of the English channel. Hard hit were Dunkirk and Gravelines, Calais and Boulogne, and the Nazi big gun batteries at Cap Gris Nez were violently pounded.

Fires Light Channel.

The channel area was dotted with great fires, and thunderous intermittent explosions suggested that ammunition and gasoline dumps had been squarely hit.

Britons standing by the thousands upon the English coast lifted rolling cheers for the British airmen darting across the channel.

London itself was not wholly immune from attack. Before midnight there were two air raid alarms. During the first, bombs fell in one London area, but the second alert appeared to have been set off by German raiders heading for other parts of Britain. Incendiaries were dropped in Liverpool. East and northeast Scotland also were attacked.

A German bomber was reported brought down in the Newcastle area late last night. Gunfire on the northeast English coast suggested coastal artillery or naval guns were in action.

Nazis Claim Three Planes Downed.

BERLIN, Feb. -5 (AP).—Three British planes were reported shot down by German fighters near the mouth of the Scheldt river, DNB, official German news agency, said today, reporting on a daylight followup to R. A. F. flights last night over 22 communities in western Germany.

Germans said only one of the 22 communities was attacked intensively. A number of civilian dead and wounded were reported.

FIND PASSPORT DONOVAN LOST IN BULGAR CAPITAL

SOFIA, Bulgaria, Feb. 15 (AP). — Political police returned to American Minister George H. Earle today Col. William J. Donovan's lost diplomatic passport.

Police were reported to be continuing their investigation of the incident, which began Jan. 22 when Donovan, on a secret mission, announced the loss of his passport just as he was about to leave for Belgrade, Jugo-Slavia.

Six Ships of British Convoy Reach Port After Nazi Attack

FUNCHAL, Madeira, Feb. 15 (AP).—Six ships from a British Atlantic convoy attacked by German raiders have reached this port.

[A German report said 14 ships were sunk and one left afloat to pick up survivors. It was presumed in Berlin that the fifteenth ship remained with the Germans as a prize of war.]

The six vessels are the Blair Athol, Margot, Volturno, and Clune Park, all British, and two Greek ships, the Polyktor and Anna Mazaraki.

About 100 survivors from the convoy reached here yesterday and said they believed six ships were sunk when their convoy was attacked between Madeira and the Azores.

Raider Circles Convoy.

Officers and men said the ships were attacked at dawn on Wednesday. One raider circled the convoy at high speed and fired both light and heavy guns at extremely short range.

One of the steamships received a heavy salvo, it was said, and went down almost before the debris thrown into the air by the explosions reached the water.

Four of the survivors had suffered wounds.

Witness Tells of Attack.

BERLIN, Feb. 15 (AP).—The flotilla of German warships which has reported in the last two days the sinking of 14 British ships in one Atlantic convoy, left one of the vessels afloat to serve as a rescue ship for crews of the others, D. N. B., official German news agency, said today.

All the merchantmen were armed and defended themselves vigorously, the D. N. B. report said, but while shells fell close to the Germans, no German ship was hit.

A D. N. B. reporter aboard one of the German ships said that the fight was swift and that after the first 10 minutes three British ships were in sinking condition.

The attack took place off Portugal. The one vessel left to take aboard the crews from the sunken ships now is presumably under German escort. The D. N. B. report said some British prisoners were aboard.

Lone Freighter Sunk.

The day before the convoy was sighted the German ships encountered a British freighter, which had escaped from another convoy attacked in Portuguese waters.

"We sank it with a couple of well placed salvos, and the spot where it went down was covered with millions of oranges from the cargo," the D. N. B. reporter wrote. "We took the Scottish crew aboard.

"On Feb. 12 we saw three tiny specks on the sea," his report continued. "Then more came in view, and soon all 15 ships of the group. We shot at the first vessel, which immediately sent up a rocket. We stopped shooting at that one; then there was swift action. The rest of the armed merchantmen started firing at us. Then our ships picked out individual steamers. Smoke obscured the view.

One Vessel Torn in Two.

"We went down the line of the convoy. Soon, to our rear, lay burning ships. One vessel was torn in two. Scarcely 10 minutes after the beginning of the fight three ships were sunk or sinking. One large steamer turned over completely and floated for a time keel up.

"We got to the end of the convoy and turned around for another go at the ships. On account of their useless firing it was necessary to destroy them. Soon there was only one steamer left. Our commander ordered it to be spared for the rescue of the crews."

Woman Killed by Train After She Trips and Falls

AMERICAN EAGLE SQUADRON FLYER KILLED IN BRITAIN

LONDON, Feb. 15 (AP).—The first action fatality of the American Eagle squadron, a force fighting on the side of the R. A. F., was announced officially today. Edwin E. Orbison, 23 years old, of Sacramento, Cal., was killed while chasing a German plane. He was on a training flight.

Orbison, son of an Altus, Okla., garageman, was the third American flyer recorded killed. William Mead Lindsley Fiske, III, Olympic bobsled champion, was killed in a fight over an R. A. F. airdrome last August. He was flying in a regular R. A. F. fighter unit, not the Eagle squadron. Howard Lekrone, an American Eagle squadron flyer, was killed recently in a flying accident, not connected with enemy action.

An adjutant of the Eagle squadron said Orbison was "one of the best pilots" in the organization and had done "between 450 and 500 hours of flying in America."

GREEKS ADVANCE 6 MILES; AIRMEN BATTER TEPELENI

Troops Storm Fortified Italian Positions.

BITOLJ, Jugo-Slavia, Feb. 15 (AP).—Greeks claimed a six mile advance north of Klisura in central Albania today, making the situation of Italians still clinging to Tepeleni to the west ever more precarious. Greek and British warplanes severely bombed the stubbornly held city, despite extremely active Italian aviation.

In the north, an early morning push by the Greeks resulted in occupation of several points of strategic importance in the Skumbi river valley west of Lake Ochrida, it was reported here.

Storm Fortified Positions.

ATHENS, Greece, Feb. 15 (AP).—Three hundred Italian prisoners—including "many officers"—were taken on the Albanian front today, the Greek high command reported tonight. Greek troops stormed fortified positions protected by barbed wire and drove the Italians back in a series of local actions, it was added.

Along tne central sector, said a government spokesman, the general Greek offensive gathered force despite a severe snowstorm. Advances along the whole front between Tepeleni and the Adriatic shore were reported.

British and Greek planes were said to have bombed Italian troop concentrations north of Tepeleni, and dispatches reported the general military situation was "highly satisfactory."

Gun Emplacements Hit.

Bombs fell on Italian gun emplacements and motor transport columns, on military buildings, and other forward line preparations, a communique said of R. A. F. operations.

Dispatches from the front quoted Italian prisoners as saying recent heavy bombings of the Tepeleni, Valona, Elbasan, and Tirana areas caused panic and that the Italian command was unable to sustain the morale of the troops.

Claim Greeks are Beaten Back.

ROME, Feb. 15 (AP).—The Italian high command declared today Fascist forces had beaten back Greek attacks on the Albanian front.

"Enemy attempts to reach our positions were made to fail by the vigorous reaction of our troops, who inflicted serious losses on the enemy," the daily communique said.

Two "enemy" planes were reported shot down in the Aegean during air raids Feb. 12 and 13.

SPAIN SAYS DUCE TOLD FRANCO OF AXIS WAR PLANS

MADRID, Feb. 15 (AP).—The Spanish press today said that at their recent conference Premier Mussolini of Italy had informed Gereralissimo Franco of details of an axis plan for a new meve in the war coming "perhaps within an extremely short time." The newspaper Arriba declared Mussolini explained what an axis victory would signify for Europe. Africa and the Mediterranean also were discussed, the paper said.

Spain, the article asserted, had proved by her intervention in Tangier that she has concrete aspirations regarding Africa. The Franco-Mussolini meeting, it was added, left no doubt that there was a "perfect identity of views."

The article said that the Mediterranean henceforce would be considered by Italy and Spain as their joint sea.

'FREE' RUMANIAN DRIVE REVEALED; CLAIM AID IN U. S.

Report Former Minister Heads London Group.

LONDON, Feb. 15 (AP).—A "free" Rumanian movement, which for diplomatic reasons has been working "under cover" since November, was reported today to be coming out into the open, backed by promised allegiance of 4,000 compatriots in Britain and 350,000 in the United States and Canada.

Virgil Tilea [top] and J. N. Barbu.

Virgil Tilea, former Rumanian minister in London, who, with other prominent nationals, has been deprived of citizenship and charged with high treason, is said to be organizing the movement from London.

He is fighting on this reported four point manifesto:

1. Free King Michael from his present position and set him up as a constitutional democratic king.
2. Liberate Rumania from her present "serfdom."
3. Collaborate in the creation of the future European order.
4. Restore Rumania's frontiers.

Leader in Cleveland.

Cleveland, O., Feb. 15 (AP).—J. N. Barbu, editor of The American Rumanian News, published here, today said he was chairman of a "free" Rumanian movement of the North American continent.

"We have been working for some time with the Committee to Defend America by Aiding the Allies," Barbu asserted. "We have been organized here and in Canada for several months, but until diplomatic relations between England and Rumania were broken we could not attach ourselves to London openly. We expect to do all we can to help Britain. We can't send anything to Rumania because it would fall into German hands."

Wed in England

LADY IRIS MOUNTBATTEN.

LONDON, Feb. 15 (AP).—Lady Iris Mountbatten, cousin of King George VI., and daughter of the marquess and marchioness of Carisbrooke, was married today to Capt. Hamilton O'Malley of the Irish guards at St. Paul's Roman Catholic church, Haywards Heath, Sussex.

TELL PRINCE PAUL WHAT NAZIS ASK OF JUGO-SLAVIA

Two Who Talked to Hitler Confer with Regent.

BELGRADE, Jugo-Slavia, Feb. 15 (AP).—Regent Prince Paul learned from his ministers today the details of Adolf Hitler's immediate plans for Jugo-Slavia as the German army in Rumania ostensibly made final preparations for a move in the Balkans.

Prince Paul.

The prince conferred thruout the afternoon with his premier, Dragisha Tsvetkovitch, and foreign minister, Aleksander Cincar-Markovitch, who were just back from a talk with Hitler at Berchtesgaden.

What Tsvetkovitch and Cincar-Markovitch told the regent was an official secret, but authoritative quarters privately admitted that the German terms were expected to be disclosed as nothing short of full economic and political "collaboration" with the axis.

Greeks Step Up Action.

It already had been stated by a qualified informant that Jugo-Slavia was prepared to accept assignment as an active participant in Hitler's Balkan plans.

Reports from Greece—whose government yesterday called up many classes of army reservists—indicated that the Greeks were stepping up their offensive against the Italians in Albania, possibly hoping to rush thru a military decision before their country was called upon to fight another force on another front.

Germans of military age and dressed in civilian clothes continued to appear in Bulgaria in small numbers. The official response to inquiries about these quiet visitors was that they were "just traveling salesmen."

Turkish Press Comment.

The press of Turkey, Britain's nonbelligerent ally, declared in commenting upon the trip of Jugo-Slavia's statesmen to see Hitler that it "more resembled a transfer of prisoners under guard than a visit of free men."

The authoritative newspaper Yeni Sabah, which is controled by the Turkish government, observed: "The Balkans have lost Jugo-Slavia now—the real Balkans are no more."

The newspaper Demokrat Politika reported that Germany had instructed the Bulgarian government to make ready "500 trains" to carry Nazi soldiers across that country to Greece—transport which would carry more than 150,000 men.

British Leave Constanta.

CONSTANTA, Rumania, Feb. 15 (AP).—The British embassy staff and members of allied diplomatic missions representing exiled governments of Norway, Belgium, and Luxemburg, sailed at dusk today from this Black sea port, en route to Istanbul, Turkey. Britain has broken diplomatic relations with Rumania and has declared the country to be "enemy-occupied territory."

The British left Bucharest last midnight.

EX-KING ALFONSO IMPROVES AFTER 2D HEART ATTACK

ROME, Feb. 15 (AP).—Doctors attending ex-King Alfonso XIII. of Spain tonight said his conlition was slightly improved but still serious. He had another heart attack this morning, the second in three days.

The former monarch was visited during the evening by his wife, the former Queen Victoria, and his sons, Princes Juan and Jaime.

Alfonso's formal abdication from the throne in favor of Juan was published this week in Portuguese newspapers.

Berlin Recalls Its Trade Envoy from French Syria

BEIRUT, Syria, Feb. 15 (AP).—Wilhelm von Hintag, Germany's trade envoy to French mandated Syria, was recalled suddenly today by the reich foreign office. It was reported here that the French possibly exerted pressure to have von Hintag removed because of what reliable sources said was his tendency to spend large sums for propaganda.

BRITISH ENVOYS, HULL STUDY FAR EAST SITUATION

Halifax and Casey Confer with Secretary.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 15 (AP).—Viscount Halifax, the British ambassador, and Richard G. Casey, the Australian minister, discussed the far eastern situation with Secretary Hull today. Halifax said afterward that they had found "a great deal of common ground" in their exchange of information.

The British ambassador told reporters that the three men had enjoyed a "joint talk on matters of mutual interest."

Asked for his views on the far east, Viscount Halifax said that was a "part of the world in which we are all interested."

Answering questions concerning British naval and military movements in the Pacific, Halifax said that the British had been "increasing their forces in that area quite substantially and steadily for some time."

Immediately after Halifax and Casey had departed, Hull received Dr. A. Loudon, the Netherlands minister, who later told newspaper men they had a talk on the "general situation" and exchanged information.

Asked what the Dutch possessions would do in event of an emergency, the minister declared that "the Dutch East Indies would fight any one who attacked them."

BRITISH SEE JAP MOVE TO SET UP MALAYAN UNION

Demand for Indies Bases Also Visioned.

BY LARRY RUE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Feb. 15.—British circles tonight wondered whether Japan will demand air and sea bases in the Dutch East Indies and creation of a Malayan federation to include French Indo-China, Thailand [Siam], and the Dutch East Indies as part of its preparations for expansion southward.

Some comfort was derived from an announcement that President Roosevelt is making "every preparation to meet any Japanese threats in the far east, even to the extent of sending planes and warships to the great British naval base at Singapore."

Depend on Roosevelt.

The Sunday Dispatch says the United States navy is anxious to have "the strongest line of defense against any possible action by Japan and this is one of the reasons why the transfer of more United States destroyers to Great Britain has been opposed." Britons voice the hope that Mr. Roosevelt's stand in the far east will prevent Japan from trying to attack Singapore. His stand is interpreted here to mean the United States would force Japan to fight rather than allow it to put its "southward expansionist plan" into effect.

However, Japan's success in implementing her self-designated rôle as arbiter of the Thailand-Indo-China war has contributed toward her ambition of establishing for herself a "Monroe Doctrine" of the far east, it is admitted.

Yet hopes still are entertained here that Japan may withdraw from the tripartite pact with Germany and Italy. A prominent Japanese said: "As soon as Italy capitulates, Japan can withdraw from the agreement."

British Envoy Warns Japan.

TOKIO, Feb. 16, Sunday (AP).—British Ambassador Sir Robert Leslie Craigie was reported today to have cautioned Foreign Minister Yosuke Matsuoka against any menacing maneuvers by Japan toward British possessions in the far east. Craigie saw the Japanese foreign minister late yesterday, presumably on instructions from London. Japanese newspapers reported under Bangkok, Thailand, datelines rumors of an imminent Anglo-Japanese clash in Thailand.

Japanese residents in North and South America were advised yesterday by the cabinet information bureau not to be disturbed by "irresponsible and sensational reports" of increasing tension between Japan and the United States.

"It is true that the situation between Japan and the United States gives cause for some concern," the statement said, "but it is unwarrantable to jump at a hasty conclusion that the situation will be overtaken by any such eventuality as war. Both the Japanese and American governments are doing everything in their power to prevent the situation coming to such a pass."

Philippines Tension Eased.

MANILA, P. I., Feb. 15 (AP).—The Philippines got back to normal today after a 48 hour war scare. Crowds which had been huzzing with talk of possible military adventures in the South Pacific were calm.

The main reasons for the excitement were unexplained orders which brought one Dutch vessel speeding back to the neutral waters of Manila, and canceled the return of American army officers to the United States.

One reason for not worrying any more was seen in apparent preparations of the Dutch merchantman Tjitjalegka to depart today and the sailing of three other Dutch ships from Manila. The Tijitjalega returned to Manila Thursday a few hours after sailing for Hongkong.

The Netherland East Indies government's order sending the Tjitjalegka back to Manila was not explained.

Won't Fight, Says Siam.

BANGKOK, Feb. 15 (AP).—Thailand [Siam] declared by communique tonight that Thailand would not be drawn into the "far eastern conflict" and that nothing tending toward involvement had developed.

76 YEARS AGO TODAY . . .

ON February 16, 1865, Millers National Insurance Company was founded by a special act of the Illinois State Legislature. World affairs were chaotic in that year. The Civil War had just ended . . . and the dark Reconstruction Days were just ahead. Yet Millers National forged ahead and prospered.

Today with the World again in disorder . . . Millers National with its companion company is fully equipped to meet the critical changes that are daily taking place. "Preparedness for protection" is not new to Millers National today any more than in 1865.

1941 finds these two Chicago fire insurance companies among the strongest financially in the nation and both fully equipped to serve local property owners . . . through your broker or agent.

NAVY 'LOOKOUT' SITES AT SAMOA, GUAM APPROVED

House Committee Hearing Held in Secret.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 15 (AP).—Development of Guam and Samoa, Pacific islands, as naval aviation "lookout stations" was recommended today by the house naval committee after it heard secret testimony from the navy high command regarding the far eastern situation.

The committee's recommendations were made in approving legislation authorizing the expenditure of 400 million dollars for expansion of existing naval shore bases and establishment of new ones. Funds for a large part of the work were requested by President Roosevelt earlier in the week.

There was no discussion of the Guam or Samoan projects at public sessions of the committee, but Chairman Carl Vinson [D., Ga.] told newsmen the subject was thoroly explored when legislators went over the program with Admiral Harold R. Stark, chief of naval operations.

Committeemen Warned.

Vinson cautioned members of the committee against discussing, even among themselves, the proceedings of the secret session. He told reporters it was "a highly important executive session" and when asked whether it dealt with reports of growing tension in the Pacific replied that the legislation was considered "in the light of the world situation."

As approved by the committee the bill would authorize expenditure of $4,700,000 at Guam for bombproof shelters, communications centers and to make the harbor usable by large vessels and seaplanes.

Rear Admiral Ben Moreell, chief of the bureau of yards and docks, testified that the Guam project was virtually the same as that rejected by congress twice since 1938. Guam is only 1,500 miles from Tokio, and opponents of the navy's previous proposals to make improvements there contended that Japan would be offended.

At Samoa, far to the south of Guam and in a direct line from Honolulu to New Zealand and Australia, the navy would be authorized to spend $8,100,000 for expansion of the relatively minor facilities now at Tutuila, bombproofing of vital centers and establishment of air craft operating facilities.

The committee was told by navy officials that the project was important because the development of aviation had brought the islands into the "strategic picture" in the Pacific.

Among the major items included in the legislation were a $35,000,000 fleet anchorage in the Vieques, Puerto Rico, area and an $8,500,000 expansion of the new naval supply depot at Oakland, Cal.

Admiral Moreell said the navy had adopted a policy of storing gasoline underground at all stations outside the United States. The bill would provide $5,000,000 for the work.

In addition to approval of the legislation the committee recommended establishment of a $40,000,000 marine corps training center on the east coast for ground forces and aviation.

Maj. Gen. Thomas Holcomb, commandant of the Marine corps, told the committee the new center would be established in North Carolina on a tract of about 700,000 acres near Jacksonville, in Onslow county. The land would cost "something over $1,000,000," Holcomb said.

Propose American 'Lookouts' in Pacific

After listening to secret testimony by the naval high command, the house of representatives naval affairs committee yesterday recommended that naval aviation "lookout stations" be established on the American islands of Guam and Samoa in the Pacific ocean. Distances from these islands to other points in the far east are indicated. The Dutch East Indies are shown in black.

GUNMEN SLAY 2 IN SHANGHAI GAMBLING CLUB

SHANGHAI, China, Feb. 16 [Sunday] (AP).—Gunmen believed to be Coreans shot and killed Miss Daisy Simmons, 28 years old, a British citizen, and Walter Lunzer, 34, a German-Jewish refugee, and terrorized several hundred occidentals, Chinese, and Japanese in a night club early today.

The men fled without touching thousands of dollars lying on gambling tables in the combination cabaret and gambling establishment.

Police said Lunzer, employed as a guard, grappled with the men. They shot him and, becoming frightened, fled after firing several shots, one of which hit Miss Simmons.

Other speakers included Capt. Edward A. Evers, commanding officer of the Illinois area, U. S. Naval reserves; Col. Le Roy B. Boylan, senior department commander of the United Spanish War Veterans, and Judge Matthew D. Hartigan.

REPORT EXILED PARAGUAY CHIEF MAY TRY COUP

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina, Feb. 15 (AP).—Reliable sources said today that Col. Rafael Franco, exiled prototalitarian president of Paraguay, was nursing a plan to return to his country either as "strong man" or to build up a following that would ease him into the presidency again.

Col. Rafael Franco. [A. P. photo.]

These sources said Franco, now operating a soap factory at Montevideo, Uruguay, may attempt to reach Asuncion, Paraguayan capital, next Monday, the anniversary of his coup in 1936 when he overthrew President E. Ayala.

A hero of the Chaco war, Franco set up his own model of a Hitler type government, but an army and navy coup forced his resignation in August the next year.

Interviewed at Montevideo yesterday, Franco said there was a "popular demand" among exiled revolutionaries for him to go back so that he might occupy his "rightful place" as president.

SOCIETY WOMAN WAGES A LONE FIGHT ON WAR

Mrs. FitzSimons Defies Her Newport Neighbors.

BY WILLIAM FULTON.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Newport, R. I., Feb. 15.—Mrs. Paul FitzSimons, mother of former Gov. William H. Vanderbilt, looked out from the windows of her home today upon feverish war preparations in mist-hung Narragansett bay and told the story of a single-handed campaign to keep the country out of the European conflict and a Roosevelt dictatorship.

Mrs. Paul FitzSimons. [Acme Photo.]

An undoubted leader of the social set, Mrs. FitzSimons is battling against heavy odds on her home grounds because Newport, the nation's traditional capital of society, is predominantly prowar. Intermarriages with titled Englishmen and other social connections with the British bon ton are helping to whip up this sentiment. Bundling for Britain is all the fashion.

Ignores Neighbors' Frowns.

Not a bit disturbed by the frowns of her neighbors, Mrs. FitzSimons is going ahead with her fight. She belives with fervor that H. R. 1776, the war dictatorship bill pending before congress, not only would make Mr. Roosevelt the country's first dictator but also is the "Trojan horse for communism in this country." As one whose forebears fought in the revolution, her blood boils at persons who take a "vassal" attitude toward England or those who would reverse the decision of that war thru an Anglo-American union.

Mrs. FitzSimons has written hundreds of letters bitterly opposing the war dictatorship measure to senators, representatives, government officials, and influential friends. The desk in her study is stacked high with mail, much of which came from the middle west and west, she said.

Addresses Both Sides.

Her letters have gone out to Democrats as well as Republicans because Mrs. FitzSimons believes the future of the country has been so darkened by the President's demands that partisan politics must be swept aside. She is vice chairman of the Republican national committee and national committeewoman from Rhode Island.

Some of her most sizzling letters, which she handed over for perusal, were addressed to Republican senators and representatives from New England who favor the Roosevelt dictatorship bill.

"They have forgotten their forefather fought for and won their freedom in the revolution," asserted Mrs. FitzSimons, "but they will find they are today creating a more absolute dictator than George III. ever was."

Glimpse of Warships.

While she talked the mist lifted somewhat out in the harbor. From her home on a hill overlooking the water and town of Newport, three destroyers could be seen riding at anchor in Narragansett bay. Ferries were scurrying between the mainland and Goat Island, where 4,000 men are manufacturing torpedoes for the navy. Further out, activity could be discerned on Rose Island, storehouse for munitions.

Mrs. FitzSimons recalled that a younger brother of her great-great-grandfather had participated in the Boston tea party. During the world war she was an active Red Cross worker. William Vanderbilt, her son and son of her first husband, Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt, who drowned when the Titantic went down, was an ensign in the navy. She married his commanding officer, Lieut. Paul FitzSimons, after the war.

Son in Naval Reserve.

Former Gov. Vanderbilt is in the naval reserve and will go on active duty in Panama next month.

Mrs. FitzSimons was Miss Ellen French, the daughter of the late Francis Ormand French of New York City and Newport. Her elder sister, Bessie, is Lady Cheylesmore of England.

Mrs. FitzSimons charged that the foes of the Roosevelt dictatorship were being accused of being foes of Britain in order to confuse the issue.

"Those who oppose the bill do not lack sympathy for Britain," she said, "but they look upon it as a deliberate and determined scheme to create a dictator in the U. S. A., and they look clearly and realistically at the cold facts and the imminence of our beign thrown into the war, instead of thru sentimental, war hungry eyes.

Unworthy of Forbears.

"If our existence as a nation of free men depends upon the rest of the world, and we have not the strength to preserve our own way of life, unless we follow in the path of dictatorship blazed by Lenin, Stalin, Hitler, and Mussolini, then all the blood, tears, and sacrfices of the past 160 years have been in vain, and we prove that today we are weaklings, unworthy sons and daughters of our fearless forbears.

"Our ambitious politicians have placed us in a desperately dangerous position, having scrapped every shadow of neutrality and having constantly meddled in European affairs.

"Of all nations in the world, only in the United States are the crises and desires of foreign nations placed ahead of our own national welfare and safety. Give the American politician a reform or a saving of some other nation and he is off like a hare."

Scoffs at Willkie.

Mrs. FitzSimons, who was one of Wendell Willkie's most ardent supporters and hardest workers during the campaign, expressed her disillusionment at the switching of the G. O. P. nominee's stand against war to the side of the Roosevelt forces on the dictatorship bill. She scoffed at his Lincoln Day dinner speech in which Willkie remarked that the Republican party was born as the champion of freedom and to preserve that freedom.

"But Mr. Willkie's definition of freedom is a strange one, when he advocates surrendering our form of government, establishing a dictatorship, and stripping our nation and our citizens of defenses," she went on. "This speech was a glowing example of how fine words may be proselytized. It was not a Republican speech, nor a patriotic one, but in my opinion New Deal and British propaganda."

STREATOR UNDERTAKER DIES.

33D DIVISION EXTENDS DATE FOR RECRUITING 2,500 MEN TO MARCH 4

Maj. Gen. Samuel T. Lawton, commander of the 33d division of the Illinois National Guard, said yesterday that the time limit for enlistments in the division had been extended to March 4. It is hoped, he said, to obtain 2,500 recruits to raise the total strength of the division to 13,000 men. Gov. Dwight H. Green has approved the enlistment campaign.

The 33d division is to be inducted into federal army service on March 5, and a few days later units will begin moving to Camp Forrest in Tennessee for training. The enlistments are for one year in the army and two years of weekly drill in state armories. Men between 18 and 21 years old may join with the consent of their parents.

In Springfield, Adjt. Gen. Leo M. Boyle announced that the Illinois reserve militia, the state's only military force after the National Guard is fully mobilized for federal service, will be mustered into service on Feb. 28. Its total strength will be 5,449 enlisted men and 448 officers.

Buick SPECIAL 4-door Sedan, model 47, $1021. White sidewall tires extra.*
WHEN BETTER AUTOMOBILES ARE BUILT BUICK WILL BUILD THEM

Know any word better than "best"?
YES, we took in a lot of territory when we promised you months ago that this 1941 car of ours was the Best Buick Yet.
We promised that on fundamental things—on engineering specifications, on performance figures that had been checked and rechecked in the field, on dimensions and features and the cost of its fine upholstery, hardware, equipment and finish items.
We found quick confirmation, too, as the public grabbed up these Buicks in bigger volume than ever before—we found it in amazed and delighted owner-reports on handling, comfort, ride and the 10%-15% greater thrift of its FIREBALL straight-eight with Compound Carburetion.*
We even knew we were right by the way the fellows across the street began to talk about our car—they don't put a car on the anvil, you know, unless it's something to make them look to their own laurels.
But now we've come to the point where, if anything, we might use a word even stronger than "best"!
For the months that have rolled by since introduction have polished up production skill, smoothed procedure, slicked up and tightened each step of manufacture to the point where basic goodness is coaxed to an all-time high.
So more than ever now you ought to try out the Buicks your dealer is getting.
You ought to add up all you've heard, crown with a bit more in expectancy, and then come in and satisfy yourself that the Best Buick Yet even tops its original billing!
When? Why not today? Your Buick dealer has a demonstrator ready for you to take over—and what's left of the week end can't possibly be spent in pleasanter fashion.
*Standard on the SUPER, CENTURY, ROADMASTER and LIMITED; available at slight extra cost on the SPECIAL.

PEPPER REFUSES TO DEBATE WAR BILL WITH BROOKS

America First Vets Seek Another New Dealer.

Senator Claude Pepper [D., Fla.], ardent New Deal supporter, yesterday rejected an invitation to meet Senator Wayland Brooks [R., Ill.] in Chicago next Sunday afternoon in a debate on the President's war dictatorship bill under sponsorship of the veterans' division of the Chicago chapter of the America First committee.

Earlier Senator Scott W. Lucas [D., Ill.] had declined to debate with his Republican colleague. He suggested that Senator Brooks challenge Wendell L. Willkie, Republican Presidential nominee last fall, who is supporting the dictator bill. A second request, explaining the debate was planned to acquaint Illinois citizens with their senators' views, brought no response from Lucas.

Debate Plans Going Ahead.

Senator Pepper said in a telegram to Edward F. McGinnis, chairman of the veterans' division, that previous engagements prevented his coming to Chicago.

McGinnis announced that plans still are going ahead for the debate, which will be held in the Civic Opera house. An effort will be made, he said, to get another administration supporter to debate with Senator Brooks.

Mrs. Janet Ayer Fairbank, vice chairman of the Chicago chapter of the America First committee, made a new appeal for funds last night to carry on the work of the Chicago chapter.

Altho most of the workers are volunteers, Mrs. Fairbank said the committee needs money for printing, stationery, supplies, and other office expenses.

Relying Upon the People.

"We are relying upon the great mass of American people, those who put America first," Mrs. Fairbank said. "They are our bulwark in the fight to keep this country out of a war that can only result in the destruction of the American form of government."

She said the first appeal for funds met with a "splendid response," but that the contributions are almost exhausted.

The veterans' division is preparing to gather 600,000 signatures of veterans and their families in opposition to the dictator bill, McGinnis said. Twenty thousand petitions, each with room for 30 signatures, will be sent out to Illinois veterans for circulation.

A resolution adopted by the veterans' division will accompany each petition. It calls for an impregnable national defense, aid to Britain within the limits of the neutrality act, avoidance of war, and defeat of the dictator bill.

FOREMAN DIES AFTER FALL.

Vandalia, Ill., Feb. 15 (AP).—John Graham, 49, of Harrisburg, foreman on the construction of a new addition to the Fayette county courthouse, died in a hospital here today of injuries suffered in a fall from a scaffold while at work yesterday.

ROYAL FAMILY OF LUXEMBURG VISITS CHICAGO

Reception for Party Will Be Held Today.

Charlotte, grand duchess of Luxemburg, together with her royal and governmental entourage, today will conclude a two day visit to Chicago.

The grand duchess, exiled monarch of the pinpoint duchy of Luxemburg, that 990 square miles of land wedged between France and Germany, arrived from Washington at 12:20 p. m. yesterday aboard a private car on the Pennsylvania railroad. Other members of the royal party with her were her husband, Prince Consort Felix, and their son, Crown Prince John. From arrival until midnight they spent a busy day amidst the many Chicagoans of Luxemburg descent.

Special Mass Planned.

Today's events will begin at noon when the royal party attends a solemn high mass in St. Benedict's church. Luxemburg priests will officiate, and 25 priests of Luxemburg birth or descent will assist at the altar. An elaborate official reception will be held at 3 p. m. in the Auditorium theater.

The royal party of 13 includes five members of the Luxemburg cabinet, which has set up a provisional government in Montreal, Canada, since the Nazi occupation of Luxemburg on May 10. These are Pierre Dupong, premier and minister of state; Victor Bodson, minister of justice; Leon Schaus, secretary of the government; Peter Krier, minister of labor, and George Schomer, judge of the Juvenile court.

25,000 Luxemburgers Here.

Dupong, as spokesman for the government, observed that Chicago is in reality a little Luxemburg, containing the largest population of Luxemburgers or their descendants of any area outside the duchy. Luxemburg proper has 285,000; Chicago, 25,000.

The grand duchess' first official act here was to place a wreath at the base of a monument at Ridge and Devon avenues commemorating three doughboys of Luxemburg extraction killed in the world war. Later the party visited St. Francis hospital and the Michael Leider greenhouses in Evanston, and toured Luxemburg communities in Lincolnwood, Skokie, and Morton Grove.

The royal party is staying at the Stevens hotel and will leave for Montreal at 11 p. m. today from the Dearborn station via the Grand Trunk railroad.

307 Men from Chicago Go Into Army This Week

Fifty-seven Chicago draft boards will supply 307 men—all except 19 of them volunteers—for induction into the army next Wednesday. Draft officials said the group is the last one entirely from Cook county to be inducted under the original February call, which was designed to exhaust the volunteers reported on hand by the various boards. A supplementary February call was issued later to 155 of the 180 Cook county boards for the next week, starting Feb. 24.

HELP BOTH SIDES —TO COLLAPSE! IS FORD'S STAND

Let Them Fight Till They Learn Better, He Urges.

Ways Station, Ga., Feb. 15 (AP).—Henry Ford said today the United States should give England and the axis powers "the tools to keep on fighting until they both collapse."

The 77 year old automobile manufacturer, making his annual visit to his plantation and experimental farm here, said in an exclusive, copyrighted interview with Staff Writer Harold Martin of the Atlanta Constitution that he "sincerely hopes" neither England nor the axis powers will win the struggle.

"There is no righteousness in either cause," he said. "Both are motivated by the same evil impulse, which is greed.

Absolves "Little People."

"It is not the little people who are doing the fighting and the suffering who are the greedy ones. They are innocent of that. Their only guilt is idleness. Idleness has made them stupid and stupidity has made it easy for the big ones, the greedy ones, to lead them into war.

"If we can keep both sides fighting long enough—until they cannot fight any more, then maybe the little people will open their eyes. Then they can see that they have been the dupes of this international clique of greed—and we have its members in this country, too—who have tricked them into war.

"Then They'll Revolt."

"Maybe then they will revolt and free themselves and save themselves from being led into destruction again as soon as they have rested and recovered for a generation or so.

"When both nations finally collapse into internal dissolution, then the United States can play the rôle for which it has the strength and ability. It can help them both make a just peace and help them to begin to build again."

Ford characterized any suggestion that the United States will be attacked if Germany wins the present war as "pure nonsense, a hoax with the sole purpose of getting us into war."

"Nothing Is Purely Evil."

Seated in the lounge of the community house he built for the persons residing on his farm, Ford expounded on other of his philosophic views.

"Nothing that ever happens—to a nation or to a man—is purely evil," he contended. "Not even war.

"Even out of war some good comes. If this war that is raging now results in the exposure of the men behind it—so that the people will see what has happened to them and resolve they will never make war again—then it is worth what it cost."

Oil Pumping Station Blast Kills One; Two Are Injured

Livingston, Tex., Feb. 15 (AP).—Elmo Lawrence, 20 years old, was killed and two others critically burned in an explosion and fire at a crude oil pumping station 12 miles from this east Texas oil town today. J. M. Windham, filling station operator, said an oil pipeline burst and became ignited from a trash fire. A dozen men working at the station fled to safety.

HOOVER TALKS TONIGHT AT RALLY IN CHICAGO TO AID HUNGRY EUROPE

Former President Herbert Hoover will speak tonight in the Auditorium theater at a public rally in the campaign to provide food for starving noncombatants in the invaded European democracies. The meeting is sponsored by the committee on food for the small democracies. The address will be broadcast by radio station WBBM, starting at 9:30 p. m.

Hoover announced yesterday that in the course of his address he will read messages on the subject from Gen. John J. Pershing, former commander in chief of the A. E. F. in France, and Admiral William V. Pratt, former commander in chief of the United States fleet. He estimated that 37 million civilians in the small countries are experiencing or facing famine.

Chauncey McCormick, chairman of the midwest division of the committee, will preside at the rally. Other scheduled speakers are the Rev. Dr. John A. O'Brien of Northwestern university, Rabbi Charles E. Shulman of North Shore Congregation Israel, Dr. Preston Bradley of the Peoples church, and the Most Rev. Thomas P. Bona, Polish Roman Catholic monsignor.

DR. CONANT SAILS FOR ENGLAND ON SCIENCE MISSION

Harvard President Heads Roosevelt Group.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 15 (AP).—The United States, in a step toward closer collaboration with Great Britain in the development of new war weapons, today sent Dr. James B. Conant, president of Harvard university, on a mission to London to exchange scientific information of vital interest to the two nations.

Dr. J. B. Conant.

The "lend-lease" bill to aid Britain, of which Dr. Conant is a staunch supporter, would authorize President Roosevelt to furnish Britain with "defense information" as well as war supplies.

Sails on Excalibur.

Dr. Conant sailed from Jersey City this afternoon on the steamship Excalibur for Lisbon. He was accompanied by two research assistants, Frederick L. Hovde of Minnesota and Carroll L. Wilson of New York.

The White House, announcing Dr. Conant's acceptance of the post, said similar missions would be sent to Great Britain from time to time.

Defense officials here would not elaborate on the White House announcement, but it was expected that the mission would study all newly developed British offensive and defensive war equipment, including devices to curb night bombing, and check up on all inventions in the embryo stage.

Will Report to President.

As the new mission sailed, President Roosevelt looked forward to receiving, probably tomorrow, Harry L. Hopkins, his personal representative to London, who left San Juan, Puerto Rico, late today on the Yankee clipper, for New York. Hopkins is due to arrive in New York at 9:15 a. m. tomorrow. He indicated he would fly to Washington immediately on his arrival at New York.

Hopkins, who was in London for weeks conferring with British officials on all phases of the war, is expected to report to Mr. Roosevelt immediately and confer with John G. Winant, new ambassador to Great Britain, before the latter departs for London next week.

The President's dispatch of Dr. Conant abroad was regarded by government officials as a move to coordinate efforts of the two nations to develop new war implements.

Heretofore, the United States has exchanged scientific information with England and Canada only indirectly.

First Hand Information.

"First hand observation of recent English scientific research and experience," said the White House announcement, "is important for the prosecution of America's program of research on problems of national defense.

"As such collaboration proceeds, other American scientists will be sent from time to time to study different phases of British scientific research of interest to the United States and exchange information thru the medium of the national defense research committee.

"It is the duty of the national defense research committee to 'correlate and support scientific research on the mechanicisms and devices of warfare.' Dr. Conant's mission is essential to that function."

Defense Research Member.

Dr. Conant, who is a member of the defense research committee, headed by Dr. Vannevar Bush, will stay in England about a month. Then he and Wilson will return, leaving Hovde abroad as permanent secretary and liaison officer for future missions.

Hovde, a graduate of the University of Minnesota and a Rhodes scholar, is assistant to the president of the University of Rochester and professor of chemistry there. Wilson is a former assistant to President Karl Compton of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, and has been connected with the defense research committee for some time in a research capacity.

SMALL BRITISH BOATS ORDERED TO INSTALL WIRELESS APPARATUS

LONDON, Feb. 15 (AP).—The admiralty today ordered that all British ships under 1,600 tons carry wireless apparatus capable of receiving British Broadcasting corporation news reports. Ship crews also were ordered to stand "wireless watch" three times a day "to insure that news bulletins are received." Larger ships already have such facilities. Apparently the order will establish at least one way radio contact with ships ranging down to fishing boats. This would enable the British to give orders in such an emergency as attempted German invasion.

WOMAN FIGHTS OFF ATTACKER.

Miss Jessie Young, 301 South Bell avenue, fought off a youth who tried to attack her yesterday in an areaway near 2250 Jackson boulevard. Her screams frightened him away.

LAWYERS TO MAP ROLE IN NATIONAL DEFENSE WORK

Participation of lawyers in the national defense program will be discussed at the midwinter meeting of the house of delegates of the American Bar association in the Edgewater Beach hotel March 17 and 18. Jacob M. Lashly of St. Louis, Mo., president of the association, and Thomas B. Gay of Richmond, Va., chairman of the delegates, will conduct the sessions. A special committee has been working with government defense officials in Washington, D. C., since September and will report at the meeting. Legislative proposals concerning administrative procedure also will be considered.

NEW SKI PATROL TO MANEUVER IN WOODS TEN DAYS

Will Sleep in Open and Train in Snow.

BY CLAY GOWRAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Camp McCoy, Wis., Feb. 15.—Members of the army's new ski patrol, supplemented by a platoon of expert snowshoe men, will leave Camp McCoy tomorrow morning for a 10 day shakedown trip to a 30,000 acre tract of timberland 70 miles north of the camp. During the trip the ski troopers will test various types of zero weather sleeping bags and easily carried dehydrated rations.

Lieut. Col. Kirby Green, commander of the patrol, said today that, because of poor snow conditions in the vicinity of the camp, the troopers will make the trip to the timber tract by motor convoy. They will spend eight days in the timberland, using an abandoned CCC camp as a base, and then head back for Camp McCoy. Much of the time the troopers are expected to sleep in the open without tents.

Will Try Motorized Equipment.

The rough, hilly country in which the patrol will maneuver will give the troopers an excellent opportunity to experiment with their new motorized scouting toboggan and sled train hauled by a huge snow tractor capable of carrying tons of equipment and supplies over 20 foot drifts.

The toboggan and snow tractor are believed to be the answer to the problem of providing mechanized equipment able to keep up with the ski patrol. The toboggan, powered by a motorcycle engine, can carry three men across almost any terrain at 50 miles an hour.

The patrol will move out of Camp McCoy shortly after dawn Monday in an 80 vehicle convoy and head north. The convoy will reach the CCC camp, located in the timber country 10 miles north of Fairchild, Wis., late in the afternoon.

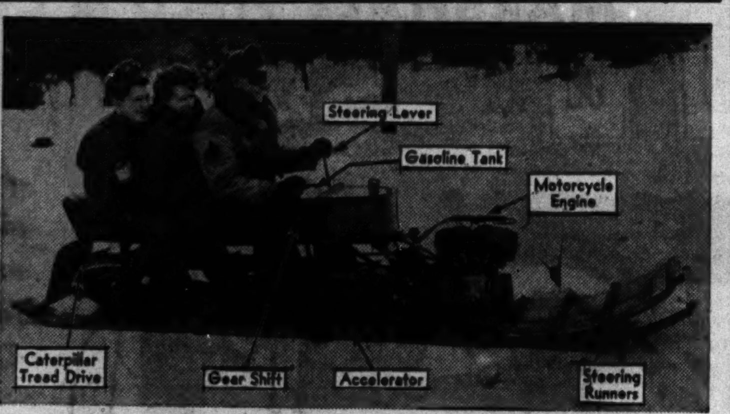
The 30,000 acre tract stretches north and east of the base camp. Col. Green, who inspected it early this week, said it is densely covered with small scrub oak and jack pine, affording an ideal site for the scouting maneuvers on which the patrol will concentrate.

Enemy on Snowshoes.

The snowshoe platoon will be designated as the enemy for the maneuvers. It will be the job of the ski patrol to try to slip thru the enemy lines on scouting assignments and other missions during both day and night sallies.

"We want to simulate exactly the conditions which the patrol would meet in the winter warfare for which it is intended," said Col. Green. "The men will be taught how to conceal themselves in the snow, taking advantage of their dead white clothing which gives them camouflage protection. They also will be taught how to use natural cover as they race thru the hilly country, and how to keep alive in subzero temperatures."

Army to Test Motorized Toboggan



The motorized scouting toboggan which has been developed for the army's new ski patrol will be used experimentally by the Camp McCoy, Wis., unit during 10 days maneuvers that will be started today.

FIRST OF B-24 BOMBERS IS ON WAY TO BRITAIN

San Diego, Cal., Feb. 15 (AP).—A four motored, 25 ton consolidated land bomber took off for the east coast at 6:25 p. m. [Chicago time] today. It was reported bound for Britain. Known as the B-24, the ship was the first of a large British order to leave for war service. The bombers are regarded by aircraft observers here as one of the most advanced weapons of destruction in the skyways today.

Performance details released by the company give the bomber's speed at 300 miles an hour, its range at 3,000 miles and its bomb load capacity as four tons.

The bomber is powered by four, 18 cylinder radial air cooled engines totaling 4,800 horse power, carries a crew of nine, has a wing spread of 110 feet and a 64 foot hull. No information was released on armament.

British and company officials would not tell route the bomber would not tell the route the bomber craft would fly nonstop to New York.

NEW AUSTRALIA TAX BILL WOULD ENDOW CHILDREN

MELBOURNE, Australia, Feb. 15.—Labor Minister H. E. Holt announced yesterday that a child endowment bill soon will be ready for parliament, which meets March 12. Every taxpayer, regardless of income, would be eligible to a weekly endowment of 5 shillings [about 80½ cents] for each child under 16 after the first.

The endowment would be financed by modifying the tax exemption of £150 Australian [about $484] for each child and imposing a 2 per cent tax on pay rolls. Taxpayers having one child would continue to receive the tax exemption.

10 ARMY SKIERS FIGHT WAY THRU ALASKA BLIZZARD

ANCHORAGE, Alaska, Feb. 15 (AP)—Ten of the United States army's top skiers reported themselves safe at an Alaska railroad section house today after a four day trek thru a blizzard.

The 10, testing equipment and methods for cold weather warfare, left Anchorage with five days' supplies, intending to make a two day trip thru mountain passes and then retrace their steps. Instead, delayed by the storm, they took four days to make the one way trip and sought safety last night in the section house, called Indian, Alaska.

SEN. NYE WARNS DICTATOR BILL PACKS DYNAMITE

He Denounces Willkie as a Betrayer.

Belleville, Ill., Feb. 15 [Special].—Senator Gerald P. Nye [R., N. D.] in a speech here tonight denounced President Roosevelt's dictator bill as an astounding grab for power and lashed Wendell Willkie, a leading supporter of the measure, as a betrayer of the Republican party.

Senator Nye.

The North Dakotan, who has vigorously opposed the bill in hearings before the senate foreign relations committee, delivered his address to an overflow crowd at a Lincoln day dinner held under auspices of the St. Clair county Republican committee.

"We would do well, when we undertake to pay tribute to the memory of Abraham Lincoln, to pay tribute to character in political parties and political leadership," Senator Nye asserted.

He Quotes Lincoln.

"Lincoln said: 'I am not bound to be right but I am bound to be true.' How different today is the leadership that has just announced that Presidential candidates should not be believed when they are launching campaign oratory.

"It was Wendell Willkie who on last Nov. 4 declared: 'Let us remember that dictatorship always begins by asking the people to give up some law or tradition for some special reason. The reason given may even seem logical. The motives behind it may be honorable and sincere. But if you give in to such reasons, little by little the structure of democracy is taken away from you without your realizing it.'

"But today, after his hop to England and back as an expert, Willkie has no fear of dictatorship and urges the largest grant of power to Roosevelt this country has ever known.

Willkie's October Stand.

"Last Oct. 30 Mr. Willkie said: 'On the basis of Roosevelt's past performance with pledges to the people, you may expect we will be at war by April, 1941, if he is elected.'

"And how does Mr. Willkie explain his attitude of now with his attitude then," He merely says: 'It was a bit of campaign oratory.'

"Willkie may sound like an endman in a minstrel show, but his attitude is not funny. It is cheap. He says in effect not to believe Presidential candidates. He betrays a party; he betrays the two party system; he helps in this drive to establish a dictatorship here that we might fight dictatorship abroad. He is far, far from affording the kind of leadership that Lincoln afforded—leadership of character and stability.

It's "Concealed Dynamite."

"The lend lease bill is a package of concealed dynamite—powers for the President to get us into the war. It is not a defense bill, it is not an aid-England bill. It is a bill to let the President do things that the law will not now permit him to do. Under it he would be empowered to give away our navy, or any part of it, to make war alliances, to go to war without declaring it. It is the most astounding grab for power of all times.

"Pass this bill and the next step is to spill a little American blood abroad. That will get us in quicker and in a fuller way.

"There has been a lot of history written since 1776. But pass this bill 1776 and the accomplishments of all these years will come to nothing. In 1776 we won divorcement from the hates and wars of Europe. Bill 1776 makes us a partner again in those hates and wars."

Draw Tickets for W-G-N Operetta

Drawing tickets yesterday for the W-G-N presentation of "I Pagliacci." Left to right: Henry Weber, Igor Gorin, and Marion Claire.

Marion Claire, feminine star of the Chicago Theater of the Air operetta series over W-G-N and the Mutual network, yesterday drew the first of the cards for tickets to "I Pagliacci," finale of the series at the Civic Opera house on Saturday evening, March 1.

The public drawing was made necessary by the demand for tickets which left W-G-N with requests for 15,048 tickets to the March 1 show. The opera house seats 3,600. The drawing was broadcast over W-G-N at 11 a. m. yesterday. Assisting Miss Claire were Henry Weber, musical director of W-G-N and the operettas, and Igor Gorin, Viennese baritone.

Miss Claire and Gorin were the stars of last night's Theater of the Air production, "The Countess Maritza," by Emmerich Kalman, which drew a capacity crowd to the main W-G-N audience studio and was broadcast thru W-G-N over the coast to coast Mutual network. Miss Claire was heard in the singing rôle of the countess and Luise Barclay in the speaking rôle; Gorin in the singing rôle of Count Tassilo and Bret Morrison in the speaking rôle, and Ruth Slater in the singing rôle of Manja and Donna Reade in the speaking rôle.

Mr. Weber asked all members of the radio audience to signify their appreciation of the operetta series by writing to W-G-N. William A. Bacher, producer of the series, has indicated that half a million letters will insure return of the operettas next fall.

U. OF C. DEFENSE STUDIES TOLD AT SPONSOR SESSION

Experts Describe Work to Citizen Board.

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

Five national defense activities of the University of Chicago were described yesterday at a luncheon of the citizens' board of sponsors of the university's 50th anniversary celebration. The meeting was held in the Chicago club.

Long range weather forecasting in modern warfare, military codes and ciphers and their relation to ancient languages, new intelligence tests including ways of finding men of essential qualities for airplane pilots, studies of poisons resulting from defense industrial speedup, and understanding of democratic institutions were the fields covered by five Midway experts.

Harper Acceptance Told.

Clarence R. Randall, chairman of the meeting, told the 300 business and civic leaders who attended that 50 years ago William Rainey Harper, then of Yale university, accepted his appointment as the founding president of the university. Randall introduced George A. Ranney as the newly appointed chairman of the university's board of sponsors. Thomas E. Donnelley and Bernard E. Sunny were named honorary co-chairmen of the board.

Dr. Horace R. Byers, secretary of the university's institute of meteorology, told the meeting that, in addition to experiments in long range weather forecasting, the institute is training meteorologists to meet demands of military and naval services.

Increased Dangers Described.

Dr. Eugene M. K. Geiling, professor of pharmacology, explained that dangers of occupational poisoning are increasing because of the increased use of lead in steel manufacturing.

"Military cryptography" was the phrase used by Dean Leon P. Smith to describe the science involved in secret military codes and ciphers.

Methods of selecting airplane pilots have been studied by Dr. Louis L. Thurstone, professor of psychology. He told of work which will be expanded thru a study of pilots at the Pensacola, Fla., airfield.

URGE DEFERMENT FOR STUDENTS OF MEDICAL WORK

Step Seen as Being in the Nation's Interest.

Representatives of three important medical association committees, at a meeting yesterday in the offices of the American Medical association, recommended that drafting into military service of bona fide medical students be deferred until they have received their degrees as doctors.

Ray Lyman Wilbur.

The conferees asserted that the five year preparedness program would require about 3,500 medical graduates to enter the army, navy, and public health services annually, and that it is imperative to keep education of physicians at the present levels if the men needed were to be available. The proposed deferment was referred to as "in the interest of the country."

Forwarded to Dykstra.

The recommendations were forwarded to Clarence A. Dykstra, director of selective service. An offer to verify the credentials of medical students was made by the American Medical association.

The conferring groups were two A. M. A. committees, one on medical preparedness and one from the council on medical education and hospitals, and a subcommittee on medical education from the office of the federal coördinator for health and welfare.

Earlier, in an address to the congress on dental health and licensure conducted by the American Dental association in the Stevens hotel, Dr. Ray Lyman Wilbur, president of Leland Stanford university and chairman of the A. M. A. council on medical education and hospitals, made a plea for government help in maintaining high professional standards in medicine and dentistry.

No Cheap Procedure, He Says.

"There must be no cheap procedure under which men of poor training acquire control over the lives of soldiers and citizens," he said. "New needs for health services must not be permitted to lower standards by speeding up training and licensure.

"There is no quick way to make a good physician or a good dentist. Individuals must grow in their mental preparation. They require multiple exposure to all sorts of information, to a variety of individuals, and, in the case of medicine and dentistry, to various manifestations of disease."

U. S. to Tap People's Savings in Drive for Defense Funds

Washington, D. C., Feb. 15 (AP).—The treasury, officials said today, is ready to start immediately on a campaign to tap the savings of children, housewives, and small salaried workers for a sizable part of the 9 billion dollars it must borrow in the next 12 months to finance the defense program.

All that is holding it up is final congressional approval of the bill to increase the federal debt limit to 65 billion dollars. Both house and senate have approved the measure, but the house must act on minor senate amendments.

Five Point Program.

If the house accepts these changes next week as expected, officials said, Secretary Morgenthau will announce a money raising plan calling for sale of:

1. Postal savings stamps in denominations of 10, 25, and 50 cents and $1. These will be a "national defense" series of the regular postal stamps now on sale thruout the country at all post offices.

2. Either postal or treasury "savings certificates" in denominations of $1 and up.

3. United States savings bonds, commonly known at "baby" bonds, in denominations of from $25 to $1,000. These bonds are sold at a 25 per cent discount [for example, a $25 bond sells for $18.75], but are redeemed by the treasury after 10 years for their full face amount. These are also sold at post offices.

4. A new type interest-bearing bond, possibly maturing in 40 years and bearing 2 per cent, or a little more, interest. The exact terms of this issue have not been settled.

5. Intermittent sale of regular $1,000 denomination treasury bonds, notes, and bills.

Oppose Sales Pressure.

Morgenthau has instructed his aids to avoid in the sales campaign "coercion or propaganda" of the type used in some communities for the sale of Liberty bonds in the world war.

The campaign, it was announced, will emphasize two ideas—helping national defense, and thrift.

As part of the "thrift" program, children and adults, alike, will be urged to make regular weekly or monthly purchases of whatever type of security best may fit their purses.

For instance, children may be urged to buy 10 cent stamps until they get 10 and can trade them in for a dollar certificate, and to repeat the process until they have enough certificates to buy a baby bond.

Others may be advised to start with baby bonds and accumulate them for trade-ins on bigger securities.

No Plans for Quotas.

At least, at first, the treasury plans no sales quotas for states or communities, because some officials believe that zeal to meet quotas caused some Liberty bond salesmen to use too much pressure in some areas.

The "four minute speaker" of Liberty bond days is out, too. In his place will be newspaper and radio appeals.

SUBPENA BOOKS OF WAUKEGAN POST IN DISPUTE

Subpenas were issued yesterday for five officials and employés of the Waukegan Post and office records of the newspaper dating back to its inception in September, 1939, for a deposition hearing before a notary public tomorrow. The subpenas were obtained by Frank T. Fowler, former Chicago alderman who resigned last month as secretary and treasurer of the Post. He said he seeks evidence to refute the claim of the company that he illegally issued a $1,292 company check to his son, Frank T. Fowler Jr., and daughter-in-law, Marie. A temporary injunction is in force preventing cashing of the check.

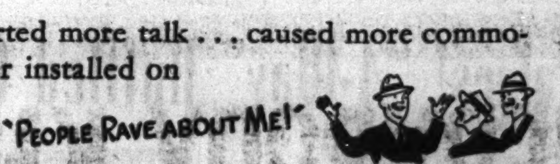
"LET'S GET ACQUAINTED!
I'm Chrysler's Fluid Drive!"

"Yes, I'm Fluid Drive and I've started more talk . . . caused more commotion . . . than any improvement ever installed on an automobile.



"If you see a man with a wild look in his eye, talking excitedly to his friends . . . chances are he's a Chrysler owner talking about me! It makes me blush a little . . .

"But the fact is: these things are true! I do just what these owners say I do . . . and that's why I think we should get acquainted.

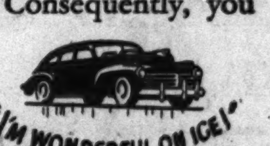
"What am I? Well, I'm a couple of fan-like discs rotating in a bath of oil. But nobody gives a darn about that!

"What sets people raving is what I do! They're amazed by what they don't have to do. I just take the work out of driving and make it simpler, easier, safer and smoother than ever before in history. And from the way people talk, that's SOMETHING!

"Take traffic lights . . . nuisance, aren't they? With me in your car, you just glide up to the light . . . let up on the gas and step on the brake. To start off again, you let up the brake and step on the gas! No need to touch clutch or gearshift at all!

"You can drive all day and never shift a gear! No wonder people are saying 'Why shift gears?'

"I'm so doggone gentle and smooth that with all the wallop of Chrysler's Spitfire engines, I never let you spin a wheel. Consequently, you can travel over ice like a sure-footed cat . . . and on hills, I give you a sure, safe control.



"If I needed anything more to make me perfect, I've got it in the Vacamatic transmission. It works like the variable-pitch propeller on a plane . . . to give you the power ratio you want when you want it! That means a 'thunderbolt' of power hooked up with economy!

"I'm yours to command! I'll give you all the time you like to test out my stuff. Just call up my boss, your Chrysler dealer, and tell him you want to meet me. Let's get together for a few minutes or a few hours before you spend your money on any car without me!"

RULES BUILDING GOODS EXEMPT FROM SALES TAX

Sellers to Contractors Upheld in Suit.

A decision holding that building contractors and materials dealers are not subject to the retailers' occupational tax, commonly known as the sales tax, was handed down yesterday by Judge Harry M. Fisher in Circuit court. The decision will make permanent a temporary injunction obtained two years ago by the Material Service corporation on the plea that collection of sales tax from firms selling to contractors was illegal.

Judge H. M. Fisher.

Since that time a contracting concern has intervened in the suit, and Judge Fisher's ruling will apply to all material men and contractors in the state. The decision is expected to cost the state several millions of dollars annually unless the state's appeal to the Illinois Supreme court is upheld.

Not Selling at Retail, He Rules.

Judge Fisher's decision stated that contractors are engaged in a "service occupation" and that persons so engaged are not within the purview of the act, altho they may employ personal property during the rendering of the service. The decision states also that material men, in selling equipment to contractors, "are not engaged in selling personal property at retail within the meaning of the act."

"Rule 6 of the department of finance," the decision concludes, "is not a correct interpretation of the law and is unenforceable. Neither plaintiff nor interveners are liable for occupational taxes."

Rule 6, which was added to the law to clear up ambiguity, held that persons selling material to contractors, subcontractors, or real estate owners for use in construction, erection, or repair of buildings, foundations, roads, or other improvements, are liable to tax with respect to their gross receipts on the sale of such material. It also held that contractors who furnish and install fixtures are making sales and must pay taxes on the selling price of such fixtures.

Rule Annulled Under Stelle.

The finance department last November, during the governorship of John Stelle, annulled Rule 6, an action which was followed by the prompt resignation of Samuel Herman, supervisor of rules and regulations for the department. At that time, also, Attorney General Cassidy advised that the order changing the rules be rescinded as illegal until the courts or legislature decided otherwise.

Last Jan. 23 Gov. Green restored Rule 6, pointing out that a suit on its legality was pending in Judge Fisher's court.

Informed of Judge Fisher's decision yesterday the governor said:

"It is still a matter for the courts. I am glad that the attorney general has announced that he will appeal the case to the higher courts."

In his decision Judge Fisher said: "The problems of deciding what occupations come within the taxable class under terms of the act has given no end of trouble to the department. It is continually shifting from one position to another. . . . The department added confusion to uncertainty by its persistence in treating the measure as if it were a sales tax—seeking to achieve indirectly that which cannot be done directly under the constitution of the state."

Validity of Rule Questioned.

The question of the validity of the annulment of the moot Rule 6, which was made by State Finance Director Al Carter in the Stelle régime, was brought before Judge Fisher last Nov. 15. At that time the judge held that the arbitrary revision by Carter was "unfortunate, indelicate, and unnecessary," and had no standing in court.

He made it plain, however, that he was not then deciding whether the rule was correctly interpreted, but solely on Carter's action. The interpretation of the act, he asserted, was a matter for his court and the state Supreme court.

"The folly of the rule [Carter's] is in the suspicion it creates," Judge Fisher said. "Suppose the court should decide that the material men are not reliable and the department head would say, 'that also is our opinion.' Such a condition might cost the state millions, and I would not want to carry such a responsibility without a review by the Supreme court."

The decision yesterday did not rule on refund of tax payments made by various firms under protest and believed to total between $400,000 and $500,000.

$38,695 STOLEN IN 3D FLORIDA JEWEL ROBBERY

Miami, Fla., Feb. 15 [Special].—The third robbery of winter tourists in southern Florida resort cities within a week was reported today to police of Miami Beach. Mr. and Mrs. N. F. Kriezvogel of New York said three men robbed them of jewelry valued at $38,575 and $120 in cash.

The holdup took place, Kriezvogel said, when he and his wife walked up the driveway of their hotel upon returning from a night club.

West Palm Beach police were informed yesterday that jewelry valued at $17,400 was stolen from the yacht Elsanbil, owned by Mr. and Mrs. William T. Price of Merion, Pa.

Last Saturday two masked bandits held up Edward S. Moore Sr., industrialist and turfman, formerly of Chicago, and his wife on a Miami street and robbed them of jewelry valued at more than $200,000 and $240 in cash.

YOUTH PLUNGES TO DEATH FROM FATHER'S OFFICE

Bruce Turnbull, 22 years old, a former student at Northwestern university, plunged to his death yesterday from the window of his father's law office on the 7th floor at 30 North La Salle street. The body landed on a small roof on the third floor level.

Bruce had left his father, Gerald Turnbull, in the building barber shop a few minutes before. Bruce's uncle, George Turnbull, who shares the law suite, said the young man went into the inner office and slammed the door. The uncle said he rushed into the office after him, saw the window was raised and noticed his nephew's body below.

George Turnbull said his nephew had been despondent since he left Northwestern a year ago because of poor grades. Recently Bruce had been in a sanitarium at Milwaukee. He returned to his home at 1508 Birchwood avenue on Friday. Surviving besides his father are his mother, two sisters and a brother.

THE THREE PLAGUES OF EUROPE.

Mr. Kalinin, chairman of the presidium of the supreme soviet of the Red dictatorship, had good reason to cable his "sincere congratulations" to Mr. Roosevelt on the occasion of the assumption of the third term. One of the third term benefits which had flown Russia's way was a removal of the moral embargo and a restoration of Stalin to the affections of the democracies. For a while it was thought that he hadn't done right in Finland, but what he later did in the Baltic states and to Poland and Rumania apparently corrected his error. Finland and the Hitler pact were forgiven.

Mr. Roosevelt, being felicitated by Mr. Kalinin, had an opportunity to respond, which he did by saying that he was "happy to reciprocate your good wishes." Again all is well in the relations between the dictatorship in Moscow and whatever you want to call the form of government growing up in Washington. These incidents may be noted at a time when the Washington police are endeavoring to learn how a man known as Gen. Walter G. Krivitsky came to his death. He was found shot thru the head in a hotel room.

Krivitsky was Samuel Ginsberg when years ago he entered the Russian GPU, took a political name, and was assigned a military rank. He had years of service and experience in European intrigue, and in the promotion and fomenting of revolution. Like many other Russians who retained a streak of elemental decency, he finally found his work revolting, the pretensions of the soviet régime hypocritical, the character of the rulers odious, and the life of the people degraded. He escaped to America and not only wrote an exposé of the Russian secret police, but gave valuable aid to the Dies committee.

Krivitsky was aware that he was in danger. He had seen how friends in high place in the official Russian life could disappear in Europe, and he had uncovered several killers in this country. His friends knew he expected to be killed and, altho the notes he left to his family would indicate that he took his own life, his intimates thought at first that he had been murdered and forged letters left in the room. It appears more probable, however, that he had been reduced to such a state of mind that he did away with himself in a moment of feeling that life was unendurable. One or the other theory may be the correct one. The weight of evidence would seem to indicate suicide. But Krivitsky, whether a suicide or a murdered man, is one among a million or more exhibits of the human wreckage caused by the great humanitarian reform which the Roosevelt administration has regarded with hope and admiration.

Not long ago another exhibit was furnished in the Mexico City suburb of Coyoacan, where the exiled Leon Trotsky, co-founder with Lenin of the communist dictatorship, and with him co-author of the Russian terror, was reached by Stalin's murderers and came to his end in the framework of violence within which he had lived. Before this successful attempt on his life in his fortified and guarded home, by a man who had built up an intimacy with the family and the guards, there had been an unsuccessful attempt made by an imposing force of armed killers, led by one of Mexico's artists who had come to distinction in the renaissance of which Diego Rivera is the best known exponent.

This young Siqueiros had been sent abroad to study art and, being a child of the Mexican revolution, he was easily molded by the communists in Europe. According to one commentator, his brilliant mind became a tool of the GPU, and when he returned to Mexico it was as an agent of the degenerate Third International, which "assigned him and his boys to unspeakable jobs." He and his machine gunners didn't succeed in killing Trotsky and his wife, but they did murder the young American Sheldon Harte, for which murder Siqueiros and his accomplices are in jail.

There is now fresh off the press a large work by a German communist GPU agent who conceals his identity for reasons which the death of Krivitsky sufficiently explain. Reputable refugees who know the man vouch for the credibility and accuracy of the work, "Out of the Night," a record of horrors, both Stalinite and Nazi, which can be recommended only to the tough mind. Among the details recorded by this refugee, the remorseful GPU agent, is a circumstantial account of the communist operations in the fleets and merchant marines of various countries, including the inside story of the Invergordon strike in the British fleet, Sept. 12, 1931; of the Rotterdam mutiny in the Dutch navy; and of the mutiny on the Dutch battleship De Zeven Provincien in the waters of northern Sumatra.

It may be observed in this connection that Attorney General Robert H. Jackson is returning to the subject of Harry Bridges, the revolutionary dictator who at times has tied Pacific shipping in port as tightly as if he were operating with a hundred blockading submarines. Mr. Bridges, who talks like a Red, acts like a Red, and says he isn't one, has been protected thus far by Mr. Roosevelt's cabinet members, and it may be that Mr. Jackson is on his trail now largely because this alien, for some extraordinary reason, didn't say nice things about the third term candidate.

Wherever and whenever a page is opened on any one of the dictatorships which have plagued the human race in Europe as it never has been plagued before, a record of horrors is exposed. The kinship of all of them, of Stalin and Hitler and Mussolini, is not only undeniable, but it is attested by their own acknowledgments in their treaties and agreements. Our government, which has declared an undeclared war against two of these odious institutions, finds some reason to have a fellowship with the third and worst of the three. The inconsistency is more than startling, it is alarming.

A German, whose character precluded any thought that he sympathized with Naziism, was asked how it had been possible to ensnare the German people. His reply was despairing: "Wir sind zu klein, wir können nichts machen"—we are too small, we can do nothing. People become too small when governments become too great.

THE NAZI TRADER.

Nazi methods of trade war are expected to make in peace an even greater problem than war itself. They were studied before the countries went to war and the British professed not to fear them. In November, 1938, R. S. Hudson, secretary of the overseas department, answering questions in the house of commons principally to explain why Great Britain had not withdrawn the most favored nation treatment from Germany as the United States had done, said that Britain's complaint was not that Germany was discriminating against British goods in Germany but that Germany by her methods was destroying trade thruout the world.

Mr. Hudson said that it was difficult, even then, to get exact information as to the way in which things were done in Germany, but that as near as "we can make out" Germany's hold on central and southeastern Europe depended upon German purchases at a price exceeding the world price. He explained that by these methods Germany obtained a stranglehold on other countries, but an uneconomic one and at the expense of its own people, because it raised the cost of living in Germany and was exporting goods at less than cost price. British advantages, he believed, "will result in our winning the fight."

Something more is known of the German methods now than Mr. Hudson professed to know then, and the more the German system is studied the more it appears to have resemblances to policies elsewhere, not excepting this country. The Nazis subsidize export and import by taking a governmental loss both ways. When they could trade thruout the world they did it. Where they can trade now they do it and when they can return to world trade they presumably will continue to do it. They buy for more than the world price and they sell for less, but they do not pass the excess on to the German consumer. They take it out of the pockets of the German who is allowed to make a profit and to save money, by borrowing from him and by taxing him.

This is all too simple and brief a description of the process and it is only a single item in the German economic system. But it is also a key item. Herr Schmidt, director of the Deutsche bank, took time out recently to explain to the foreign correspondents some of the so-called mysteries of the German financial position. The gist of his explanation was that the government permitted the accumulation of surpluses in privately conducted industries in order to sluice them off into government securities.

The Nazis think of a private enterpriser as a cow at pasture. Part of what he produces is taken in taxes. The surplus flows into the banks from which it is "silently" drawn into government securities. With control of the national income the scheme of subsidizing is economically possible. We have done the same thing, but not so silently. There is a great deal of noise about it here. Nevertheless the national debt and the federal taxes are being used to draw the national savings into the control of the national economy for subsidy.

The Nazis may not wholly despair of their future relations with Mr. Roosevelt's democracy. The New Deal reveals a conception of the new order. It is groping about or it may be, more shrewdly, gearing itself to the slow destruction of representative government, unable, where Herr Hitler was able, to destroy it with a stroke of the pen and a punch to the jaw.

Where there is economic family sympatico can there be a hostile mother-in-law?

OIL AND THE AXIS.

At the outbreak of the present war in Europe there was a great deal of speculation to the effect that oil supplies might be the Achilles heel of the axis powers. As the war progressed without shortages becoming apparent this speculation died down. It is revived by reports that Mussolini's spectacular breakdown in Africa was partly traceable to his inability to supply his planes and mechanized forces with fuel.

In this respect it may be noted that the Italians have been continuously engaged on two fronts, Albania and Libya, for a much longer period than any of Hitler's campaigns consumed. Most of the calculations of Germany's petroleum needs were on the assumption, since proved false, that this war was to be a continuous struggle like that of 1914-'18.

Heavy fighting in Poland ended in about three weeks, followed by several months during which the Nazis cut military consumption sharply and built up reserves by petroleum imports and synthetic manufacture. Scandinavia, the twin battles of Flanders and France, and the attempt to overwhelm Britain by day bombing were each followed by similar breathing spells. It is plausible that the first London bombing campaign, in particular, was delayed because Hitler had to renew his stores of aviation fuel.

He has now had the longest breathing spell of all—nearly six months—in which to build reserves for the expected all-out attack on Britain. It still seems possible that, while he can accumulate oil reserves for a major campaign of a month or six weeks, the end of that effort finds supplies dangerously depleted. If this is true, the British campaign must produce a quick victory or it will produce none.

WHAT ABOUT THE WORLD?
[Detroit News.]

The ability to learn by experience is said to be the correct measure of intelligence. They use it on rats, guinea pigs, and other small fauna, which in some cases gain considerable aptitude after a while in threading their way thru a maze.

But we begin to despair of the department of agriculture.

The foreign relations chief of the department, a Mr. Wheeler, has suggested that what agriculture now needs is a system of crop control applicable to the whole hemisphere. He would have an agreement with the Latin American producers of corn, wheat, and cotton, whereby shipments would be held down and the price raised on the exportable surplus.

Doesn't Mr. Wheeler remember what happened when this country cut down on cotton exports to raise the price? They began growing cotton in Brazil, and on such a scale and at such a price that the American grower has all but lost his foreign market.

Now Mr. Wheeler would do the same for Brazil and the rest of the hemisphere. Does he think this hemisphere is the only part of the world where cotton, corn, and wheat are grown? Let him bring Europe, Asia, Africa, and Australia into his scheme and we shall have a higher opinion of his intelligence.

THE PASSING OF A REPUBLIC

Chicago, Feb. 10.—As the occupant of the White House moved to set up a dictatorship on the ruins of the republic, I found myself wondering just what was happening more than 19 centuries ago when Octavianus drove thru his program to set up an empire on the ruins of the Roman republic and to become Caesar Augustus.

Naturally enough, I turned to Gibbon, an old favorite of mine, and his "Decline and Fall of the Roman Empire." Some of the things that I turned up seemed to me of very special significance and decidedly timely. I had some quotations typed to place them before some of my friends. Then the thought came to me that some of these quotations might perhaps be of some value to the editorial staff of The Chicago Tribune, which is waging such a splendid fight for the republic. With that thought in mind, I send along herewith a copy of the quotations from Gibbon to which I have referred.

I take the liberty of directing your attention particularly to the fourth quotation in the inclosure which shows, by actual example, the complete futility of this "time limit" fallacy that some of the compromising opponents of H. R. 1776 are attaching to it as something in the way of a cure.

Altho I do not think that you would misunderstand my position at all, I want the record to show that I do not think there is any real comparison between the two men. Octavianus, who became Caesar Augustus, was one of the truly great and competent executives and administrators of all time. I humbly tender to his magno imago my apologies for even momentarily seeming to compare Roosevelt to him.

"Their [the Romans] personal valor remained, but they no longer possessed that public courage which is nourished by the love of independence, the sense of national honor, the presense of danger, and the habit of command. They received laws and governors from the will of their sovereign, and trusted for their defense to a mercenary army. The posterity of their boldest leaders was contented with the rank of citizens and subjects. The most aspiring spirits resorted to the court or standard of the emperors; and the deserted provinces, deprived of political strength or union, insensibly sank into the languid indifference of private life." [Pages 70-71, Milman edition, Harper & Bros., 1854].

"The people of Rome, viewing, with a secret pleasure, the humiliation of the aristocracy, demanded only bread and public shows; and were supplied with both by the liberal hand of Augustus. The rich and polite Italians, who had almost universally embraced the philosophy of Epicurus, enjoyed the present blessings of ease and tranquility, and suffered not the pleasing dream to be interrupted by the memory of their old tumultuous freedom. With its power, the senate had lost its dignity; many of the most noble families were extinct. The republicans of spirit and ability had perished in the field of battle or in the proscription. The door of the assembly had been designedly left open for a mixed multitude of more than a thousand persons, who reflected disgrace upon their rank instead of deriving honor from it." [Page 74.]

"But whilst he [Augustus] thus restored the dignity, he destroyed the independence of the senate. The principles of a free constitution are irrecoverably lost when the legislative power is nominated by the executive." [Page 75.]

"Amidst this confusion of sentiments the answer of the senate was unanimous and decisive. They refused to accept the resignation of Augustus; they conjured him not to desert the republic which he had saved. After a decent resistance the crafty tyrant submitted to the orders of the senate; and consented to receive the government of the provinces, and the general command of the Roman armies, under the well known names of proconsul and imperator. But he would receive them only for 10 years. Even before the expiration of that period he hoped that the wounds of civil discord would be completely healed, and that the republic, restored to its pristine health and vigor, would no longer require the dangerous interposition of so extraordinary a magistrate. The memory of this comedy, repeated several times during the life of Augustus, was preserved to the last ages of the empire by the peculiar pomp with which the perpetual monarchs of Rome always solemnized the 10th years of their reign." [Pages 75 and 76.]

"Within six days after Augustus had been compelled to accept so very liberal a grant he resolved to gratify the pride of the senate by an easy sacrifice. He represented to them that they had enlarged his powers, even beyond that degree which might be required by the melancholy condition of the times. They had not permitted him to refuse the laborious command of the armies and the frontiers; but he must insist on being allowed to restore the more peaceful and secure provinces to the mild administration of the civil magistrate." [Page 78.]

"Altho Augustus considered a military force as the firmest foundation, he wisely rejected it as a very odious instrument of government. It was more agreeable to his temper, as well as to his policy, to reign under the venerable names of ancient magistracy, and artfully to collect, in his own person, all the scattered rays of civil jurisdiction. With this view, he permitted the senate to confer upon him, for his life, the powers of the consular and tribunitian offices, which were, in the same manner, continued to all his successors." [Page 79.]

"When all the various powers of executive government were committed to the imperial magistrate, the ordinary magistrates of the commonwealth languished in obscurity, without vigor, and almost without business. The names and forms of the ancient administration were preserved by Augustus with the most anxious care. The usual number of consuls, praetors, and tribunes were annually invested with their respective ensigns of office and continued to discharge some of their least important functions. Those honors still attracted the vain ambition of the Romans." [Page 81.]

"To resume, in a few words, the system of the imperial government as it was instituted by Augustus and maintained by those princes who understood their own interest and that of the people, it may be defined an absolute monarchy disguised by the forms of a commonwealth. The masters of the Roman world surrounded their throne with darkness, concealed their irresistible strength, and humbly professed themselves the accountable ministers of the senate, whose supreme decrees they dictated and obeyed." [Page 83.]

"The tender respect of Augustus for a free constitution which he had destroyed can only be explained by an attentive consideration of the character of that subtle tyrant." [Pages 86-87.]

"Augustus was sensible that mankind is governed by names; nor was he deceived in his expectation that the senate and people would submit to slavery, provided they were respectfully assured that they still enjoyed their ancient freedom. A feeble senate and enervated people cheerfully acquiesced in the pleasing illusion, as long as it was supported by the virtue or even by the prudence of the successors of Augustus." [Pages 87-88.]

DOUBLING THE PLEASURES OF THE TABLE.

Do human beings, like some animals, rechew their food? Well, not often. Now and then, however, a patient will complain that despite good health, most of a meal will "come back" periodically. To a moderate extent, this condition exists with a large number of individuals. The victim does not experience the slightest nausea or retching. A morsel will travel backward from the stomach, into the mouth, requiring the patient to again dispatch it on its way.

The custom, habit, or malady—as the case may be—is well known to medical authorities as "merycismus," or "rumination." It is similar to the normal behavior of certain fodder eating animals that are accustomed to take large quantities of coarse grass hastily. Nature has provided them with a rather complicated and sizable stomach, consisting of four compartments: the paunch, the honeycomb bag, the psalterium, and the rennet. The latter alone is comparable to the human "bread basket."

With cattle, for example, edibles pass into the first and second sacs, altho fluids and small particles enter all four. After a time, the nearest chambers empty upward into the mouth, whereupon the material is remasticated and swallowed, after it has been finely ground. Only when it arrives in the last room is it ready for digestion.

The disorder occurs far more frequently among those who are constitutionally nervous and, strange to relate, some physicians are included. Perhaps strain and apprehension also play important rôles. The inability of the gastric juice to handle the meal may be a part of the story, as many victims will state that the fragments do not taste sour. They have the same flavor as when originally ingested.

A clinical case which illustrates this disturbance exactly was seen in the out-patient department a few days ago. A man of 44 gave a history of ruminating for the last 20 years. He was somewhat below normal weight and appeared weak and depressed. As he put it, "A half hour after eating, food begins to reënter my mouth. I can identify every article by the taste." His loss of weight was accounted for by the fact that he recently became so disgusted with himself that he had been expectorating fully half of each menu. The process persisted for from one to two hours, whether he was walking on the street or sitting quietly at home.

Rice pudding—regardless of when it is taken—is the first to return; and smoked meats, fish, eggs, ham, pie, etc., follow in order. If he drinks a glass of beer this fluid reappears as bubbly as when he drank it. He says that he enjoys it the second time more than the first. He observes a persistent sense of fullness over the stomach area, altho there is no belching, as we would expect.

Apparently we are dealing with a nervous phenomenon—one that has little to do with digestion. A few cases respond to moderate doses of belladonna, which seems to have a soothing effect on the muscle of the gastric pouch. On the other hand, some victims show a deficiency of hydrochloric acid and correcting this lack has afforded relief.

One sufferer found that he could control the symptom by eating every two hours, consuming only a small amount at each period. In this way he was able to maintain nutrition. But, as he phrased it, "It's an awful nuisance to manage six snacks a day." He preferred to do this, however, rather than behave like a cow.

A PLEA FOR TOLERANCE.

Chicago, Feb. 2.—It was my privilege to go overseas with the 18th infantry and serve with it in France.

When I was a youth I spent many happy hours on the farms of the Mennonite farmers near the little town of Wellman, Ia.; later I taught in a little Mennonite school and lived for six months in one of their homes. They were lovely folks, honest, loyal, deeply religious, and sincere, a people where works not words showed to all their Christianity. Many traced their ancestry back to the early days of Pennsylvania, but you, no doubt, know their history. They, like the Quakers, hated war and violence.

When I came back from France, and traveled over most of northern Iowa, I found evidence that they had been shamefully treated in many instances and saw signs, "Only English Spoken Here," in many places.

I wonder if these and similar good people are to be perpetually, every 20 or more years, subjected to abuse, defilement, etc., by often irresponsible citizens, or can a campaign be now waged to show the value of this and similar nonmilitant groups to this great country of ours?

The west in particular owes much to these simple men of the soil, and perhaps a series of articles, telling by word and picture of the great work the Quakers, Mennonites, Shakers, etc., have done in the development of the west, in fighting slavery and intolerance, would stem the approaching tide of fanaticism that often leads to more violence.

DEMOCRACY DOOMED.

Rockford, Ill., Feb. 11.—Democracy, as we have known it, is definitely on the way out. Let us not kid ourselves on this score. It is on the way out because it cannot endure unless the majority of citizens are intelligent and have a sense of responsibility; unless they are willing to give as well as take; unless they consider the common welfare as well as their own. They must have patriotism. They must understand the fundamentals of economics. They must insist on office holders who have intelligence, character, and human sympathy.

We have such citizens but they are not in the majority. Most people, belonging to some pressure group, want all for themselves without regard for others. For instance, the only "sacrifice" that labor is willing to make is "more money for less work." Some other groups are in the same class.

We are being eased into Fascism fast. The pressure groups, led by Franklin D. Roosevelt, are the ones leading us into it. Roosevelt will go down in history as the great destroyer of American democracy.

J. P. GRIP.

FOR A NEGRO JUSTICE.

Chicago, Feb. 11.—I've wondered why Mr. Roosevelt has never thought of appointing a Negro to the Supreme court bench. If there is one who is deserving of a reward for loyalty, patriotism and contribution to his country it is the Negro. His qualifications will stand the acid test. He has never been a member of the K. K. K. and four million of his people gave 250 years of their labor free in developing this country. If that amount of labor at the present wage scale had to be paid for in dollars, just think of the staggering billions this great democracy owes.

THE WILLIAM JAMES CAMP.

Hanover, N. H., Feb. 1.—THE TRIBUNE of Jan. 24 contained an article on the William James camp at Sharon, Vt. I was somewhat amused at your interpretation of it as a ritzy CCC camp for sons of the rich. The boys who went to the camp from Dartmouth would scarcely fall into that category. There are criticisms that might be made of the camp, but hardly the one which appears in the lead of your story, since not one of these boys would be supported by his parents if he were not at the camp. I cannot speak with such confidence of the Harvard boys since I know only one of them. He is not "a scion of the wealthy Back Bay set," however.

I should think that THE TRIBUNE would be interested in breaking down the class distinction between the poor boy who has to go to the camp, and the rich boy who does not have to. The value which the camps have, it would seem to me, would be greatly increased if boys from all classes were engaged in work of general benefit to the country. There is room for debate concerning whether this is the most effective way of doing it. Perhaps the camp may warrant further investigation by your paper to present a more complete and accurate picture of what it is.

SLOT MACHINES IN EGYPT.

Bloomington, Ill., Feb. 4.—If X. Y. Z. had spent a little time in the restaurants and taverns in southern Illinois during the summer preceding the election he would have found as many slot machines as are there now. The present administration could hardly be expected to clean out all of the machines by this time that were left by the former administration especially since nearly half of the state police quit shortly after the election.

At THE TESTING LANE.

Chicago, Feb 11.—Every so often we read in the papers that the city is going to make a drive on motorists to get safety stickers. Today I arrived at the testing lane at Wilson avenue and the Outer drive at 3:05 p. m. and was told that they were not taking any more cars, as they closed the lane at 4 p. m.

There were 14 cars in the line waiting to be tested, and they test about one every two minutes. After some sarcastic remarks by the man evidently in charge, I was allowed to get in the line, and when my car had been tested and passed it was 3:44 p. m., and they had been turning cars away all this time and would not take any more cars even at the time I was thru. The men working at this lane just stood and made wisecracks at the motorists who drove up.

It seems time for the city to do something about these testing lanes and coöperate with the motorists if they expect motorists to coöperate with the city and have their cars tested when due for inspection.

HUSBAND'S ESTATE.

Wilmington, Del., Feb. 4.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—My husband passed away in my home in Illinois in September, 1939. I paid what few debts, including funeral expenses, he left. He left a will naming me full beneficiary and executor. I asked an attorney located in Illinois whether it was necessary to probate and he replies, "No, you have not enough property and no debts."

I have wondered since in case the will is lost [1] what proof would I have?

2. Is there very much expense connected with probate?

3. What is the correct thing to do? I expect to make my home here indefinitely.

4. I am out of employment right now.

2. No necessity for probate appears on the bare facts stated.

FACTS NOT CLEAR.

Chicago, Feb. 6.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—I have read some interesting answers to questions asked. My question is this: A man who possesses a United States ship master's license had to have an okay by a ward committeeman to operate [1] a city boat that requires a man with such a license.

Without the okay the boat cannot operate.

2. Does local politics come before the United States government and why does the possessor of such a license have to adhere to local politics to procure such a position?

1. We assume that by a city boat, you mean a boat belonging to the city.

2. We do not understand how the United States government is concerned.

COURTNEY JOINS LOESCH IN URGING PAROLE REFORM

New Bill Hailed as Curb on Repeaters.

BY GEORGE WRIGHT.

State's Attorney Thomas J. Courtney and Frank J. Loesch, a veteran crime fighter and president emeritus of the Chicago Crime commission, are among ardent supporters of the Ward-Rennick parole reform bill. The bill, now pending in the legislature, is expected to stop the repeated parole scandals if it passes and is signed by Gov. Green.

The Ward-Rennick bill, formerly known as the Ward-Schnackenberg bill, proposes to curtail the powers of the parole board to release convicts prematurely. Under it the responsibility for sentencing convicted felons would be given to judges of the Criminal court, who would fix a minimum and a maximum term.

Judges' Responsibility Cited.

"I am in favor of the bill because I believe it will do away with parole abuses," said Courtney, one of the original sponsors of the bill. "The responsibility for imposing proper sentences under this law will be placed directly on the shoulders of the various Criminal court judges. The sentences must be imposed in open court under the scrutiny of the press, the crime commission, and the public instead of behind closed doors at parole committee meetings.

"Under the Ward-Rennick bill the judges can make a proper discrimination between repeaters and first offenders, who show they can be salvaged. The system should work for the benefit of those who have no influence to help them before the pardon board and should work against the confirmed criminal, who often is released too soon and is allowed to return to prey on the honest and decent citizens."

Laws Effective in Other States.

Mr. Loesch, who started the ball rolling for parole reform after numerous parole scandals shook the state, said laws similar to the proposed one are working satisfactorily in other states.

"The opponents of the bill are sentimentalists," he said. "The present parole law has proved a failure, and has not fulfilled the promises that it would reform criminals and turn them back into civil life as honest men.

"The federal system of definite sentences has been working well for 150 years, and there is no reason why Illinois should not have the same system."

LOOTERS STEAL $15,000 IN GEMS IN KENILWORTH

Diamond jewelry valued at $15,000 vanished Thursday from the home of Frederick H. Smith at 205 Essex road, Kenilworth, it was disclosed last night. The jewelry was taken from a box in a drawer in the Smiths' bedroom while the family and the servants were away for the afternoon. Nothing else has been missed. Smith is an investment banker at 135 South La Salle street. Mrs. Smith discovered the loss upon returning home at dinner time. The loot included six rings, two brooches, a bar pin, three bracelets, and a watch. Chief Walter Yackel of the Kenilworth police said he found no evidence the thief had forced or broken a lock.

Attorney James A. O'Callaghan, Irish born attorney, who successfully undertook litigation which resulted in the payment of a $1,700 prize won in the Irish sweepstakes to two Chicago children, was awarded a $200 fee for his services yesterday by John F. Keeley, assistant to Probate Judge John F. O'Connell. O'Callaghan promptly converted the fee into two $100 government bonds and presented one to each of the doubly lucky youngsters, Ralph Ulivieri Jr., 7 years old, and his sister, Selene, 4, of 2028 De Kalb street. Their father bought the sweepstakes ticket in their names two years ago. Irish law prohibited sending the money to the children until they came of age, but O'Callaghan, by having the parents appointed guardians, secured payment.

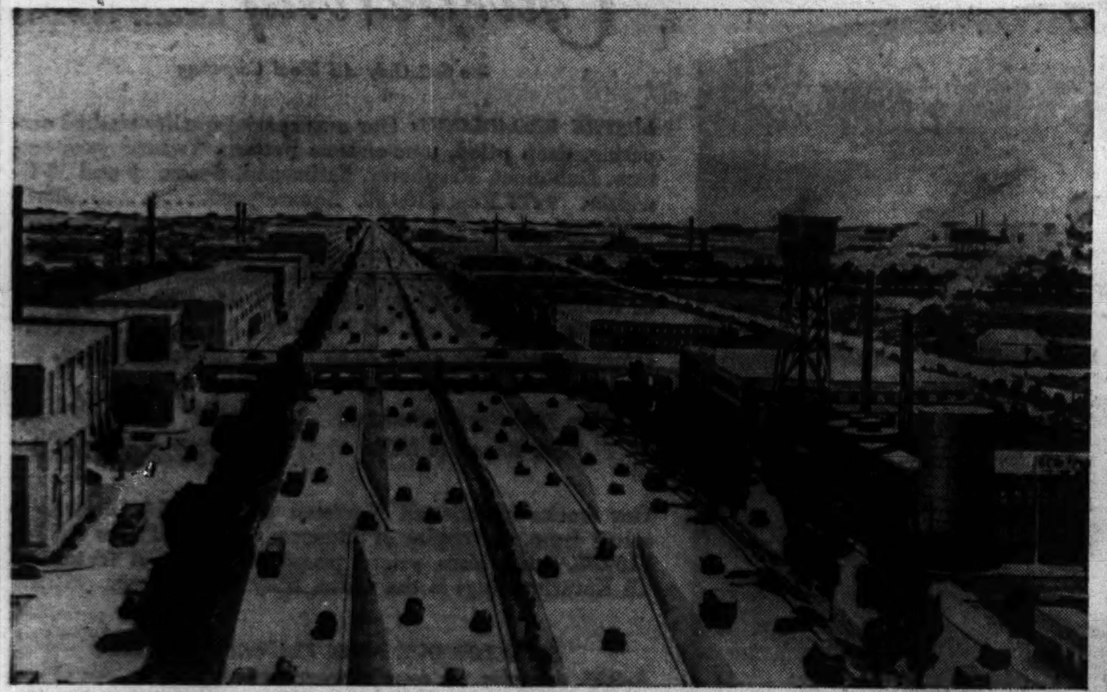
MOTORS—TRAFFIC—HIGHWAYS

Elevated Highway Across New Jersey



The New Jersey highway department has developed this conception of a 12 lane express highway on an earth embankment as its section of a 250 million dollar superhighway from Boston to Washington, D. C., proposed to the United States administrator of public roads as a defense project. The New Jersey section, about 60 miles long, would extend from Camden, across the Delaware river from Philadelphia, to north of Perth Amboy, on the outskirts of New York City. [Acme Photo.]

Thaws Lure Out Motorists, but Fail to Erase Ice on Highways

BY HAL FOUST.

The sun was bright last Sunday and motorists took to the highways in numbers remindful of spring. It was cheerful weather after two months of continual dark skies. The bright reflection from white fields and hillsides squinted motorists' eyes. But they liked it. It was pleasant to get away from the gray and black snow of city streets, the streets of smoke stained apartment houses and office buildings, the streets of work day routine travel.

Rivulets trickled in meadows. The sun, in its return from the south during the last eight weeks, has been getting warmer daily. Last Sunday it was thawing in the sun except where the whiteness of the snow reflected the heat.

A Thermal Problem.

An interesting demonstration of thermal characteristics of different colors was noted on pavements. Concrete exposed to the sun was warmer than the light colored patties of snow and ice on the slab. The slab was thawing these patties from the bottom like a chunk of butter melting in a frying pan. Darker pavements were apparently warmer than lighter colored pavements.

A pair of rabbits, as if playing tag, frisked from a roadside thicket. Startled on finding themselves on a highway, they scrambled back into the thicket. In the forest preserves, clumps of wet snow fell from oaks, rustling dead leaves and rattling dry twigs, giving the groves more animation than is due before the return of the migratory birds.

A Welcome Harbinger.

Of course it really wasn't spring. Not even the ground hog was fooled about that. The vernal equinox isn't due for another five weeks. Besides, children were ice skating on ponds and in parks, many children and a few adults sharing their exhilaration from momentum greater than exertion. It was winter sport with unbuttoned coats in healthful sunshine —like advertisments for Sun Valley, Idaho.

It was what Grandpa Foust back in Indiana used to call, with a popular mispronunciation of the month, a Feb'uary thaw, a name simply and precisely describing a weather condition peculiar to this month. In grandpa's day it meant that spring was nigh on the heels of winter, an occasion pleasant in itself and also pleasant as a harbinger. In this motorized era, the February thaws and also the March thaws have an unpleasant concommitant, as some automobile drivers were impressed last Sunday. Elevate rather than depress the superhighways, say the skid victims.

Melted snow froze on pavements as shadows were cast across the puddles with the approach of dusk. In the late afternoon there were places where wet pavements in the sun furnished good traction but led to patches of thin ice where the roadway was shaded by a building, a tree, or a trestle. There were numerous fenders bent at icy locations.

A Lesson for Engineers.

The ice lurking in subways under railroads and on the lower levels of highway grade separations afforded a simple object lesson for those who will design Chicago's superhighway system. Motorists whose fenders were bent last Sunday can appeal to the designers not to depress express pavements so they'll attract melting snow and not to build trestles for cross streets to cast shadows upon the express slab. Give the express traffic the upper level with uniform freezing and thawing; the local, slower traffic can better negotiate the lower levels.

More February thaws are coming up. They're swell for pleasure driving after winter's confinement. But watch out for ice spots. With weather depending upon the sun to push the mercury above 32 degrees, not even a good street department and an excellent highway department could keep sand and cinder trucks moving as fast as the quick freezes and quick thaws.

KEEP AUTOS OUT OF TRAFFIC JAMS, OFFICIAL URGES

BY HAL FOUST.

Philip Harrington, who is Mayor Kelly's commissioner of superhighways as well as his commissioner of subways, would discourage the constantly increasing use of private automobiles in congested areas. He would develop mass transportation facilities to wean motorists from their well evinced preference in vehicles.

"Primarily," Harrington said in an address last week before a dinner of the Western Society of Engineers, "overcrowding of the city's streets is due to excessive and uneconomical use of the private automobile for daily travel. While I am not an advocate of less ownership of automobiles, I do believe that their daily use should be curtailed.

Reminds of Wasteful Expense.

"Those of you who drive to and from your places of employment know that it is expensive and wasteful. The city's streets, in and near the loop and in and near the community business centers, are jammed day after day.

"No person who has studied this phase of the main problem is sanguine enough to believe that the situation can be corrected by regulatory regulation alone. Nor does it seem likely that telling an automobile owner what he ought to do with his own car will be effective. It can only be bettered by making public carriers more attractive and efficient.

An Appeal to Carriers.

"Dressing up equipment and improving local transportation to attract the man who is now using his own automobile is worth all the effort that can be put into it, because of the potential relief for traffic congestion it offers.

"Engineering studies on this point are illuminating. Only one-fifth as much street space is required to accommodate a man in a public carrier as he requires when he drives an automobile. During the rush hours he needs only one-twelfth as much street space."

As subway commissioner Harrington is struggling for betterments in elevated railways, streetcar, and bus service. As superhighway commissioner he is charged with building more pavement space, space on fast and safe pavements, so automobile owners can enjoy more efficient use of their favorite means of transportation in return for the heavy taxes they pay.

VOICE OF THE TRAFFIC

DANGEROUS SUBWAY.

Chicago, Feb. 12.—A very dangerous condition exists on Division street under the Belt Line railroad tracks, 4600 west. All winter long water has been seeping down from the overhead tracks and freezing weather has formed a veritable pitfall for the unwary motorist. The pavement is new and any motorist who wants to pass a street car at that point will find himself in a serious predicament if he is traveling faster that a walk at this point.

I think this condition requires immediate attention and that, pending permanent repairs, a warning sign by day and a red light by night should be installed before some motorist meets with a serious accident. THOR A. KLEIN.

SNOWBOUND.

Briggsville, Wis., Feb. 5.—It is now practically a week since the radio operator begged that something be done to the roads in Dick Tracy by Chester Gould. Nothing happened. Now Dick Tracy finds himself in difficulties because of these road conditions. Will you allow me a bet of 10 to 1 that Chester Gould had in mind Marquette county here when he introduced this incident of roads not properly taken care of, and that this episode in Dick Tracy took place specifically in Briggsville, Wis. FRANK B. KRAUS.

GARAGE SPACE SHRINKS.

Chicago, Feb. 11.—Apparently there was a time when the number of public garages was greater than it is now. Just recently my public garage was converted into a factory and this left a hundred or so autoists no alternative for a while but to be street parkers. Since so many are apartment house dwellers they could not build a garage in short order as many homeowners might do. Let there be garages directly attached to all apartment houses and multiple dwellings. E. P.

NEWS AND VIEWS

Folks who take to the highways in trailers are buying more expensive models than they did a few years ago, according to Richard M. McClure, secretary of the Trailer Coach Manufacturers Show, which will open its annual trailer show in Chicago on Feb. 22. McClure said that in 1940 there was a sharp decrease in call for models costing $500 or less and for small models 16 feet or less in length. While there was a drop of 5 per cent from 1939 in 1940 sales of the small trailers, there were increases in models costing above $500 running up to 347 per cent for those selling over $1,500.

With parking difficulties getting more troublesome each year, Nash is stressing the steering system installed in its 1941 models which makes cars easier to handle. The Nash Ambassador 600 is said to be able to make a complete turn in a circle the radius of which is only a few inches greater than the length of the car. It can turn in a circle in a street that is only 33 feet wide.

Emerson J. Poag, assistant general salesmanager for Dodge, said that he recently met at the factory a dentist of Conneaut, O., who has taken delivery on a new Dodge in every year since 1920—or a total of 22.

D. U. Bathrick, general salesmanager for Pontiac, comments that 900,000 persons bought used cars for the first time during 1940. During the same year 300,000 persons bought their first new car. Thus automobile ownership in 1940 expanded three times as fast among families in the lower income brackets as it did among families with incomes of more than $30 a week, he states.

DETROIT GROUP ASKS GREEN TO AID WAR ON C. I. O.

Says It Can't Meet Demand for Organizers.

BY JAMES DOHERTY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Miami, Fla., Feb. 15.—Organizing help was asked today by a Detroit, Mich., delegation of union automobile workers affiliated with the American Federation of Labor and engaged in a bitter contest with a rival union affiliated with the Congress of Industrial Organizations.

Irvan Cary.
[A. P. Photo.]

The petition was presented by Irvan Cary, president of the United Automobile Workers International union [A. F. of L.] who told of threats he said were made by R. J. Thomas, president of the United Automobile Workers [C. I. O.] and also a member of the National Defense commission advisory board. The executive council of the A. F. of L. is in session here and gave an audience today to Cary and his delegation.

Ford Plans Unaffected.

The plea for assistance had no bearing on plans of the A. F. of L. to organize the workers in the Ford Motor company plants, William Green, A. F. of L. president, declared. He said he will make an announcement later concerning Ford employés.

"This man Thomas, who was appointed to the defense commission board by Sidney Hillman of the C. I. O., deliberately called sympathetic strikes at plants engaged in defense production," Green told press representatives, and then asked Cary to give details.

"The trouble started at the Wilcox Rich plant in Saginaw, Mich.," Cary said. "We negotiated a closed shop agreement with the management. The C. I. O. then asked the labor board to order an election, but this was refused. They bought up one of our officials by hiring him as a C. I. O. organizer and then asked a rehearing from the labor board and again were turned down.

C. I. O. Members Dismissed.

"The few men who had joined the C. I. O. organization were dismissed because of the closed shop agreement. The C. I. O. called sympathetic strikes at plants in Detroit, Battle Creek, and Cleveland, owned by the same company.

"The strikes were ordered by Thomas. He and I were called to Washington for a hearing before the defense commission. In the presence of Joseph Keenan and John Owen of the defense commission's advisory board, Thomas said he was going to invade every plant where the A. F. of L. had contracts."

Cary told Green that he needed organizing help because he has received requests from dozens of cities and towns for aid in forming unions of workers who want A. F. of L. affiliation. He explained that his union hasn't the men or the facilities to meet all the demands and therefore it is asking the federation to send organizers into the field.

C. I. O. Strike Vote Opens Tomorrow.

A second independent union of International Harvester company employés voted yesterday to affiliate with the American Federation of Labor.

It is the Employés' Mutual association at the McCormick works, 2600 South Western avenue, which in the past claimed as members 5,000 of the plant's 7,000 workers. The independent union at the company's West Pullman plant, 1015 West 120th street, voted to become an A. F. of L. affiliate on Friday.

Both independent unions acted after the National Labor Relations board had ordered their disestablishment on the ground that they were dominated by the company.

Vote at Stormy Meeting.

The meeting of the McCormick works independent union in Pulaski hall was a stormy one, in which there were frequent interruptions and some heckling. Edward Hill, colored, presided. The organization is headed by A. Baldi, president, and Harry S. Bochucinski, executive secretary.

The Congress of Industrial Organization's Farm Equipment Workers, local 108, at the McCormick works, announced before the meeting that it would take a strike vote tomorrow.

The C. I. O. is asking exclusive bargaining rights for the plant's 7,000 workers, minimum wages of 75 cents an hour for men and 65 cents for women, seniority provisions, and job protection for workers called into the army. Elimination of piece work is also sought, according to Robert Travis, organizer.

Tractor Strike Parley Set.

Hope of a settlement of the C. I. O. strike that has thrown the 6,500 employés of the company's tractor plant at 2600 West 31st street out of work was seen when company and union officials announced that they will meet tomorrow in the Stevens hotel. David T. Roadley, federal conciliator, will meet with them.

Stewards of the C. I. O. union at the company's plant in Richmond, Ind., where 1,200 persons are employed, said they would meet today to decide when to call a strike already authorized by the union. The stewards said the company had refused union demands and made no counter offer. The company said it was still willing to negotiate.

A. F. of L. organizers were seeking to enlist the independent unions yesterday at the Harvester company's Rock Island and East Moline plants. At Milwaukee the independent union dissolved, and 1,200 of the 2,220 members voted to join a new independent, which is being organized nationally.

ACCEPT TERMS FOR PEACE IN ALLIS FACTORY

Union to Vote Tomorrow on Peace Pact.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 15 (AP).—An agreement to end the Allis-Chalmers strike which has tied up work on 45 million dollar's worth of army and navy orders for nearly four weeks was reached tonight by representatives of the management and the C. I. O. automobile workers.

Before work is resumed in the company's Milwaukee plant, the agreement must be approved by the union's members to whom it will be submitted Monday.

It was indicated that the agreement settled some of the issues between the company and the union, but left others open. Chief point of dispute has been the union's demand for a closed shop in the plant employing 9,000.

Hope for Tuesday Opening.

The agreement was drafted by William S. Knudsen and Sidney Hillman, director and associate director of the office for production management, who expressed hope it would result in reopening of the plant on Tuesday.

Hillman said the O. P. M. had submitted a proposition to the management and to the C. I. O. which, among other things, recommended that the management open the plant immediately and that the union send its men back to work and that unsettled issues be negotiated later.

Hillman added that all participants agreed not to divulge details of the settlement proposal until the union representatives could present it to the membership.

Representatives of both sides left tonight for Milwaukee.

Order Quick Settlement.

The office of production management in Washington has instructed federal and state mediators to expedite settlement of a strike of 3,000 workers in the Motor Wheel corporation, Lansing, Mich. The firm has orders for airplane propellers and shell castings worth $1,400,000. Other tieups include:

BRIDGEVILLE, PA.—Four hundred strikers dismissed by Vanadium Corporation of America after four day walkout.

YOUNGSTOWN, O. — Output of Youngstown Sheet & Tube Co. held up three days by a strike of 1,100 open hearth workers. C. I. O. votes to return, but furnaces cannot be heated before Monday. This means a five day tie-up.

Block Navy Contract.

CARTERET, N. J.—C. I. O. Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers asks union agreement to end strike of 800 workers in Foster Wheeler plant, which has navy contracts worth 15 million dollars.

CLEVELAND, O.—Extended strike of 600 C. I. O. workers delays production of Standard Tool company.

LACKAWANNA, N. Y.—Two plants of Bethlehem Steel company shut down and three others on reduced schedules as C. I. O. supports workers' demands for union recognition, but says walkouts are spontaneous.

CINCINNATI, O.—Eight hundred Powell Valve company employés enter fifth day of strike. Plant has subcontracts for defense materials.

KENOSHA, WIS.—Nash C. I. O. workers authorize executive board to call a strike vote meeting over reopening of Racine plant where a 3 million dollar war department order for 15,000 one ton trailers is awaiting production. The C. I. O. demands that the company employ 1,000 men who live in Racine and formerly worked for Nash, but who now commute to the Kenosha Nash plant and replace these men with idle unionists in Kenosha.

U. S. STOCKING UP ON MEDICINES FOR DEFENSE USE

Washington, D. C., Feb. 15 (AP).—Surgeon General Thomas Parran said today the United States was building up large stocks of vital medicines as part of the national defense program.

Reserve stocks of opium sufficient to meet a three year demand have been acquired thru the coöperation of commercial importers, Parran said.

Substantial supplies of other medicinal materials, including cinchona bark from which quinine is made and quinine sulfate, also have been acquired.

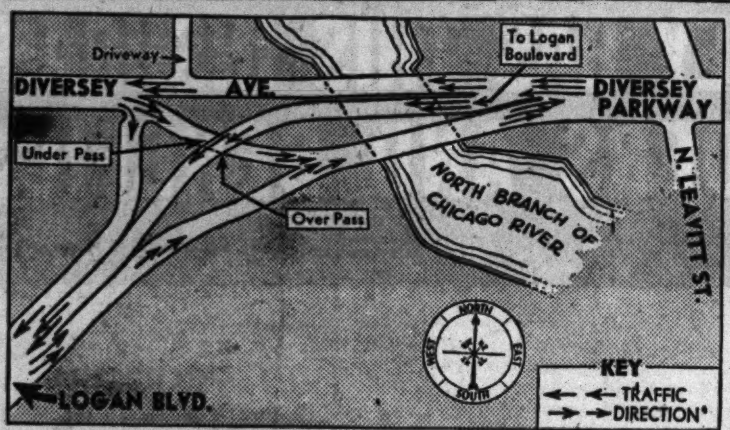
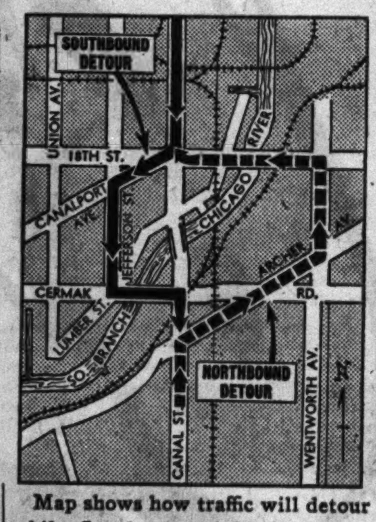
Diversey Bottleneck to Be Broken



Whereas Diversey parkway and Logan boulevard traffic now is crowded into a roadway space of 19 feet in crossing the north branch of the Chicago river, the two fixed bridges soon to be built there will have a total width of 82 feet for automobiles.

Black rectangles locate bridges to be built.



Map shows how traffic will detour while Canal street bridge is under construction.

Smallest of Triplets Born on Valentine's Day Dies

McKinney, Tex., Feb. 15 (AP).—The smallest of the St. Valentine's day triplets born to Mrs. John Wesley Smith died today the child, a boy, weighed less than four pounds. The other two babies, a boy and a girl, were reported to be progressing favorably.

PLANS COMPLETE FOR NEW BRIDGE AT CANAL STREET

Spans at Halsted and at Diversey Drafted.

Plans have been completed for the new Canal street bridge over the south branch of the Chicago river and bids for construction are expected to be taken in April, it was announced yesterday.

Plans for a new bridge across the north branch of the river at North Halsted street are two-thirds completed and those for the new Diversey avenue bridge, also over the north branch, are about one-quarter completed. Work is to start shortly on plans for the East 130th street bridge over the Calumet river.

Arrange for Detours.

The new Canal street bridge will cost approximately $1,455,000 and will be paid for from the city's share of motor fuel tax funds. It is expected to take about a year and a half to build. During construction south bound traffic will be detoured via Canalport avenue, Jefferson street, and Cermak road, and by way of Archer avenue, Wentworth avenue, and 18th street for north bound traffic.

The bridge will replace a rolling lift bridge which was built in 1903. The present bridge provides a 22 foot roadway which is regarded as inadequate for heavy truck traffic in Canal street. The new bridge is to have a clear four lane roadway, 44 feet wide with two sidewalks each eight feet wide. Its traffic capacity will be more than double that of the present structure.

The present bridge provides a channel of about 110 feet in the river and a vertical clearance of 16.5 feet. The new bridge is to provide a channel of 171 feet and a vertical clearance of 21 feet for a width of 92 feet and 16.5 feet for a width of 140 feet.

Replaces Rolling Bridge.

When plans for the proposed North Halsted street bridge to cost about $1,250,000 are completed they will be submitted to the state highway department for approval.

The Halsted street bridge is to be situated just north of Chicago avenue and will replace a rolling lift bridge built in 1897. The present bridge has a roadway width of 31 feet and two six foot sidewalks. The proposed bridge is to have a 44 foot wide, four lane roadway and two eight foot sidewalks.

Will Ease Traffic Snarls.

The proposed $800,000 Diversey avenue bridge is actually planned to be two fixed bridges, one connecting Diversey on the east side of the river with Diversey on the west side and the other connecting Diversey on the east side with Logan boulevard on the west. The two bridges will also provide a crossover to eliminate traffic difficulties at the west end of the present bridge where Logan boulevard joins Diversey at an angle.

The new structure will replace a 44 year old swing bridge. The present bridge has a 19 foot roadway. The two new spans will have a total of 82 feet in roadway width.

River traffic north of Fullerton avenue has decreased to such an extent that it is regarded as impractical to construct a new bascule type bridge at Diversey.

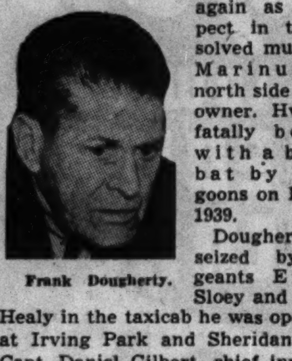
SUSPECT IN GOON MURDER SEIZED FOR SECOND QUIZ

On Duty as Picket When Garage Man Was Slain.

Frank Dougherty, 43 years old, was arrested yesterday for questioning again as a suspect in the unsolved murder of Marinus Hvid, north side garage owner. Hvid was fatally beaten with a baseball bat by labor goons on Dec. 27, 1939.



Frank Dougherty.

Dougherty was seized by Sergeants Ernest Sloey and Joseph Healy in the taxicab he was operating at Irving Park and Sheridan roads. Capt. Daniel Gilbert, chief investigator for the state's attorney's office, said Dougherty's fingerprints tallied with those of a man who served 12 years in the federal penitentiary at Leavenworth, Kas., after a manslaughter conviction in Washington, D. C., in 1915.

Involved in 1932 Shooting.

Dougherty denied he was the man involved, and his fingerprints were sent back to Washington for further verification. He admitted that in November, 1932, he shot his brother-in-law, Robert Grauer, and later was sentenced to a year in the Bridewell for assault with intent to commit murder.

After Dougherty's arrest yesterday, police went to his home at 4032 Kenmore avenue where, they said, they found a blackjack and an 18 inch length of rubber hose.

Hvid Slain in Labor Row.

Hvid was slain during a dispute with the Affiliated Garages of Chicago, a garage owner's association, and the Auto Livery Chauffeurs', Taxicab Drivers' and Garage Helpers' union. The union members had been picketing his garage at 3514 North Halsted street.

Dougherty was one of the pickets on duty at the garage at the time Hvid was slugged several blocks away. He was questioned at the time of the killing and was charged with assault. The charge later was dismissed.

HOUSE AFIRE, HER FIRST THOUGHT'S WATER! WATER!

Mrs. Othello Howlett, 40 years old, colored, was down town shopping yesterday when she encountered a friend who told her there had been a fire in her home at 2343 Lake street. It is a recognized procedure to fight fire with water, but there is no explanation of why Mrs. Howlett found it necessary to react to the news by casting herself into the river from the Michigan avenue bridge.

Brooks Richardson, 22, colored, 352 East 58th street, saw her floundering in the water. He ran to the lower level, jumped in, and rescued her. She was taken to County hospital to dry out. A note in her pocketbook, addressed to her husband, Louis, said the fire was "more than I can stand" and wished him well with the poolroom and furniture store he operates.

Howlett said it wasn't a big enough fire for his wife to go jumping in rivers.

SAVES SELF WITH TEETH WHEN CAR BREAKS THRU ICE

Laconia, N. H., Feb 15 (AP).—Two automobiles broke thru ice of New Hampshire lakes today with a loss of at least two lives.

Only one of the dead, George Lambertson, 65 years old, of New Durham, was identified. He was in a car that plunged to the bottom of Merry Meeting lake near his home. The other automobile dropped into Winnisquam lake near Laconia in 20 feet of water. How many persons it held and who they were was unknown. A diver will descend tomorrow.

Lambertson's companion, Gardner Hotchkiss, 35, saved himself—with his teeth. Too numb to seize with his hands a coat extended to him by a bystander, Hotchkiss clamped it with his teeth and was drawn to safety.

HOLD 3 IN TRAIN WRECKING PLOT; BONDS $150,000

Lack of Tools Foiled Trio, FBI Says.

Sacramento, Cal., Feb. 15 (AP).—Failure of three young men to wreck a Southern Pacific passenger train was credited by a federal bureau of investigation agent today to lack of adequate tools which slowed their nocturnal work of destruction.

The three—Kenneth A. Lennon, 20 years old; Bernal C. Carter, 20, and Owen McHenry, 33, all bowling alley pin setters, were held today by United States Commissioner Adellia McCabe in bond of $50,000 each.

The chief of the FBI in San Francisco, Nat J. L. Pieper, said the trio confessed an attempt to derail a Southern Pacific train, 60 miles northeast of Sacramento Feb. 8.

Face 52 Years in Prison.

A grand jury will be asked to indict them on four charges—train wrecking, damaging a national defense utility, extortion, and conspiracy. Their conviction could bring sentences aggregating 52 years.

Testifying at the arraignment of the three accused men, Michael Cassidy, special agent for the FBI, said they had pulled 44 spikes from ties and unscrewed bolts holding rails together. But, as dawn approached, "they returned to Sacramento to obtain hydraulic jacks and chains for a future effort to spread tracks."

Four spikes remained to hold the rails in place and this probably prevented a freight train wreck. Track walkers discovered the loosened rail before the westbound Pacific Limited was due.

Cassidy told of an extortion letter which he said Lennon had written demanding that the railroad pay $50,000 or have its road sabotaged. The letter stated that "consideration" was being given to five utilities as prospective victims, and that the Southern Pacific was "first on the list."

Tells of Kidnap Plan.

Fritz Kaminsky, assistant police chief of Sacramento, said the prisoners told of discussing new extortion and train wrecking plots. They even considered kidnaping an unrevealed wealthy Sacramento man, and sending an extortion note to the Pacific Gas and Electric company threatening to dynamite transformers if they were not paid, Kaminsky said.

Daniel O'Connell, Southern Pacific investigator, testified the railroad had been transporting defense materials. This testimony provides the basis for United States Attorney Emmet J. Seawell's charge of injuring a defense utility. Conviction for such a crime would call for a maximum sentence of 10 years. Seawell said the train wrecking and defense injury charges were the first such complaints ever filed by federal authorities.

Parolee Slain in Chase Is Identified as Bandit

Stanley Konkel, a paroled convict who was shot to death Friday night while trying to escape from Detective Joseph Ponicki, was identified at the county morgue yesterday as a bandit. Miss Gladys Sieben, 26 years old, said he robbed her of $67 and two diamond rings Thursday in a tavern at 1655 North Damen avenue, where she works. Konkel, who was 31 years old, tried to escape after being arrested as he was leaving the home of his sister at 825 North Kolin avenue.

NORWOOD PARK VOTERS FAVOR JOINING CHICAGO

Voters of Norwood Park township voted by a narrow margin in an advisory election yesterday in favor of annexation to Chicago. The vote for annexation was 243; the vote against, 237. There were 600 eligible voters.

If the vote is approved by County Judge Edmund K. Jarecki, who ordered the election in response to a petition filed by residents last Sept. 11, and is then approved by the Chicago city council, the area will automatically be annexed without further action.

PRIEST IS INJURED MYSTERIOUSLY; 3 FIND HIM, VANISH

Policemen of the central district were striving last night to learn how the Rev. Alphonse Kozlowski, 50 years old, assistant pastor of St. Michael's Roman Catholic church at 1644 Wabansia avenue, suffered serious head injuries yesterday.

Father Kozlowski was carried unconscious into St. Peter's church at Polk and Clark streets by three men. While members of the church were trying to revive the priest the three men disappeared. It is believed Father Kozlowski was struck by an automobile. At the Alexian Brothers hospital it was said he was too weak to be questioned.

CHAIRMEN MEET TO DISCUSS 1941 MUSIC FESTIVAL

Tentative Schedule Made for Preliminaries.

Fifty civic leaders and musicians representing communities coöperating in the 12th annual Chicagoland Music Festival attended the midwinter dinner of preliminary festival chairmen last night in the Stevens hotel. The dinner was preceded by a business meeting in Tribune Tower.

Prof. Albert P. Stewart, Purdue festival leader.

The 1941 Chicagoland Music Festival will be held Saturday night, Aug. 16, in Soldiers' field.

Wide Area Represented.

Attending yesterday's sessions were community leaders representing an area bounded on the north by Racine, Wis., on the south by Champaign, Ill., on the west by Cedar Rapids, Ia., and on the east by La Fayette, Ind. In separate talks at the dinner last night the representatives disclosed that only half of them are directly allied with the music profession. The others are doctors, lawyers, judges, merchants, and craftsmen who have for many years supported local festivals as preliminaries to the Chicagoland festival.

"I have never missed a Chicagoland festival," said Miss Florence Smith of Michigan City, Ind. "Each year as I sit in Soldiers' field I feel that America is being serenaded." Miss Smith came to Chicago as a representative of the International Friendship Gardens in Michigan City where, she hopes, a preliminary festival will be held next summer.

Service to Music Praised.

"THE TRIBUNE is rendering an invaluable service to music as a whole by sponsoring the festival," said Prof. Albert P. Stewart, who stages the preliminary festival at Purdue university each summer.

The history of the Chicagoland festivals was traced by Philip Maxwell of the Tribune staff, who has directed them since they began 12 years ago. Maxwell recalled the highlights of each of the 11 festivals and reported on the success of each. He said the festivals have entertained more than a million people.

"The festival represents the truest example of democracy in the world today," he said. "It is a living, breathing thing, bigger than its sponsor or any one connected with it. It will live long after we who work so hard to make it a success are gone."

Tentative Schedule Made.

A tentative schedule for some of the festivals to be held next summer thruout the middle west as preliminaries to the Chicagoland festival was announced as follows:

Forest Park Music Festival, Chicago, June 4 or 11; Illinois Valley Music festival, Peru, Ill., June 12; Central Illinois Music festival, Urbana, Ill., June 24 and 25; Calumet District Music festival, Hammond, Ind., July 26; Purdue University Music festival, La Fayette, Ind., July 26; Mississippi Valley Music festival, East Moline, Ill., Aug. 3; Greater South Side Music festival, Chicago, Aug. 8; Lake View Music festival, Chicago, Aug. 9, and Greater West Side Music festival, Chicago, Aug. 10.

SEEK MORE FUNDS FOR PUPILS WITH HEART DISEASE

Chicago Schools Act to Get State Aid.

Chicago public school officials are drafting legislation to provide care for the mounting number of pupils in Chicago's schools for crippled children who are afflicted with heart disease, it was announced yesterday by Major Frank L. Beals, assistant superintendent of schools.

Maj. F. L. Beals.

Major Beals conferred here last week with J. Roy Byerley of Springfield, assistant state superintendent of public instruction, who will assist in writing the new bill. In an address before the Chicago Special Teachers club last Thursday, Byerley stressed the need for legislation to broaden the scope of the present state law for the schooling of crippled children to include cardiac cases.

Chicago Began Years Ago.

"The Chicago schools for crippled children made accommodations for cardiac cases many years ago because pupils so afflicted were almost as numerous as those with paralysis and poliomyelitis," Maj. Beals said. "Now, however, heart cases lead all others in Chicago's four elementary schools and two high schools for handicapped children. There has been an amazing increase since 1938."

Fifteen years ago, the superintendent's figures show, 13 per cent of the pupils in Chicago's schools for crippled children were afflicted with heart disease. The percentage had risen to 27.3 by 1938. Today it stands at 38 per cent.

Paralysis cripples have increased from 19 per cent in 1925 to 24.2 per cent today. On the other hand, the number of poliomyelitis cases decreased from 35 per cent 15 years ago to 16.8 per cent today.

Saving Would Help Others.

"In providing additional state funds for the care of cardiac cases, the new legislation would release money spent out of the school budget for this purpose," Maj. Beals said. "This would provide for the care of more children afflicted with other diseases as well as add to the equipment for cardiac cases."

The total appropriation for the last two years for educating the crippled children of Illinois was $1,098,000, Byerley said. Of this amount Chicago received $825,000 and downstate school districts $273,000.

The new legislation will be supported by the Chicago Heart association, according to Mrs. Ruth Pearce McEldowney, executive director of the organization.

"We have proof," she said, "that more than 60 per cent of those afflicted with cardiac diseases live normal lives if treatment is applied during their youth."

Chicago's elementary schools for crippled children are: Christopher, 51st street and Artesian avenue; Gompers, 12302 State street; Jahn, 3149 North Wolcott avenue, and Spalding, 1628 Washington boulevard. High schools are: Morrill branch of Lindblom High, 6011 South Rockwell street, and Sabin branch of Tuley High, 2216 Hirsch street. Enrollment averages 2,000 pupils a year.

HAIL SYMPHONY FOR ITS SERVICE TO MILWAUKEE

Milwaukee, Wis., Feb. 15.—The Chicago symphony orchestra, which Milwaukee almost as much as Chicago claims as its own, will receive the official felicitations of this city during its concert at the Pabst theater Monday night.

The symphony orchestra has made the chief contribution to Milwaukee's musical life since Theodore Thomas brought his orchestra here in 1884 for a music festival staged by the Arion Musical club in Exposition hall. Since 1915 there has been a yearly series of 10 concerts here by the symphony orchestra. Dr. Frederick Stock, who succeeded Mr. Thomas, is no less beloved in Milwaukee than his distinguished predecessor.

Dr. Stock will halt his concert Monday night to receive an official scroll expressing the gratitude and appreciation of Milwaukee and tendering the orchestra and its director this city's best wishes for its golden anniversary which is being celebrated thruout the year.

Milwaukee's congratulations are expressed in a resolution adopted by the city council several weeks ago. The resolution, introduced by Alderman Stormy Thompson, was approved without objection. Numerous aldermen, Socialist as well as nonpartisan, rose for a friendly word of appreciation.

Edward L. Ryerson Jr., Chicago, will receive the orchestra's illuminated scroll from Mayor Carl Zeidler just before the orchestra enters the second half of its program. Then Dr. Stock will receive his personal honor from the city.

There will be a further evidence of accord between the music lovers of the two cities when the orchestra plays two symphonic impressions by Milwaukee's Carl Eppert, which have just received the orchestra's golden jubilee prize.

A United Medical Service enters its ninth year ... more fully complete and modern in all of its facilities ... more widely experienced ... more efficiently staffed ... more adequately prepared to provide friendly, competent medical and surgical care ... at still lower costs.

When this determined and courageous attack on the high cost of medical care was put into operation in January, 1933, it attracted nation-wide attention. The big question in many minds was "Could the prevailing high costs of medical care be reduced?" A nation-wide survey into the high cost of medical care by a group of outstanding medical and lay individuals had just been completed. The results of this investigation prompted assertions by prominent persons that "high medical costs were irreducible." It was also pointed out that here was a service which many private, charitable and philanthropic organizations, including leaders in the medical profession, considered necessary to public welfare ... yet had been unable to provide. There were no doubts, however, in the minds of the originators and organizers of this new and practical idea in medical economics. They knew from a previous experience in a highly specialized field of medicine that medical costs could be substantially reduced and made available to persons of limited income within their ability to pay. The past eight years have demonstrated conclusively that the founders and their associates were right. For during this period responsible medical care in all its branches has been provided at low cost to almost 200,000 patients for almost every ailment known to medical science. Of this number sixty to seventy per cent came through the recommendations of others. Over 25,000 patients were referred by approximately 5,000 physicians in private practice for X-ray examinations, medical laboratory tests and other diagnostic services. Facilities occupy four entire floors in the Finchley Building, one of Chicago's most modern office buildings. Members of its present medical staff and associated physicians are graduates of prominent medical schools and hospitals, with years of special training and experience in all departments of medicine. To support this medical knowledge one of the finest X-ray Departments in the middle west ... a complete medical laboratory and other scientific equipment have been provided. This combination of all medical services under one roof makes it possible to render complete medical protection and care not only more efficiently, but more economically. Inspection invited.

Real Estate Board President Cautions Against Hasty Rent Increases

SLIGHT BOOSTS JUSTIFIED, SAYS MORGAN FITCH

No Residential Shortage Seen This Year.

BY AL CHASE.
[Real Estate Editor.]

Real estate men were cautioned yesterday by Morgan Fitch, president of the Chicago Real Estate board, against hasty or unjustified rental increases. In a statement to directors of the realty organization he said that as far as can be seen there will be no residential shortage in Chicago this year and that if one does develop there seems to be enough building scheduled to offset it.

Fitch commented on the plan under consideration by the government to regiment rents thruout the country, which the Chicago realty board recently went on record as opposing. He said that building costs in Chicago had increased from 8 to 10 per cent during the last three years.

Don't Need Federal Ukase.

"Despite these figures, however, Chicago realtors can run their business to the advantage of all the people without a governmental ukase from Washington telling them how to do it on taxpayers' money," Fitch said.

"The real estate industry can and will prove that it is able to manage its own activity and that the greatest good to national and community welfare can be realized by the encouragement of free competition in that field."

In regard to proposed rent boosts in the Chicago area, Fitch said: "While it is recognized that rents generally have been below their proper level and that taxes and expenses of operation are higher than they have ever been in Chicago, the present crisis confronting our country in national defense demands that adjustments be made gradually and only where increased costs and the equity of a fair return justify them."

Calls Some Raises Justifiable.

There will be a large number of apartments where small raises in rent are not only justifiable, but necessary, Fitch said. These increases probably will not be more than $2 or $2.50 a month, he added.

"There will be many cases in Chicago and in the suburbs where raises must be made to prevent an individual building showing an even greater loss than last year, due to rising costs of maintenance," Fitch said.

He called attention to a national survey which said that single family rentals in 57 of the 77 large cities will increase in 1941 an average of 9.6 per cent.

"Whatever rent increases may be found in the United States, I feel sure that Chicago rents on the whole will remain stable this spring, with the exception of a few necessary increases and a certain number of so-called nuisance raises of around $2 a month," Fitch said.

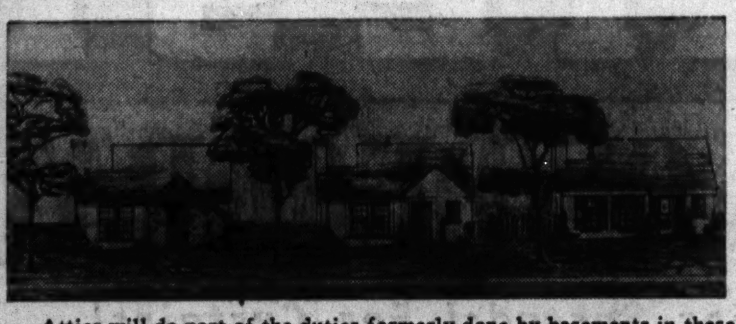
Loop Restaurateur Rents Conway Building Space

George P. Hills, who operates restaurants in the Otis and Monadnock buildings, yesterday leased space adjoining the lobby of the Conway building, from the Marshall Field estate, for a term of years, thru Gus C. Manos, broker for all parties. The area formerly was occupied by Nottoli Restaurant, Inc.

Realty Miscellany

Albert W. Hawkes, president of Congoleum-Nairn, Inc., and vice president of the National Association of Manufacturers, will be principal speaker at the annual building industry banquet-conference sponsored by the Chicago Building congress next Thursday evening in the Palmer House. Hawkes will speak on "Building in a Democracy." The conference will deal with zoning, mortgage foreclosure, planning, and transportation problems in the Chicago area.

Attics Do Basement Duty



Attics will do part of the duties formerly done by basements in these three houses, all of which are sold for $6,000 each. The gas fired heating units will be on the top floor. They are part of 10 under construction by Fort Dearborn Mortgage company in 74th court, between Dickens and Armitage avenues, Elmwood Park. Exteriors differ, but each has the same floor plan. All have one side wall of living room paneled in wood with built-in bookcases and fireplace.

25 Homes Under Construction in Elmwood Park Development

Twenty-five homes are under construction in River Forest manor, Elmwood Park, on land owned by the Fort Dearborn Mortgage company, subsidiary of Chicago corporation. Work will be started this week on 15 more of a contemplated 40, according to Kimball Hill, in charge of operations of the mortgage company. On the 200 acre development owned by the company, 80 homes have been built, sold, and are occupied since August, 1937.

Kimball Hill.

The home sites occupy an irregular tract bounded on the north by Dickens avenue, 78th avenue on the west, North avenue on the south, and Harlem avenue on the east.

Gas Heaters in the Attic.

The building program now under way covers three different price brackets. The Fort Dearborn Mortgage company is building 10 homes in the low price field, three of which already are sold. These are $6,000 homes, on lots 46 by 125 feet, with five rooms and no basement, and with the gas fired heaters in the attic, a new location for residential heating plants.

These have exterior walls of brick backed up with concrete aggregate building blocks. They are being designed by Glen Q. Johnson, Elmwood Park architect.

Expects to Build 80 Homes.

The mortgage firm expects to build 80 homes this season, with a yearly goal of 100 aimed at for the next few years, according to Hill. The 10 under construction are to be completed by May 1, it was said. They are on 74th court and 74th avenue between Dickens and Armitage avenues.

In the next higher price bracket Archie Wallen has had plans drawn by Carl J. Kastrup of Forest Park, for 25 homes to cost between $6,500 and $7,000. Work will start shortly, it was said. They will have five and six rooms and will be of brick, with concrete block backing. These will be on 75th court and 75th avenue, between Armitage and Dickens avenues.

In the higher price range between $8,500 and $10,500, William Wallen has 15 homes under construction, some of which are sold, and will start on 15 more this week. They are on 77th court, north of North avenue. Designed by Quinn & Christiansen, all will have six rooms. The 15 now under way are scheduled for May 1 occupancy.

Eastern Shoe Firm Rents North Michigan Ave. Shop

Frank Brothers Footwear, Inc., of New York has leased the store at 641-43 North Michigan avenue from William Nelson Pelouze for a term of years. Bowes Realty company represented the lessor and Robert White & Co. the lessee.

SUBURBS SET TEN YEARS' BUILDING PERMITS RECORD

January Valuations Top 4 Million Dollars.

Suburban building of all types last month was largest in dollar value of any January during the last 10 years. Permits were issued in 85 communities for buildings valued at $4,455,210. This compares with $1,574,660 in January of last year and with $4,032,396 in December, 1940. This is the third time in the last decade that January has exceeded December, there usually being a seasonal slump during the first month of the year.

Arthur G. Erdmann.

Home building in the suburbs also established a new high record during January, with permits issued for 340 homes, costing $2,410,277. These figures compare with 131 homes, costing $962,128, during January, 1940, an increase of 160 per cent in number and 151 per cent in cost. Last month's home construction, however, showed the usual seasonal decline, compared with December, when permits were issued for 427 new homes, costing $2,971,163.

Suburbs Surpass Chicago.

Comparisons of suburban building with construction in Chicago still show to the advantage of the smaller communities. The January suburban total of $4,455,210 for all types of building was nearly one and one-half million more than the Chicago total of $2,971,163.

Suburban home building was more than twice that in the city. The suburban total of 243 home permits issued in January compares with 119 issued by the Chicago building department.

Industrial building in the suburbs during January reflected the increasing manufacturing activity resulting from the national defense program. The largest permit was for a $600,000 plant addition issued to Danly Machine Specialties, Inc., of Cicero.

The building commissioner of East Chicago issued 11 permits for additions valued at $220,000 to the plant of the Youngstown Sheet and Tube company.

Repair Work Increases.

Construction in the form of repairs, alterations and additions to homes in the suburban area amounted in January to $214,616. This compared with $179,688 in the first month of last year.

Arthur G. Erdmann, president of the Bell Savings and Loan association, which compiles the monthly suburban building survey, warned against concluding, because January nearly tripled the same month last year that building thruout the year will continue to show such increases.

"It should be recalled," he said, "that January, 1940, was the coldest first month since 1918 and that it snowed on 22 days, effectively putting a brake on construction.

"Nevertheless, January, 1941, gave the year a strikingly noteworthy start with a gain over December in the suburban region of more than $400,000 instead of the slump which almost always occurs in January."

Three communities were added to the survey this month: Berkeley, Deerfield, and Morton Grove. During 1940 there were 18 homes built in Berkeley, 19 in Deerfield, and 97 in Morton Grove.

Realtors Map New Method of Listing Values

The question almost always asked a real estate broker by a prospective buyer: "What is the fair market value of the property?" is to be answered in a new way by members of the North Side Real Estate board. That organization at a recent meeting adopted a "certified value listing plan" originated by Arthur Kruggel and a special committee, by which properties will be appraised by members of the board's valuation committee and a fair market value determined by it.

"If the property is offered for sale by the owner at a price consistent with the appraised value," Kruggel said, "the listing is certified and members of the North Side Real Estate board are so advised. They are then permitted to offer this property for sale at the price established and to represent it as a 'certified value listing.'

"The plan is an innovation in merchandizing real estate. It serves both buyer and seller of real estate, and receives the coöperative sale effort of over one hundred offices of members of the board, who employ approximately 400 salesmen.

"Both buyer and seller will benefit by the plan, as each will have the assurance that a fair market value as of the date of sale has been placed on the property."

The special committee which formulated the plan has these members: Arthur Kruggel, chairman; Jules Fisher, Louis Franke, Maxim Hirsch, H. V. Jacobs, Henry Jansen, Burt Kiely, Roy E. Knauer, William Kolmar, and Hugo Mortenson.

Leahy on W-G-N

AN interview with Frank Leahy, newly appointed Notre Dame football coach and athletic director, will be presented over W-G-N tomorrow night at 6:15 o'clock on Bob Elson's sports review.

BY GEORGE STRICKLER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Notre Dame, Ind., Feb. 15.—Notre Dame football, steeped in the tradition of victory, entered upon a new era today when Frank Leahy, a favorite and famous son, returned to the scene of his undergraduate triumphs to become head coach and athletic director.

Arriving at 3:15 o'clock from Boston college, Leahy immediately went to the office of the Rev. J. Hugh O'Donnell, president of the university, and there in the presence of the Rev. John J. Cavanaugh, vice president and chairman of the faculty board in control of athletics, formally closed the deal to succeed Elmer Layden. Layden resigned on Feb. 3 to become commissioner of professional football at a salary of $20,000 a year.

Terms Not Disclosed.

Terms of the contract were not announced, in accordance with a long established practice at Notre Dame, but Leahy, before leaving Boston yesterday, said it was for a long term.

"Terms of the contract are eminently satisfactory to Mr. Leahy and to the university," Father O'Donnell said. "We are happy to welcome him back to the campus."

Leahy then announced officially that his assistants would be the same trio which helped him forge to the front among the nation's coaches in two years by giving Boston college one of its greatest elevens in his only previous job as a head coach. The back field will be handled by Ed McKeever, 31 years old, of Lubbock, Tex., who spent one year at Notre Dame, then returned to his home town to become one of the outstanding backs in Texas Tech's history. Two Fordham men, Leahy's products when he was assistant coach to Jimmy Crowley, will handle the line. They are John Druze, 25, an end, who played 180 minutes against Pittsburgh in his three years of undergraduate competition, and Joe McArdle, 27, a guard.

One Layden Aid to Remain.

Only one of the staff of assistants Layden left at Notre Dame is being considered for a place in the new setup, which, for the first time since the late Knute Rockne took over in 1919, finds outsiders playing a prominent part in Notre Dame football. The status of this coach has not been established definitely, Father O'Donnel and Leahy said, and, until it is, his identity will not be made known.

Layden's assistants were Joe Boland, prominently mentioned for the position offered to Leahy on Feb. 4, a day after Layden's resignation; Chet Grant, a Notre Dame quarter back in 1921; Bill Cerney, a full back on the famous Four Horsemen team, and Joe Benda, Irish end, who was graduated in 1927. Unofficially, it was said that Cerney was to be retained as coach of the B team, a job he handled in Layden's successful seven year régime.

Leahy denied an earlier report that he would bring Tom Powers, freshman coach at Boston college, with him to Notre Dame. Jake Kline is the present Notre Dame freshman football coach and also varsity baseball coach. Father O'Donnell and Leahy said that no decision has been made on the freshman coaching position, but that the setup for sports other than football would not be disturbed.

Leahy Praises Assistants.

Leahy praised McKeever, McArdle, and Druze highly. He was especially laudatory in the case of McKeever, whom he selected as his assistant long before he became a head coach. Leahy heard McKeever, then assist-

Minneapolis Buys Bonura from Cubs

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

Zeke Bonura, after seven more or less giddy seasons on the big league merry go round, finally has been turned back into minor pastures. The Cubs, last of the several big league custodians who had possession of the muscular Italian at one time or another in his baseball wanderings, last night sent him to the Minneapolis club of the American association in return for an unrevealed amount of cash. Zeke, always a great lover of holdout opera, was one of the numerous Cubs unsigned, but that now is the Minneapolis club's problem.

Bonura's big league status ended not many miles from where it started —at Comiskey park in 1934—but in between he was subjected to plenty of travel. In March of 1938 Jim Dykes traded him to Washington for Joe Kuhel. After two seasons with the Senators he was sold to the Giants who a year later sold him back to Washington at cut rates. But Zeke soon fetched the Senators another melon. The Cubs bought him last midseason, presumably for $10,000, to play first base in the absence of Phil Cavarretta who was out with a broken leg and Glen Russell who had appendix troubles.

With Bonura removed the unsigned list shrunk to 15 and there was additional shrinkage when General Manager Jim Gallagher's mail revealed a properly autographed document from Harvey Storey, one of the club's numerous shortstop candidates. Storey was purchased more than a year ago, but was permitted to remain with the San Francisco club last season.

Mr. Diz Dean, the Cubs' famous cripple, also had an announcement yesterday. He said he was starting for camp immediately, but wouldn't hurry to get there. The Dean publicity department, conducted by Dean in person, admitted Pitcher Dean wasn't as cocky as of yore. He conceded, somewhat belatedly, that he wasn't so sure of his arm but added, hastily, that it felt better than for three years. He also mentioned how happy he was about his $10,000 contract for '41.

CHICAGO, 23 OTHER CITIES NAME GOLDEN GLOVES TEAMS THIS WEEK

BY HOWARD BARRY.

Golden Gloves sectional competition will reach its climax this week when titleholders will be crowned in Chicago and also in the remaining 23 of the 43 out of town centers which will send representatives into the Tournament of Champions.

Local boxing fans, who have had their interest whetted with a series of novice engagements on the north and south sides during the last two weeks, will see Chicago's best amateur boxers clash in the Coliseum tomorrow, Tuesday, and Wednesday in a tournament which will determine just who's boss of the city's fighters.

Rigorous Chicago Tests.

The eight boys—one in each weight division—who emerge successfully from this rigorous test will represent Chicago against the greatest amateur boxers of 23 states in the Tournament of Champions, which will be held Feb. 24, 25, and 26 in the Stadium.

From Minneapolis in the north to Fort Worth in the south and from Detroit in the east to Oklahoma City in the west, there will be fighting for sectional titles this week. Farmer boys and office workers, students, and factory hands will slug it out for the right to represent their section in amateur boxing's biggest show—the Tournament of Champions. Already 20 cities have chosen their teams in a campaign which began weeks ago. The 23 centers which will pick their champions this week will complete an array of invaders which will assure a traditionally large and colorful field for the stadium bouts.

Offer Keen Competition.

The struggle in the local section will be typical of that which is going on thruout the far flung Golden Gloves area where newspapers and radio stations are coöperating with Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc., in the sponsorship of eliminations. In every weight class the competition will be close, every boy pitting his strength and his skill to achieve one of the most important steps in the march toward a Golden Gloves title.

The youngsters who win the Coliseum bouts may feel that they are well on their way toward final success if last year's record is a criterion. Out of the eight boys which Chicago sent into the 1940 Tournament of Champions, three emerged with titles—Harold Dade, Savior Canadeo, and Cornelius Young.

Dade is back to defend his championship in the flyweight division, but his presence has failed to deter many other 112 pound youngsters who have launched a campaign for Golden Gloves. If this hard hitting colored boy retains his laurels it will be only after a terrific struggle, because there are new fighters and old ones to challenge him.

Ray Brown Returns.

Tho Dade is the only Golden Gloves champion scheduled to fight in the Coliseum tournament there will be one more city titleholder back to defend his crown. This will be Ray Brown, king of last year's local bantamweights.

In every weight division the competition is certain to be close because, under the present method of conducting the tournament, all of Chicago's best amateurs are thrown together in

Indiana, Ohio State, Nebraska Carry Off Illinois Relay Honors

BY WILFRID SMITH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Champaign, Ill., Feb. 15.—Flaming red was the winning color tonight in the 18th Illinois relays as the crimson of Indiana, scarlet of Ohio State, and Nebraska's red were carried to triumph in half of the 10 individual events and in four of the five university relays.

Three carnival records were established as the best athletes from 29 midwestern colleges and universities competed in Illinois' armory. Indiana took three team titles and thus tied the mark made by the University of Chicago in 1918 when the Maroons were first in the mile, two mile, and four mile relay events.

Harris All-Around Winner.

Capping the Hoosiers' victory march was that by husky Archie Harris in the septathlon. Famed as a great foot-ball end and holder of the Western conference shot put and discus throw titles, Harris emerged from a field of 11 contestants in the closest battle in the history of the all-around competition with an eight point victory over Dave Rankin of Purdue.

Harris scored a total of 5,277 points. Before the concluding half mile test in the all-around only 233 points separated Rankin, the leader, and Jake Chandler of Toledo university, who was sixth.

Chandler won the half mile in 2:11.8, but when Harris finished second only 1 and 2-10 seconds behind him, he staved off Chandler's victory bid. The half mile cost Rankin the championship. Dave finished fifth in this race and his time was 2:21.

Breaks Shot Put Mark.

Harris received 1,060 of his points when he tossed the 16 pound shot 48 feet 4¼ inches to break the record for this septathlon event established 11 years ago by Barney Berlanger of Pennsylvania. Harris failed to place in the individual shot put event tonight and this title went to Vic Schleick of Missouri at 48 feet 11½ inches.

Indiana's four mile relay record was most remarkable because the Hoosiers did not call on Campbell Kane. Wayne Tolliver ran the anchor mile for Indiana and clinched the title when he came from 15 yards back on the last lap to whip Notre Dame's Oliver Hunter. The Irish gave battle all the way and the lead changed during each of the four one mile races. Indiana's time was 17:34.8 and replaces the mark of 17:39.4 set by Michigan last year.

Other New Marks Set.

New records also were made in the high jump and pole vault. Each surpassed the former mark by only one-eighth of an inch. On his third attempt Keith O'Rourke of Notre Dame cleared 6 feet 6⅛ inches and then watched last year's champion and carnival record holder, Michigan's Don Canahan, fail.

In the pole vault Harold Hunt of Nebraska, who shared the championship a year ago, cleared 13 feet 10½ inches for a new record.

Tolliver started Indiana off to its second relay title. He ran the first half mile for the Hoosiers. It was Kane, however, who clinched the victory on the fourth leg. Kane started in second place by six yards, but won easily by three yards. Drake, Missouri, and Michigan finished in that order. Indiana's time for the two miles was 7:53.8.

Indiana Wins Third Relay.

Indiana took its third relay when Kane sprinted past Bill Lane of Missouri in the mile that completed the medley. Mark Jenkins ran for the Hoosiers in the half mile and Roy Cochran led the field at the end of the quarter mile.

Four of the seven defending champions were successful. Besides Hunt, Les Eisenhart of Ohio State won the 1,000 yard run. Northwestern's Myron Piker again captured the 75 yard sprint and Gene Littler, Nebraska sprinter, successfully defended his 300 yard championship.

ALL-AROUND.

SHOT PUT—Harris, 1060; Rankin, 720; Drynan, 670; Schelb, 589.5; Springs, 324.5; Wasson, 296.5; Alderdice, 271; Stout, 235.5; Chandler, 172; Keesler, 167; Kane, 142.5. Best distance by Harris, 48 feet 4¼ inches. Measurement, 47 feet equals 1,000 points.

NORTHWESTERN FIVE DEFEATS CHICAGO, 41-36

BY HOWARD BARRY.

The Northwestern basketball team beat Chicago, 41 to 36, before 2,800 spectators last night in the Midway fieldhouse after the Maroons had practically sealed their fate by 10 minutes of total lassitude at the start followed by four more of semilanguor.

In that first 10 minutes they failed to make a field goal. Then Chuck Wagenberg broke the spell with a nicely executed shot, whereupon the Maroons lapsed into further ineffectiveness until Wagenberg repeated four minutes later. During this time Northwestern had scored six times from the floor and five times from the free throw line.

Stampf Works in Vain.

Meanwhile Capt. Joe Stampf had been keeping the Maroons in the game with his usual excellent work on free throws. He made six of them during this 14 minute period to hold Northwestern's advantage to 17 to 10. Thruout the remainder of the game the Maroons were working hard in an attempt to catch up and the Wildcats were putting up equally well-meaning efforts to draw away, but the margin that prevailed after those first 14 minutes held with little change thru the remaining 26 minutes.

Stampf amassed a total of 11 free thows and combined this with four field goals for an evening's labor of 19 points, which made him high man for the game.

A Battle of Free Throws.

The passing of both teams was unsteady and neither was able to distinguish itself on sharp shooting from the floor. Thirteen of Northwestern's points were made on free throws and 16 of Chicago's were accounted for in this manner.

The lead of 17 to 10 which Northwestern enjoyed at the end of those first 14 minutes, was protected thru the remainder of the first half, which ended with the Wildcats leading, 24 to 17. The first 10 minutes of the second half settled into a battle of free throws and after this stage of the game, Northwestern led, 33 to 27.

Reduce Lead to 35-31.

After the score had worked around to 35 to 27, the Maroons made one of their few serious threats, baskets in quick succession by Fred Shaver and Stampf cutting the Wildcats' advantage to 35 to 31. Russ Wendland and Hank Clason then whisked in field goals, however, to make things safe for Northwestern once more. During the remaining minutes the Maroons confined themselves to four free throws while Wendland was making one more basket for the Wildcats. Lineups:

Madison, Wis., Feb. 15 [Special].—Wisconsin maintained its lead in the Western conference basketball race tonight with a 46 to 30 victory over Illinois before 13,300, second capacity turnout of the season.

The Badgers, in marking up their seventh straight conference victory, moved into a 28 to 15 lead at the end of the first period and used substitutes almost entirely during the last 15 minutes.

Gene Englund, high scoring Wisconsin center, was bottled up effectively by the Illini and scored only 11 points. Sophomore John Kotz got four field goals to top the Badger attack.

Illini Divide It Up.

Illinois scoring was sprinkled among eight players with none getting more than 5 points, Wisconsin took a 4 to 2 lead at the outset and never relinquished it. With the score 40 to 18 and the outcome settled, with seven minutes to play, both coaches sent streams of substitutes into the game.

Wisconsin missed only 3 out of 17 chances from the free throw line and Illinois missed four out of 16. Lineup:

OHIO, 57; PURDUE, 38

Columbus, O., Feb. 15 [Special].—Ohio State's basketball team tonight routed Purdue, 57 to 38, before a record season crowd of 5,983. Ohio started out fast and led at the end of the first half, 23 to 12.

Dick Fisher, leading Ohio State individual scorer, ran his total for the season up to 108 points, connecting for eight baskets and three fouls for 19 points. It was the Buckeyes' fifth victory in eight games and Purdue's third defeat in seven.

Purdue Threat Shortlived.

Ohio State's five players which started the game stayed in action until the last two minutes.

For the first five minutes of the second half Purdue threatened to make a battle of it, drawing to within seven points of the Buckeyes at 29 to 22. But here Ohio put on the pressure and was drawing away at the end of the game. Lineup:

MAC MITCHELL TIES MARK IN BAXTER MILE

Gregory Rice Breaks World 2 Mile Record.

New York, Feb. 15 (AP).—Leslie MacMitchell, New York university's grand distance runner, took a deep breath right at the finish line and thereby won the New York A. C.'s Baxter mile tonight in 4:07.4, equaling the competitive world indoor record. A crowd of 15,000 watched MacMitchell's performance in Madison Square Garden.

It was no more than a last second inflation of his barrel chest that gave MacMitchell the decision over Walter Mehl of Madison, Wis., but it was enough to give him the judges' decision.

The world indoor record for the mile is 4:04.4, set by Glenn Cunningham in a paced race at Dartmouth March 3, 1938. But MacMitchell's time was equal to the best ever returned in a scratch race—first set by Cunningham on this same track March 12, 1938, and equaled here twice last season by Chuck Fenske.

Rice Breaks Two Mile Mark.

Gregory Rice, former Notre Dame star, ran the fastest two miles in the recorded annals of track competition in the winning time of 8:53.4. Tonight Chuck Fenske didn't figure at all. Before the three-quarter mark was reached, last year's king of the milers had dropped out. But they didn't need him.

This was the race for which Luigi Beccali and Gene Venzke, both members of the New York A. C., had promised to set a fast pace, and they did.

Beccali carried the field thru a 59.4 second first quarter, a 2:02 half and a 3:07.3 three-quarters. Venske then took over. Right on his heels was Mehl, shadowed by MacMitchell. On the back stretch of the ninth lap Mehl moved past Venzke. MacMitchell moved with him, as if they were tied together. Coming into the 10th lap it still was Mehl and MacMitchell, and it was strictly a two man race.

MacMitchell Strikes Out.

This time, on the back stretch, MacMitchell struck out. He streamed past Mehl, and had two yards as the bell rang for the last lap. Mehl wasn't thru and came up with his own challenge, which he carried right down to the tape.

In those last few strides MacMitchell seemed to ease up for a fraction and needed that last inch of chest expansion to hit the tape in front. Venske finished third, 15 yards back. John Munski of Columbia, Mo., was the only other starter to finish.

Leahy Signs As Notre Dame's Football Coach

"He was so impressive," Leahy explained, "that I said to myself if I ever become a head coach that young man is going to be my assistant, if he wants the job. When I received my break at Boston college I immediately contacted McKeever and he came with me."

In addition to this deviation from the tradition of the graduate coaching system, Leahy revealed that henceforth Notre Dame's offense will not be limited to the spectacular, cadenced shift from a T formation behind a balanced line with which Rockne catapulted to everlasting fame and which since has become standardized in football as the Notre Dame system. There will be some spread formations and man in motion attack. Basically it will remain Notre Dame, however.

Pleased to Return.

Leahy appeared extremely pleased at returning to Notre Dame, where in 1929 he was a regular tackle. An injury prevented him from making his letter with the 1930 squad, Rockne's last and most powerful team. He came from Boston with Judge Phil Connery, a friend from Norwalk, Conn., and planned to return to Boston tomorrow.

"I will return on March 7 or March 10," he said, "but the little matter of a lease will make it advisable for my family to remain in Boston until early fall." The Leahy's have three small children.

Leahy was a high school star in Winner, S. D., where his coach was Earl Walsh, who urged him to go to Notre Dame.

Report Walsh in Line.

There was a report current here tonight that Walsh, now an assistant to Crowley at Fordham, had been called to Boston to confer with authorities on the position Leahy surrendered.

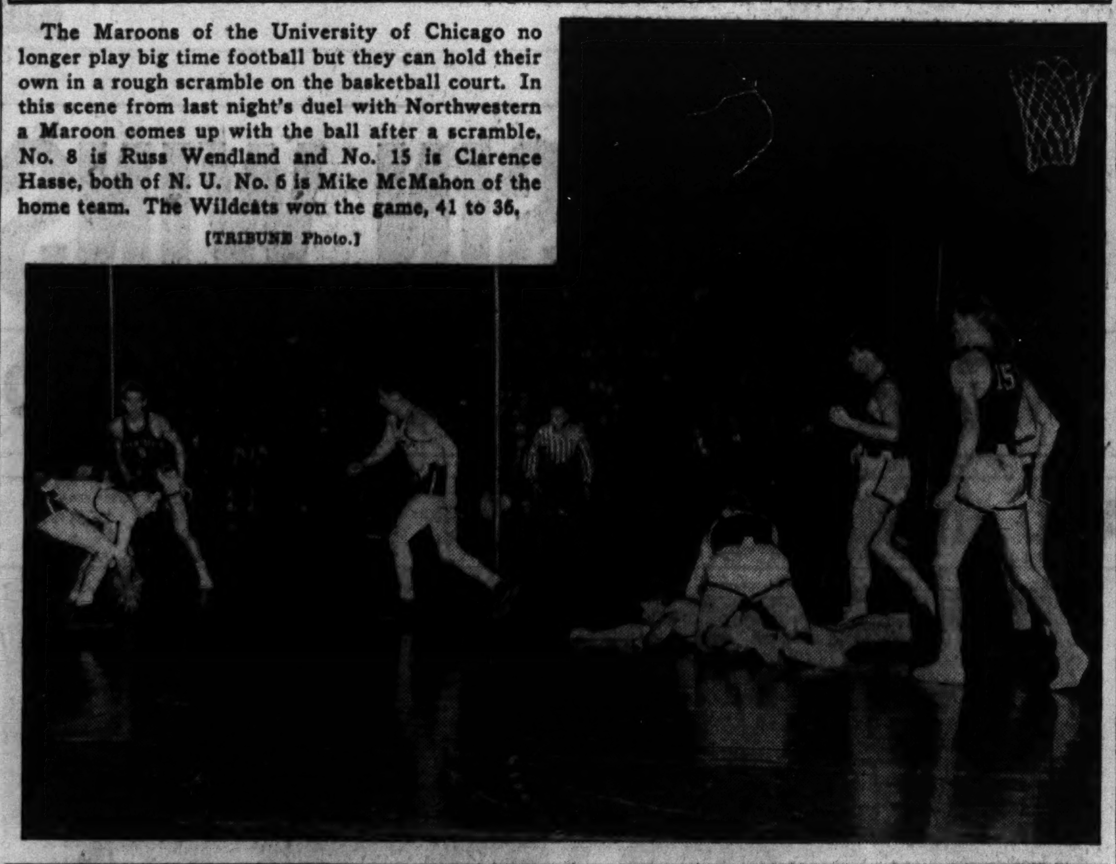
Under present plans, Leahy will hold six weeks of spring practice. He admitted he knew nothing of the prospects he is inheriting from Layden, having been too busy in recent seasons to follow his alma mater closely. The report in informed circles, however, is that he will find ample material to carry on Notre Dame's victory tradition.

WON'T BE STAMPEDED

Boston, Mass., Feb. 15 (AP).—Boston college athletic officials said tonight that they would not be stampeded into selecting a football coach to succeed Frank Leahy, and hinted they might seek an unknown.

"It is rather urgent, or course, but we are not a bit panicky," said John P. Curley, Boston college graduate manager. "We will approach the problem carefully and thoroly. It may be that we will name somebody as unknown as was Leahy when he came to Boston college two years ago."

The Maroons Give the Wildcats a Battle



The Maroons of the University of Chicago no longer play big time football but they can hold their own in a rough scramble on the basketball court. In this scene from last night's duel with Northwestern a Maroon comes up with the ball after a scramble. No. 8 is Russ Wendland and No. 15 is Clarence Hasse, both of N. U. No. 6 is Mike McMahon of the home team. The Wildcats won the game, 41 to 36. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

Star Yachtsman of 1912 Reels Off Old Films

Remember John Bunny, Flora Finch, William S. Hart, Mabel Normand, and Rudolph Valentino when they were the stars of the films? Well, if you do, here is your chance to see them again and if you don't, here is an opportunity to compare them with your favorites of today.

J. Stuart Blackton.

At 3:30 this afternoon, Commodore J. Stuart Blackton, who, in the old Essanay and Vitagraph days was as famous as a director and producer as Cecil B. DeMille is today, will present in the La Grange High school auditorium a motion picture called the "Movie Hit Parade." It tells the whole story of the growth of the industry from the first film ever seen, thru the flicker and silent days, down to the latest features in sound and color.

The presentation is sponsored by the La Grange American Legion Sunday Evening club.

In case you're wondering what this article is doing on the sports pages, ask any of the oldtime speedboat enthusiasts who Commodore Blackton is and, if you can spare the time, they'll spend hours telling how he piloted his 20 foot Baby Reliance in event after event in the big Chicago Yacht club regatta in August, 1912.

They'll tell you how his midget craft competed in every class from 20 foot thru 40 foot and the free-for-all and how, at the end of the week's racing, Commodore Blackton had annexed every trophy of distinction on the prize list.

Mandler controled rebounds and plugged in 14 points the first half.

Lead Cut to One Point.

Michigan led at the half, 19 to 13; found its lead cut to 19 to 18 on Iowa baskets by Capt. Vic Siegel and Milt Kuhl; shot away to a 27 to 21 advantage, and coasted the rest of the way. Bill Cartmill kept up the Michigan pace the second half, counting four timely baskets when Iowa threatened.

Siegel was runner-up in scoring honors with 12 points.

Coach Bennie Oosterbaan of Michigan, whose team had lost six out of seven games prior to tonight, left his starters on the court the entire game.

INDIANA WINS, 44 TO 34

Bloomington, Ind., Feb. 15 [Special].—Indiana's alert and fast breaking basketball team maintained its pace tonight and eliminated Minnesota as a title contender by defeating the Gophers, 44 to 34.

A near capacity crowd of 6,000 saw the Hoosiers capture their sixth conference victory in seven games after a hectic battle in which the score was tied five times. The Hoosiers trailed midway in the first and second periods, but put on the pressure in the final five minutes.

Thune Sparks Gophers' Rally.

Harold Thune's two baskets seven minutes after the second period started gave Minnesota a 29 to 29 tie, after which a free throw by Ed Denton, substitute guard, gave Indiana a one point edge. Thune came back with a field goal to put the Gophers in the lead again. Bill Menke's one handed basket changed the advantage, but D. Smith knotted the score at 32 to 32. After Irvin Swanson, reserve Indiana guard, connected from the field to give the Hoosiers a 34 to 32 lead, they were never again headed. The lineup:

Glenn R. Gersch, 17 year old member of the Schlitz bowling team, last night took a lead of 22 pins in the first 10 games of his 20 game match with Tadevich, 17 years old, of the Greater Chicago Travelers' league, on the White City alleys. Gersch rolled up a score of 1,845 against Tadevich's 1,823. Gersch's best game was a 244 while Tadevich's high was 210. The second half of the match will be rolled on the Crawford-Fullerton alleys next Saturday.

INDIANS LEAVE FOR SPRING CAMP —AND 1941 TITLE

Peckinpaugh to Greet 1st Squad in Florida.

Cleveland, O., Feb. 15 (AP).—The advance war party of the Cleveland Indians left tonight for the spring training camp in Fort Myers, Fla., where the new manager, Roger Peckinpaugh, already is installed with two of the pitchers, Bob Feller and Mel Harder.

On Monday the Indians will start preparing for the 1941 race in the unenviable rôle of favorites to win the American league pennant they missed so narrowly last season. At least two rival managers, Jimmy Dykes of the White Sox and Connie Mack of the Athletics, have picked Cleveland to succeed Detroit as champion. It was Mack who last year predicted the Yankees would finish third and they did just that. The Indians last won a pennant in 1920.

Three Players Unsigned.

In tonight's contingent were Pitchers Al Milnar, Clint Brown, and Joe Krakauskas, and Infielders Ray Mack, Oscar Grimes, and Vernon Frieburger, Rollie Hemsley, veteran catcher, is flying from his Missouri home.

All batterymen are signed, but Hal Trosky, Jeff Heath, and Roy Weatherly have not agreed to terms. The second squad will leave here a week from tonight.

DELANCEY TO LEAD POCATELLO.

St. Louis, Mo., Feb. 15 (AP).—The business of signing players continued swiftly today at the offices of the St. Louis major league baseball clubs, the Cardinals announced that Walker Cooper, rookie catcher, had come to terms. He batted .302 with Columbus last season. Cooper's ability was one of the reasons why the Cardinals traded Mickey Owen, veteran catcher, to Brooklyn. The Cards also announced that Bill Delancey has been appointed manager of the Pocatello, Idaho, club of the Pioneer league, and that Pitchers Newt Kimball and John Pinter came to terms.

The Browns reported signed contracts from Johnny Berardino, regular shortstop last season; Shortstop Vernon Stephens, and Outfielders Glenn McQuillen and Tony Criscola.

SUN BEAMS DOWN ON GIANTS.

Miami, Fla., Feb. 15 (AP).—Sunny weather gave the New York Giants, first of the big league baseball teams to start training, a chance to shed poundage today. Manager Bill Terry sent the players thru the usual run of warming up exercises—calisthenics, fungo hitting, fly chasing, and throwing.

Of the 13 unsigned players, the club expects the most stubborn stand from Catcher Harry Danning, who has refused to report until his salary demands are met. Terry telegraphed Danning at his Los Angeles home advising him to report for training immediately. First Baseman Babe Young, another of the group dissatisfied with salary offers, watched today's drill from the sidelines.

BENSWANGER CONFIDENT.

Pittsburgh, Pa., Feb. 15 (AP).—Bill Benswanger, president of the Pirates, jubilantly packed his bags today to lead the way westward into spring conditioning grounds, declaring if the pitching comes thru the Pirates will be dangerous.

The entire squad will start training as a single unit instead of being split into two sections as formerly. All players will report at San Bernardino, Cal., on Feb. 24, work getting under way the same day.

CAMILLI REPORTS, SIGNS.

Havana, Cuba, Feb. 15 (AP).—First Baseman Dolph Camilli showed up today with his signed contract and participated in the opening workout of the Brooklyn Dodgers. His appearance reduced the club's holdouts to three catchers—Mickey Owen, Angelo Giuliani and Herman Franks.

GLOSSOP SOLD; ROSS SIGNS.

Boston, Mass., Feb. 15 (AP).—The Boston Bees announced today the sale of Al Glossop, young infielder, to Kansas City of the American Association.

Chet Ross, 22 year old outfielder who batted in 89 runs for the Bees last season, returned his signed contract today.

LOYOLA DEFEATS WESTERN STATE QUINTET, 57 TO 40

Kalamazoo, Mich., Feb 15 [Special].—Loyola university's basketball team defeated Western State tonight, 57 to 40, with Mickey Rottner of the Ramblers leading the way with 15 points.

Western State led until midway of the first half, then gradually fell behind and was trailing, 31 to 22, at the half. In the second half the Broncos played the Ramblers even until the final few minutes. Capt. Ballard was high for Western State with 13 points. Lineups:

JURY CONVICTS HYMIE CAPLIN IN CARD CHEATING

New York, Feb. 15 [Special].—Hymie Caplin, prizefight manager with a winning way at cards, was found guilty by a jury in less than two hours today on two counts of first degree grand larceny. The penalty is up to 20 years.

Caplin, 40 years old and voluble, who managed participants in seven major fights, stood trial accused of having banked crooked games of pinochle, poker, and such. The charge was based on two instances in May, 1938, when Herbert E. Simpson, Manhattan business man, found all the aces in the other players' hands.

M'LENNAN RUN IN 2 SECTIONS AT HIALEAH PARK

Haltal and Big Pebble Win Heats.

Miami, Fla., Feb. 15 (AP).—They made a double header of the McLennan memorial race at Hialeah park today and went to a $10,000 added expense, but they still didn't uncover a horse likely to make Bimelech sweat in the rich Widener Cup a fortnight from now.

Because of a surplus of candidates, the mile and a furlong McLennan was run twice for the benefit of more than 21,000 fans, with a dozen horses in each race. Haltal won the first section by two lengths to pay $12.80 for each $2 in the mutuels. Big Pebble took the second section, also by two lengths, to return $46.90 to his backers.

Neither Looks Like Winner.

But neither of them looked like enough horse to beat E. R. Bradley's pride and joy in the $50,000 event a fortnight hence. Haltal's time was 1:49, while Big Pebble won a slightly slower heat in 1:49.2. Bimelech is reported shading both of those times even in his workouts.

Second to Haltal in the first preliminary was a horse named Royal Man, which was a nose ahead of Dorimar. Big Pebble's closest rival was Ringie, with Joe Schenck third. Maxwell Howard's The Chief led this race all the way until the stretch, when he disappeared.

Offer Extra $10,000.

Running a stake event in two sections is somewhat unusual. It was discovered only this morning that it would be necessary, because the starting gate at Hialeah accommodates only 14. Hialeah officials finally decided to offer the extra $10,000. The last time a track was forced to get reckless with its money was at Pimlico in 1922, when the futurity was run in two heats.

OMELET TAKES FEATURE.

Los Angeles, Cal., Feb. 15 (AP).—Omelet, a 15 to 1 shot, captured the $10,000 Santa Margarita handicap over a sloppy track before a comparatively small crowd at Santa Anita park today.

With Fairy Chant, the favorite, finishing out of the money, Augury ran second and Barrancosa third. Trailing behind were Valdina Gold, Flying Wild, Primulus, and the Foxcatcher farm's Fairy Chant, winner of the race last year.

Time for the mile and one-sixteenth was 1:47 1-5.

Heafner's 137 Ties Picard in $5,000 Open

New Orleans, La., Feb. 15 (AP).—Clayton Heafner of Linville, N. C., who never won a major golf tournament, and the Veteran Henry Picard of Hershey, Pa., both bettered the City park course record today to tie for the half-time lead in the $5,000 New Orleans Open.

Picard's 32—33—65, which he termed "the greatest round I ever shot," was two under the old record and seven better than par. He tacked this onto yesterday's 72 for a 36 hole total of 137.

Heafner came in with 33—33—66, which would have been a course record an hour earlier. He shot a 71 yesterday.

Picard's threesome, which included Craig Wood of Mamaroneck, N. Y., and Claude Harmon of Orlando, Fla., had a low ball of 58 and was the greatest three man exhibition on record here. Wood, who led yesterday's first round with a 70, had 35—34—69 and dropped to third place at 139. Harmon shot 34—37—71 on top of yesterday's 73 for a 144.

Ben Hogan of Purchase, N. Y., stayed among the leaders at 71—69—140.

Tomorrow's field will be limited to 71 professionals with 152 or better and 11 amateurs with 166 or under. Those eliminated include Thomson and National Open Champion Lawson Little, the latter with 82—72—154.

HAWKS ATTEMPT TO HALT LOSING STREAK TONIGHT

Bruins Win, 5-0; It's 21 Games Without a Loss.

Games Tonight

New York Americans at Chicago.
Montreal at Detroit.
Toronto at New York Rangers.

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

Hooley Smith and Red Dutton, two fellows whose proper names are Reginald and Mervyn, respectively, and their associate New York Americans come to the Chicago Stadium this evening to meet a Blackhawk team that has suddenly become in danger of falling into the National Hockey league cellar as the result of four consecutive defeats, two to the New York Rangers, one to the Montreal Canadiens, and one to the Detroit Red Wings.

Mr. Dutton, who in his playing days was wont to propel many a Blackhawk into the woodwork, will not be seen on the ice this evening, but he will be heard from the manager's pew on the rinkside.

Hooley Seeks No. 200.

Mervyn's verbal goading doubtless will be directed at Mr. Smith, who is still seeking to make the exclusive 200 club, membership in which involves scoring a 200th goal. Hooley has counted 199, and one more tonight will entitle him to a fraternity with such gents as Nels Stewart, Bill Cook, Howie Morenz, Dit Clapper, Charley Conacher, and Harvey Jackson.

The feud between the Americans and the Blackhawks brings up one of the strangest rivalries in the league, for each seems to have the sign on the other on the other's home ice. For instance, the Hawks haven't been able to beat the New Yorkers on their Madison Square Garden grounds since Jan. 26, 1937, when they won by the incredible score of 9 to 0. Correspondingly, the Americans have lost only four games in 16 visits to the stadium.

The Hawks, belabored with injuries to such valuable workmen as Bill Carse, Red MacKay, Johnny Mariucci, and Johnny Chad, aren't in the best of shape to make an impression on one of the most rugged defense details in the league. The visitors have a new and promising goalie in Charley Rayner, who came to the Americans two weeks ago.

BRUINS MARCH ON, 5-0

MONTREAL, Que., Feb. 15 (AP).—A crowd of 11,862, largest of the season in Montreal, watched the Boston Bruins extend their unbeaten streak to 21 consecutive National Hockey league games tonight with a 5 to 0 shutout over the Montreal Canadiens.

Frankie Brimsek, scoring his fourth shutout of the season, gave a remarkable goal guarding exhibition in the first two periods. The Bruins' first score came only after 16:50 of the second period, when Herbie Cain took a pass from Flash Hollett in front of the net and fired a shot that Bert Gardiner had no chance to stop. In the final period the Bruins rapped in four more goals, Des Smith sinking two and Eddie Wiseman and Bobby Bauer the others.

The victory gave the Bruins a total of 14 victories and seven ties in the record streak which began Dec. 22.

The speedy big right winger went down the right boards with only one and a quarter minutes remaining and fired the winning goal past Goalie Dave Kerr. He also assisted in two other goals.

[This is the fifth of a series of baseball's most famous box scores. All are milestones in the history of the national game.]

PITTSBURGH'S first game in the National league, played on its home field April 30, 1887, resulted in victory due to the hitting of Alex McKinnon, Pittsburgh first baseman, who clouted a triple, a double, and two singles. Pittsburgh won, 6 to 2, behind the pitching of Jim Galvin, getting to Pitcher John Clarkson of Chicago for five runs in the first four innings. Score:

Golden Gloves Sectionals Will End This Week

one big struggle. Previous to last year there were sometimes as many as five different sets of local champions representing four sections of the city and the Catholic Youth organization as well. All of these would go directly into the Tournament of Champions.

Under that system, it was never quite decided just who were the true Chicago champions because many of these youngsters, shuffled up in the stadium tournament, never met one another. When the new system was inaugurated last year, it was highly satisfactory to the local fans. Eight champions emerged and there was never any doubt of their right to their laurels.

Fight in Two Rings Tomorrow.

They went right on into the Tournament of Champions and, with no numerical advantage over the other 43 cities, they took three of the eight championships.

There will be fighting in two rings in the Coliseum tomorrow night to reduce the large field. The struggle will be confined to one ring on Tuesday in clearing the way for the semifinals and finals, which will be held on Wednesday.

Finals will be held in eight out of town centers tomorrow night. These are Centralia, Ill.; Dayton, O.; Fort Worth, Tex.; Kenosha, Wis.; Minneapolis, Minn.; Oklahoma City, Okla.; Peoria, Ill., and South Bend, Ind.

That gives some idea of the scope of the tournament. Four more cities will be right back to pick their titleholders on Tuesday. These will be Gary, Ind.; Green Bay, Wis.; Moline, Ill., and Rockford, Ill.

Six Finals on Wednesday.

Wednesday will be another big night. In addition to the Chicago finals, there will be decisive engagements in Cedar Rapids, Ia.; Joliet, Ill.; Lafayette, Ind.; Springfield, Ill., and Wisconsin Rapids, Wis.

On Thursday three more sets of champions will emerge in Michigan City, Ind.; Sioux City, Ia., and Streator, Ill.

Detroit, Mich., and Memphis, Tenn., will pick their teams on Friday and the last of the sectional titleholders will be decided when Kokomo, Ind., holds its finals on Saturday.

These 23 teams will join the previously selected 20 out of town delegations in an invasion of the Chicago area the following week. They will all come together in another great show—the 1941 Tournament of Champions.

A FELLOW NAMED GUS IS TALKING A BRAVE FIGHT

Dorazio Says, Sure, He'll Beat Louis Tomorrow.

Philadelphia, Pa., Feb. 15 (AP).—At first glance, all the money in Philadelphia's banks doesn't seem to have much connection with Joe Louis' heavyweight championship defense against Gus Dorazio in Convention hall Monday night.

But it does if you want to know what sort of a fellow the Bomber is meeting in the 14th defense of his title. Gus says so himself, largely because he's slightly annoyed at so many folks asking him whether he's afraid to go in there and tangle with Joe.

"Look," Dorazio told Promoter Herman Taylor today as he wound up his training for the scheduled 15 rounder, "all the money in all the banks in Philadelphia couldn't make me climb into that ring Monday night if I thought I couldn't win. Not with all those people looking at me."

Betting? There Isn't Any.

The underslung 190 pounder probably is the only fellow in his home town—or any other place—who thinks he can win. There is virtually no betting, altho local commissioners are quoting odds that sound like the price tags on those mink coats in the better shoppes.

Outside of the fact that he's a bobber and weaver, a style which has bothered the champion in the past, Dorazio's lone hope appears to lie in the fact he's about as imaginative as one of the cobblestones in Broad street's pavement. He laughs when you sit down to tell him about the things Joe's fists can do to a fellow, and he positively goes into hysterics when you try to point out that those bombs can hurt a husky 23 year old.

Expects $50,000 Gate.

Louis, meantime, talks mostly about the fried chicken and pork chops he'll have after the fight. From his training camp at Greenwood Lake, N. Y., he sent word that he'll "take care of Mr. Dorazio jes' as soon as I catches up with him."

Promoter Taylor declares the fight, first for the heavyweight championship in this city since Jack Dempsey, Gene Tunney and the rain got together 15 years ago, will be a financial success. Taylor expects 15,000 will contribute to a gross gate of $50,000.

Haire to Make Debut as Pro at Marigold

Leon Haire, 1940 St. Louis sectional Golden Gloves featherweight champion, will make his professional debut in a four round bout against Wayne Fidler, former Catholic Youth organization title holder, in Marigold Gardens tomorrow. Haire was defeated by Roy Lewis of Muncie, Ind., in the finals in Chicago Stadium last March 6, but his showing was so impressive the coaches placed him on the intercity and international Golden Gloves teams.

Leon helped Chicago hold New York's champions to an 8 to 8 draw decision by beating Art Foster in Madison Square Garden. He also won his international match, conquering Federico Cortonesi of the European squad in the Stadium. The victory was one of four Chicago scored in eight fights held between the two teams.

Another four round contest tomorrow will bring together Billy Pierce, Milwaukee middleweight, and Mike Edwards. Matches of eight rounds involve Harvey Dubs, Windsor, Ont., lightweight, and Jackie Simmons of Kansas City, Mo.; Joe Maxin, Cleveland light heavyweight, and Orlando Trotter, and Billy Bengal, Detroit 165 pounder, and Frank McBride. Maxin is last year's Chicagoland Golden Gloves middleweight champion. Simmons also is a former Golden Glover, reaching the championship round in the Stadium three years ago as a featherweight.

A wrestling show will be offered in White City tomorrow, featured by Karol Krauser and Hans Schnabel. . . . Lee Savold will leave today for Des Moines, Ia., where he opposes Selman Martin in a 10 round contest presented under the auspices of Pinkie George. . . . Max and Buddy Baer will stop off in Chicago today en route from Sacramento, Cal., to New York. Max is matched to meet Lou Nova April 4, and Buddy is booked to face Tony Galento March 28. Both matches will be held in the Garden.

Six boxing matches and three wrestling bouts will be presented in White City Tuesday under the direction of Leon M. Fisher, president of the 13th ward club, and George O. Lehr, ward committeeman. . . . Earl McClure and Ray Cantele expect to promote the first of a set of fight cards in Midway Masonic temple, 6115 South Cottage Grove avenue, Feb. 28. . . . Bill Rand is negotiating for a rematch between Davey Day and Nick Castiglione in International Amphitheater March 14 despite the fact there appears to be no good reason for such an encore. The perennial Chicago lightweight challenger knocked out Castiglione in one round in the Stadium on Jan. 10.

Kentucky Miss Winner in Florida Women's Golf

Orlando, Fla., Feb. 15 (AP).—Miss Alberta Little of Lexington, Ky., Rollins college co-ed, captured the annual mid-Florida women's golf championships here this afternoon defeating Mrs. Laddie Irwin Whitehead of Upper Montclair, N. Prey for Louis - - - a Belt for Zale

[Acme Photo.]

"The condemned man ate heartily" is what the reporters used to write. The line is apt in the case of Gus Dorazio, shown being served by Madame Bey at her Summit, N. J., training quarters. Dorazio is due to be the next victim of Heavyweight Champion Joe Louis whom he fights in Philadelphia tomorrow.

Zale, Mamakos Meet Friday; Louis Fights Again Tomorrow

BY FRANK MASTRO.

The feature bout on this week's boxing program will be a 15 round middleweight championship bout between Tony Zale and Challenger Steve Mamakos of Washington, D. C. The contest, which will mark Zale's first title defense, is scheduled in Chicago Stadium on Friday night.

There also will be a heavyweight championship engagement involving Champion Joe Louis and Gus Dorazio of Philadelphia in Philadelphia tomorrow, but it will be overshadowed by the Zale-Mamakos match.

An Unimpressive Record.

Signing of Dorazio as Bomber Joe's opponent has caused considerable criticism thruout the country. Recently the match was denounced in a resolution introduced in the Pennsylvania legislature by Senators H. Jerome Jaspan and Anthony J. Disilvestro, Philadelphia Democrats. They did not believe Dorazio is a fit foe for the champion.

Altho only Arturo Godoy defeated Gus in eight fights he had last year, the Philadelphia challenger's record is not impressive. In 1939, for example, Dorazio suffered technical knockout defeats at the hands of Roscoe Toles and Willie Reddish. He also lost to Patsy Perroni.

Dorazio will collect 12½ per cent of a $50,000 gate anticipated by Co-Promoters Herman Taylor and Mike Jacobs. Louis will receive 40 per cent for the bout, which is set for 15 rounds.

Mamakos Has a Chance.

The Zale-Mamakos contest is a return meeting, Steve earning the title shot by his showing in a 10 round nontitle battle against the champion in the Stadium on Jan. 10. Despite the fact that Mamakos was floored once in the 4th and 10th rounds for no count, the decision was not unanimous. Referee Frank McAdams scored 55 to 45 and Judge William O'Connell 54 to 46 for Zale. Ed Hintz, the other judge, called the fight a draw.

Because Mamakos, whose fighting weight is only 156 pounds, had to weigh in with his ring apparel in order to come in over the class limit previously, fans believe the Washington challenger has an excellent chance to dethrone Zale come Friday. They maintain that Steve's efforts to come in over the stipulated 161 pounds at the ringside ceremony robbed him of some of his sharpness.

Whatever the result, indications are that the encore will develop into one of the most exciting fights offered in the Stadium. It will be the third middleweight championship match presented in Illinois since the game was legalized in 1926. Mickey Walker was involved in both the others, lifting the belt from Tiger Flowers in the Chicago Coliseum Dec. 3, 1926, and then successfully defending the honor against Ace Hudkins in Comiskey park June 21, 1928. Each match went 10 rounds.

Steve Opens Gymn Work.

Mamakos opened workouts in Trafton's gymnasium yesterday with loosening up exercises. He will start boxing drills today against Speedy Schaeffer and Bobby Berger. Zale, who went five rounds yesterday, one with Schaeffer and two each with Berger and Tito Taylor, will take a rest today. He will resume workouts tomorrow.

In addition to 10 round matches between Altus Allen and Gunnar Barlund, and Al Hostak and George Burnette, there will be a six round opener involving Henry Wacker and Howard Williams, Detroit heavyweight.

SPORTS SHOW TO HELP REMEDY AN ANGLER'S FEVER

Tribune Casting Contest Opens Saturday.

BY BOB BECKER.

Altho February is the in-between season for thousands of outdoor fans because it's too early for fishing in the north and no hunting is allowed, this time of the year is nevertheless an exciting one for fishermen, campers, and vacationists who are waiting for a chance to get together and swap yarns. The opportunity for these outdoorsmen to meet and get a touch of spring fever comes with the annual sports shows held in many cities of the United States.

These events, with their casting contests, hundreds of exhibits of the newest gadgets for the outdoor fan, and other attractions now are being held all over the United States. They bring a breath of spring to the winter-weary angler and cause him to oil up his casting equipment in order to compete in rod and reel contests.

Record for Casting Meet.

Starting next Saturday, midwestern sports fans are going to hold their mid-winter jamboree with the opening of the International Outdoor Sportsmen's show in the International amphitheater, 42d and Halsted streets. This is the biggest opportunity for fishermen to have some fun with their fly and bait casting rods, for one of the outstanding attractions of the show is the Tribune's casting contest. Last year this casting contest set a new American record in the number of entries.

Every fisherman and unattached caster who wants to compete in the tournament and possibly win a handsome trophy should fill out an entry blank and mail it in at once. You don't have to belong to a casting club to get into the tournament and have some fun shooting a plug at the targets. The Skish casting event for fishermen with regular fishing reels and rods is the outstanding contest of the entire tournament. Club casters [who will have their own events] will not be permitted to compete in this competition. It's an event for fishermen only and handsome trophies will go to the winners.

Entries Close Tuesday.

An entry blank is published in the sports section today. Contestants should fill it out, check the event they want to enter, and mail it to the casting editor without delay. No entries may be made after Tuesday.

There is no entry fee for any of the casting events. Entrants will be mailed dated tickets which must be presented at a special contestant's gate. And contestants will not be admitted to the Amphitheater without their tackle needed for casting.

Anders Haugen, three times national ski jumping champion, and Frank Hogan, trainer of champion retriever dogs, head the performers who will appear twice each day during the show. Others on the program include Ken Wilhelm, archery champion; Walt Wilhelm, blowgun expert; Willard Jack and Watson Peck, log rollers; Louis Pagliarro, table tennis champion, and many others.

Spotting the Pins

BY C. H. BEUKEMA.

The Gills again made it look easy in the Windy City Major Bowling league. First they piled up a mere 3,149 behind Eli Maricich's 711 series, then they slowed down to 3,064 with lead-off Wally Freitag's 705 as top. Of course, they won six games—their low was 1,010—and took a full game margin over the Budweisers, who won four of the six. Tomorrow's schedule:

Quality Wet Wash vs. Blue Rock Beverages; Budweisers vs. None Better Ice Creams; Bireley's Beverages vs. Mineralites; Furman Funerals vs. O'Keefe Coals; Betinis Boosters vs. Reichman Jewelers; Nemecek Tailors vs. Gills; Vogel Bros. vs. Burlington Zephyrs; J. M. Kralovec & Son vs. Houcek Senators.

Series of the week: Bruck-Strachan Coals' 3,416 in the South End Traveling league. Marion Kruzich delivered a 278 game and 759 total, followed by Roy Wagner with 679. It was good for three games and put the Brucks in third place. . . . Playdium did the unexpected in the Greater Chicago Traveling league, winning three from General Bowling. The losers missed by only three pins when they hit 1,023 in the last game. Lew Byerly got 685 for Playdium. Meanwhile Schlitz dropped Merit Cigars for three and pulled into a third place tie with General Bowling.

A 277 game did a lot of things for H. J. Bagge, secretary of the Wilson Avenue Y. M. C. A. Industrial league at the Lawrence Bowl. It contributed to a 632 series—his average, 167. It gave his team 1,070, high for the league, and it placed him in the Bowl's honorary 250 club. . . . Streamliner ran Portland Rose's string of defeats to six [after 10 straight victories] and thereby helped itself to a first place tie with Corn King in the C. & N. W. league. Forty-niner needed an extra frame to win the odd game from Victory. Allstrands Hostlers surprised the league by winning three games from Westbrook's Ink Spots in the C. & N. W. "400" league. The result pulled the Hostlers into a second place tie and dropped the Ink Spots to fifth. The calendar:

April 18 to 22—Printcraft Bowling congress first tournament in Cleveland, O. Entries close March 10. All employés of plants where Allied Printcraft members are employed are eligible.

Raymer's Kids Break Long Losing Streak.

Raymer's Kids—those boys not long out of high school and taught by Milton Raymer that there's something to major league bowling besides the size of the kitty at year's end—won their first game after 21 straight defeats in the Stevenson league. They took one by 14 pins from the Budweisers . . . Eddie Kohn, with 658, helped lead American Glass to two victories—1,089-1,079 and 1,076-1,069—over Aetna Fire and the Insurance league. Meanwhile H. H. Herbst, London & Lancashire, and Millers Nationals used the broom on American Fore, Loyalty Group and Continental Casualty.

Four North End Traveling league shooters bettered 700. They were Joe Gratz, 736; Joe Cordulack, 729; Frank Kartheiser, 717, and Cliff Klein, 704. And among the teams Pepsi-Cola got 3,238; Jolly Jacks, 3,135, and De Luxe recreation, 3,113. Tomorrow's schedule:

Koenig Brau vs. Schambergers at North Town, 7 p. m.; Birk Trophy Beers vs. Fox De Luxe at Kaadland, 7 o'clock; Chapin & Gore vs. De Luxe recreation at De Luxe, 7 o'clock; Pepsi-Colas vs. Jolly Jacks at Monte Cristo, 7:30; Samuelson's Kids vs. Budweisers at Gold Coast, 9 o'clock.

The Classic league rolls at 8 o'clock tonight at Archer-Kedzie, 4306 South Kedzie avenue. Michelobs meet the Monarch Beers, Schlitz bowls the Pabsts, Ambrosias are paired with Blatz, and the Rupperts oppose the Koenigs . . . Ned Day will make a personal appearance at Picchietti's recreation in Deerfield Wednesday night . . . Wabash No. 1, which has been rolling thru its schedule in the Chicago Patrolmen's club league, south division, won three games from East Side. It's 2,646 total represented a better than 200 pin margin over the next team.

Williams Jewelers shot a 1,110 game and 3,025 series, yet lost two to Van Dam Cigars in the Playdium major. Heavy winner was the Kruse Service stations with a sweep over the White Way Signs . . . B. A. Railtons came on with a rush to win twice from Wonder Bar in the Congress major. Mario's shut out Manhattan Bottling. Rupperts, Englewood Electric, and Fortune Brewing each took two.

Women Bowlers to Hold Banquet on Tuesday.

The Chicago Women's Bowling association will hold its annual banquet in the Morrison hotel Tuesday night. Prize money won in the recent city tournament will be distributed and championship medals awarded to the Double Cola Girls for the team event; Lee Liepe and Celia Grob, doubles, and Rita Hamilton, singles, and a diamond medal to Laura Stellmacher, all events champion. . . . Mae Katt bettered 200 twice in rolling a 582 total, high in the Crest Women's Monday league. . . . Seven of the Playdium Major league girls have averages over 180. Betty Kleine leads with 189. Margaret Immel boosted her average with 205, 219, 619 last week. . . . Flo Lange's 590 and Helen Foell's 578 led the Newarts to a three game victory in Bruck's Major, but Sara Hannblom [remember that 298 game?] of the Drexels was high with 220, 234, 648. . . . Redler's Bakery five set a record with 2,639 in the Pioneer Major. Ann Leonard's 551 was high and Amanda Kath's 510 low. Ida Johnson was top in the Pioneer Senior with 226, 572, while Helen Schreiner's 531 set the pace in the Pioneer Junior. . . . Ann Unhoch marked up high game and series, 241, and 637, in Schalk's Tuesday Major. A 215 also helped in piling up that total. Ruth Hartmann had 222, 206, 608, and Mae Katt 215, 223, 603. . . . Goldie Haug hit for a 525 total to lead the women in 20th Century's Thursday league.

NEW YORK BOND TRANSACTIONS

RALLY CARRIES SOME BONDS TO HIGHER LEVELS

New York, Feb. 15 (AP).—A turn toward a rally checked a substantial decline of the bond market today. Some rails came back for gains of more than a point. Far eastern loans, notably Japanese, also staged an irregular recovery as uneasiness over the possibility of a southward move by Japan subsided at the week-end.

Tokio Electric Light 6s rose 3 points to 40 and fractional gains were recorded in Japan 5½s, Milan 6½s, and Argentine 4s of 1972. Queensland 6s were down 2 on sale of a single bond.

Delaware and Hudson refunding 4s in the rail division advanced 1⅜ to close at 48. Ending fractions higher were Consolidated Edison 3½s, International Telephone 5s, Missouri-Kansas-Texas 5s, Shell Union 2½s, and Walworth 4s.

The decline in United States treasury issues continued and some of the topgrade corporate loans were marked down in sympathy with the federal list. Final losses in government bonds ranged to 13-32ds.

TAX COLLECTOR LAYS HARD HAND ON U. S. GYPSUM

And Net Profits Dip Below 1939 Level.

The heavy hand of the tax collector converted what might have been a substantial gain in earnings of the United States Gypsum company last year into a decline in net profit. This was disclosed in the company's annual report issued by Sewell L. Avery, board chairman. The company is the largest domestic manufacturer of gypsum building materials and other products. Its general offices are in Chicago.

Sewell L. Avery.

"The new burdens imposed against the company's 1940 profits by the federal and Canadian excess profits taxes and the increase in rates of income taxes amounted to $2,084,625, or $1.74 per share of common stock," Avery reported. "If the 1939 tax rates had been in effect for the year 1940, the company would have earned net profit of $9,137,599, equivalent to a gain of 24 per cent over the 1939 profit."

Nets $5.44 a Share.

Consolidated net profit of the company and its subsidiaries in 1940 dropped to $7,052,974, equal after preferred dividends to $5.44 a common share. In 1939, net income was $7,365,847, or $5.71 a share.

Avery reported that residential building activity last year was at the highest level since 1929 and that the upward trend was continuing. The company's operating earnings reflected the upturn in the building industry. Net operating profit in 1940 rose to $11,067,742 from $8,471,987 in 1939.

The earnings statement indicated that the company made a total provision for 1940 of $4,132,000, for federal and Canadian income and excess profits taxes, including $1,340,000 for excess profits taxes. The tax provision in 1939 was $1,356,750.

Owens-Illinois Earns Less.

Increased sales in 1940 were overbalanced by higher taxes and manufacturing costs, resulting in a decline in net income of the Owens-Illinois Glass company, Toledo, O., maker of glass bottles, containers, and other goods.

The annual report showed net income was $7,223,034, equal to $2.71 a share, against $8,434,915, or $3.17 a share in 1939. Taxes increased more than 25 per cent as wages and corrugated paper prices used in wrapping glassware rose materially, the company said.

Net income of the Great Lakes Dredge and Dock company, Chicago, marine construction enterprise, declined to $339,595, equal to 61 cents a share, from $1,634,566, or $2.96 a share in 1939.

National Biscuit Profit Dips.

National Biscuit company, New York, largest baker of crackers and cookies in this country, reported that a $1,352,000 increase in income taxes and $241,000 in foreign exchange adjustments in 1940 combined to nullify benefits from a gain of $5,600,000 in gross sales. Net income of the company declined to $10,748,826, equal to $1.43 a common share, after deducting $400,000 for a write down of plant values. Net income was $11,933,702, or $1.62 a share, in 1939, after a $400,302 write down.

Willys-Overland Motors, Inc., Toledo, automobile manufacturer, had a net loss of $47,991 in the three months ended Dec. 31, the first quarter of its current fiscal year. In the corresponding quarter of 1939, the company earned $36,291.

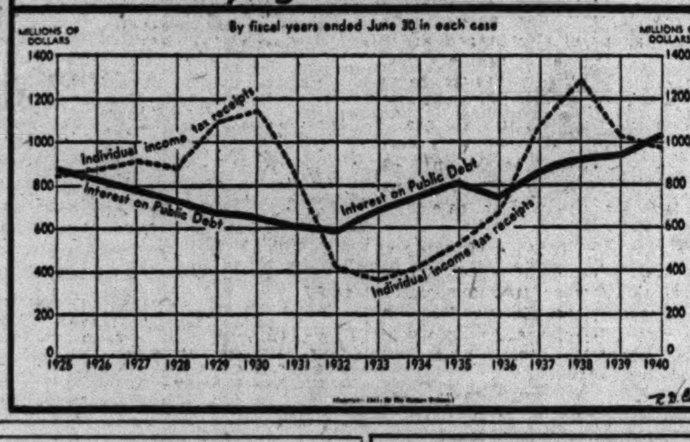
Receipts from the Income Tax on Individuals Versus the Cost of Carrying the Public Debt



Output Starts on 93 Pct. of Arms Orders

Philadelphia, Pa., Feb. 15 (AP).—A survey of 100 typical industrial areas by the defense committee of the National Association of Manufacturers shows that production is under way on 93 per cent of national defense orders, Walter D. Fuller, president, reported today.

Walter D. Fuller.

In an address to a conference of business and labor leaders under the auspices of the Philadelphia Chamber of Commerce's industry committee on national defense, Fuller said:

"Only 7 per cent think that they [plants] cannot make deliveries on schedule, despite delays necessary to making ready and tooling up before production could begin. Twenty-five per cent will make deliveries earlier than their contracts specified."

Major Firms Have Orders.

Fuller, president of the Curtis Publishing company, said about 10,000 of the nation's industrial units are major concerns engaged in the vital defense industries. These 10,000, he said, already are equipped with orders, "either as primary or subcontractors."

"Facilities and man power for production of nondeefnse goods are still ample, are not under pressure, and on the basis of the national returns about two-thirds of the country's manufacturers could accept defense orders as subcontractors without being forced to curtail production of consumers' and producers' goods," he asserted.

On man power, he said, the survey showed that industry working on defense orders has "a 45 per cent shortage of skilled labor, a 20 per cent shortage of semiskilled labor, and a plentiful supply of unskilled labor."

Situation at Full Speed.

"If these plants were to go under forced draft, working a 24 hour day and seven days a week, there would be a 73 per cent shortage of skilled labor, a 54 per cent shortage of semiskilled labor, and the labor pool in these plants' areas would be exhausted with a 0.17 per cent shortage of unskilled labor."

Of the major industrial firms working on defense contracts, the survey listed 37 per cent as speeding up deliveries by hiring additional employés, 65 per cent saying they could do so by increasing working hours, and 39 per cent saying they could hurry production by working additional shifts.

Chicago Steel Mills to Cut Output for Plant Repairs

Steel mills in the Chicago area tomorrow will slacken their production schedules to an average of 93.1 per cent of theoretical capacity to permit plant repairs, Dow Jones & Co. reported yesterday. A week earlier the rate was 98.3 per cent, and a year ago 59.8 per cent.

CITY'S TAX WARRANT SALE OF 7 MILLIONS IS AT RECORD LOW COST

The purchase by Chicago banks of $7,000,000 of the city's 1940 corporate tax anticipation warrants at a yield of ¾ of 1 per cent was announced yesterday by Robert B. Upham, city controler. The resulting interest cost is the lowest the city has ever obtained on tax warrants, Upham said. The warrants will be redeemed in five months.

Yesterday's sale brought the total of 1940 warrants sold by the city to $17,000,000. The city has authority to sell up to $27,750,000 of warrants against its 1940 tax levy [75 per cent of the total levy of $37,000,000]. This leaves $10,750,000 of 1940 warrants that may be sold before the limit is reached. No 1941 warrants have been sold.

Upham reported that a total of $46,400,000 of warrants were sold in the last week, including board of education and relief warrants. Relief warrants totaling $3,900,000 were sold at prices to yield 1 per cent. The yield on the board of education warrants ranged from 1 to 1⅞ per cent, varying according to redemption dates, the latest of which is next November.

FORD INVENTS NEW TRACTOR TO PLOW TALL CORN

Washington, D. C., Feb. 15 [Special].—A "hedge hopping" tractor has been invented by Henry Ford, the United States patent office disclosed today in awarding to the motor manufacturer patent No. 1,231,710.

The new tractor rolls over the ground at varying clearances above the surface. Thus, the patent states, "the maximum clearance above the ground is provided so that the tractor may be used for cultivating relatively tall corn and similar crops." In other words, the tractor will pass over the tops of crops without causing damage. It may be lowered so as to give maximum pull as is desired when plowing or doing heavy work, the patent declares.

This "hedge hopping" effect is obtained by a novel wheel suspension developed by Ford which is said to differ from the conventional tractor in that all the wheels may be raised or lowered relative to the tractor. When the wheels are in their lowest positions, the tractor is elevated to give maximum clearance. When they are in their upper positions, the tractor hugs the ground and its center of gravity is lowered, thus giving maximum traction.

FORECLOSURES ON CITY HOMES DIP 25 PER CENT

Washington, D. C., Feb. 15 (AP).—Mortgage foreclosures on city homes declined 25 per cent last year to the lowest level since 1926, the Federal Home Loan Bank board reported today.

The board said that there were 75,310 foreclosures on nonfarm property, compared with 100,961 in 1939. This was at a rate of four foreclosures for each 1,000 urban dwellings last year, against a rate of 5.3 in 1939 and 13.3 at the depression peak in 1933.

The federal housing administration reported at the same time that lending institutions operating under the FHA insured mortgage program had originated $880,465,000 of small home mortgages during 1940, an increase of 18.8 per cent over 1939.

Du Pont Loses Claim to Sole Use of Word 'Cellophane'

Richmond, Va., Feb. 15 (AP).—United States District Court Judge Robert N. Pollard has denied the claim of the du Pont company to the exclusive use of the word "cellophane." In refusing to enjoin the Sylvania Industrial corporation from use of the term, Judge Pollard held in effect that "cellophane" is a generic term and that no other word or combination of words could adequately describe the product.

GREAT WESTERN FREE OF COURT RULE THURSDAY

Second Big Railroad to Clear Hurdles.

The Chicago Great Western railroad will emerge from reorganization at midnight Wednesday, becoming the second major system in the nation to return to private control from bankruptcy proceedings growing out of the depression of the early 1930s.

Judge Woodward approves rail's reorganization.

The Chicago and Eastern Illinois road was the first large railroad to complete reorganization. It cleared the last hurdle Dec. 31, 1940.

The reorganization of the Great Western will be practically completed when the properties are turned over to a successor corporation in compliance with orders issued yesterday by Federal Judge Charles E. Woodward.

Approves Terminal Purchase.

The successor company will be the Chicago Great Western Railway company. The old company was the Chicago Great Western Railroad company.

Besides signing orders directing the transfer of the property to the new company, Judge Woodward also approved purchase for $1,500,000 of the St. Paul Bridge and Terminal Railway company properties, now leased, and authorized the new road to borrow $6,400,000 from the Reconstruction Finance corporation. The road will pledge $9,000,000 of its first mortgage bonds as security for the loan.

The Great Western went into reorganization six years ago under a petition filed Feb. 28, 1935, in federal court under section 77 of the amended bankruptcy act. Under the reorganization program, capitalization of the road was cut to $63,091,827 from $96,000,000.

Interest to be Paid.

Last Jan. 3 the Interstate Commerce commission authorized the Great Western to issue new securities as follows: $10,130,100 of first mortgage 4 per cent bonds, series A; $6,133,600 of general mortgage 4½ per cent bonds, 366,104 shares of 5 per cent $50 par value preferred stock, and 352,639 shares of $50 par value common stock.

G. A. Gladson, attorney for the reorganization committee, told the court interest on the new first mortgage bonds would be paid from the effective date of the plan upon the issuance of new securities. Interest to be paid immediately upon the 4½ per cent income bonds will amount to 6 8-10 per cent, Gladson said, but added that all cumulative interest on the income bonds since the effective date of the plan Jan. 1, 1938, will be paid by April 1, 1941.

No definite date has been set for the exchange of securities. Gladson said it was expected to be done within a few weeks.

The trustees were instructed to submit a final report of their trusteeship to the court by April 30.

REPORT CHILE TO REJECT U. S. 5 MILLION LOAN

SANTIAGO, Chile, Feb. 15 (AP).—Informed sources said today the Chilean government had decided to decline a projected loan of $5,000,000 by the United States Export-Import bank because of conditions of the loan as well as a belief that the need for it had passed.

Marcial Mora, finance minister, last month ordered the Chilean financial representative at Washington, Guillermo del Pedregal, not to accept the loan, intended to relief Chile's lack of dollar exchange, if Chile had to pay more than 3 per cent interest. It was reported then that the rate would be 4 per cent.

1940 AIR EXPRESS SHIPMENTS TOP 1 MILLION MARK

New York, Feb. 15 [Special].—For the first time in 13 years of air express service the number of shipments in 1940 surpassed the one million mark, reaching a total of 1,078,189 on 17 major airlines, the air express division of Railway Express Agency reported today. The total was an increase of 23.81 per cent over 1939.

Air express tonnage increased 31.61 per cent over 1939 to a total of 3,850 tons. Gross revenue was 27.59 per cent above the preceding year with domestic air express revenue exceeding $3,000,000.

The view is southward across Archer avenue. The main building will be 25 feet high. The plant is one of three which Studebaker will build at a total cost of nearly $50,000,000. One of the others will be in South Bend, Ind., and one in Fort Wayne.

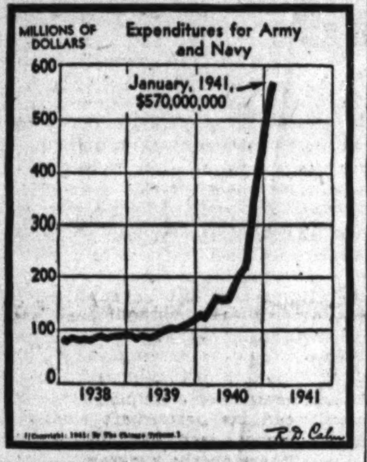
The government yesterday pushed forward three more national defense projects by awarding contracts for construction and other services totaling $36,768,585.

Atmospheric Nitrogen corporation, New York, received the largest of the contracts, $15,484,195 for construction and initial operation of a new anhydrous ammonia plant at West Henderson, Ky. The contract allowed $13,600,000 for cost of design, engineering, construction, and equipment, and $1,884,195 for operation. Atmospheric Nitrogen is a subsidiary of Allied Chemical and Dye company. The work will be done for the war department.

Let Denver Plant Award.

The department awarded to Broderick & Gordon of Denver, Colo., a $13,206,390 contract for construction of a small arms ammunition plant at Denver. As previously announced, Remington Arms Company, Inc., will operate the plant.



Federal expenditures for defense in recent years.

Letting of an $8,078,000 contract to three Nebraska companies for construction of the bombing plane assembly plant to be built near Omaha was announced by the war department. Recipients were Peter Kiewit Sons company, Omaha; Woods Brothers of Lincoln, and George W. Condon company, Omaha. Glenn L. Martin company, Baltimore plane builder, received a $250,000 contract to design the plant, supervise its construction, and assure the government the plant would be run at maximum efficiency. The project is expected to cost a total of $10,300,000.

Illinois Firms Get Orders.

Companies in Chicago and other Illinois cities shared in $1,456,490 of defense orders announced by the army and navy Friday. Western Cartridge company, East Alton, received a $1,165,263 order for small arms ammunition. Phoell Manufacturing company, Chicago, was awarded a contract to supply $153,427 of screws, nuts and machines, and Illinois Glove company, Champaign, received a $137,800 order for leather gloves.

Receivers of the Wabash railroad were authorized in federal court at St. Louis to buy $815,000 of rolling stock, including 150 automobile cars, 50 gondola cars, and 15 all steel cabooses.

PLANE FACTORIES TO BE PLACING MACHINES MAY 1

Studebaker corporation's three new aviation engine plants on which work has begun will be sufficiently advanced to permit start of installation of machinery by May 1, Harold S. Vance, chairman of the board, announced yesterday.

Grading work has been started for the factories, which will be at Chicago and South Bend and Fort Wayne, Ind. The three plants will cost a total of $49,700,000.

The Chicago plant will have 600,000 square feet of floor space. It will make precision parts for Wright aviation engines. Gears will be made at Fort Wayne, and the main manufacturing and assembly plant will be at South Bend.

"We are making headway without a moment being lost," Vance said. "Speed and more speed is our motto for this national defense task."

SEEK BROADER CONTROL OF N. Y. STOCK EXCHANGE

Nashville, Tenn., Feb. 15 (AP).—The newly formed National Committee of Stock Exchange Partners started a movement today to take control of the New York Stock exchange from Wall street and put it in "Main street." A. W. Mansfield of Thompson & McKinnon, Chicago, is chairman of the committee.

Proposing that the exchange "recognize and reorganize itself as a national institution," the committee sent from its headquarters here approximately 5,000 letters to members and allied members of the exchange outlining its program and urging support of amendments to the exchange constitution.

Chief among the proposals was one to increase membership on the board of governors to 45, with 21 members to be elected from the New York area; 23 from the rest of the nation, and for the chairman to serve ex-officio. The board now is composed of 32 members.

The committee also recommends study of advisability of changing the name of the exchange in event of the proposed reorganization.

A. W. Mansfield, chairman of the National Committee of Stock Exchange Partners, could not be reached last night for comment on the program.

BANK DECLARES DIVIDEND AFTER 7½ YEAR LAPSE

The first dividend on the stock of the Amalgamated Trust and Savings bank since 1933 was declared yesterday. The payment will be $1 a share on April 1 to holders of record March 25. The bank's dividend rate until Oct. 1, 1933, was $1.50 quarterly.

Duane Swift, cashier, said that directors had decided the growth in the bank's capital structure now justified resumption of dividends. He said the bank now has $400,000 capital, $300,000 surplus, and more than $200,000 in undivided profits and reserves.

Closed Bensenville Bank to Pay 5 Pct. on Deposits

The closed First State Bank of Bensenville has been authorized to make a 5 per cent repayment of deposits, Arthur C. Lueder, state auditor, announced yesterday. Totaling $7,130, it will bring repayments to 45 per cent. The Farmers and Merchants State Bank of Mendota will make a final payment of $11,112, or .0362 per cent, making a total of 65.0362 per cent repaid.

Kemper Seeks to Ease Profit Tax Inequities

Washington, D. C., Feb. 15.—James S. Kemper of Chicago, president of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, today urged congress to give immediate attention to removal of hardships and inequities imposed by the excess profits tax voted by congress at the last session.

"As the law now stands," Kemper said, "it imposes serious and, in some instances, apparently unintended hardships and inequities on taxpayers. Because of its complexities, it will be exceedingly difficult to administer, if, indeed, some of its provisions can be administered at all.

Asks Immediate Changes.

"The great majority of corporate taxpayers file their income tax returns on March 15. It may not be feasible for congress to approve extensive modifications of the present law before that date, but it should be possible to enact a limited number of the more urgent amendments needed.

"Modifications proposed by the chamber's committee on federal finance would permit greater administrative efficiency and at the same time give immediate relief from some of the hardships and inequities. Amendments for these purposes should be made applicable to income of the taxable year 1940."

Committee Proposals.

The chamber's committee recommends that the earnings basis should be retained; that discriminations against earnings basis should be removed; that final election of income basis at time of filing returns should not be required; that daily computation of invested capital should not be required; that there should be simplification of invested capital computations; that excess profits should be measured over the five year period; and that adequate and equitable relief be provided for abnormalities either of invested capital or earnings in the base period of the taxable year.

WIEBOLDT BUYS PARKING SPACE IN RIVER FOREST

Wieboldt Stores, Inc., operator of four large department stores in Chicago and suburbs, yesterday purchased from the Bowman Dairy company for $160,000 cash a tract of land just south of its Oak Park-River Forest store, at Harlem avenue and Lake street, River Forest.

The property contains 61,000 square feet on part of which are three buildings of the dairy's Oak Park-River Forest distributing division. The vacan portion of the tract will be used for Wieboldt customers.

F. H. Kullman, vice president of Bowman Dairy, said that proceeds from the sale of the property will be used toward the construction of a new garage and office building east of the company's bottling plant at 7200 Central avenue, River Forest. He said present estimates indicate a cost of $175,000.

U. S. INDUSTRY HOLDS NEAR 11 YEAR PEAK RATE

Seasonal Dip Offset by Arms Making.

BY LELAND FORRESTER.

Seasonal downward tendencies and the midweek holiday caused mild recessions in some lines of industrial activity last week, but other lines recorded gains sufficient to keep business indices hovering around 11 year peaks on the average.

Shipbuilders were the busiest since world war days on orders that will take years to fill. Steel mills turned out a record tonnage of ingots. Factories were reported to be pouring $250,000,000 a week into workers' pockets, retail and wholesale trade felt the surge, and many factories, particularly the automobile plants, continued efforts to accumulate supplies of consumer goods before swinging into defense goods production in full stride.

Contract Letting Stepped Up.

Industries doing defense work rushed plant expansions on a big scale. How fast such expansions are being undertaken was indicated by a defense commission report showing that contracts totaling $375,000,000 were let in January for new plant facilities, compared with a total of less than $700,000,000 in the seven preceding months.

Banks in Chicago and New York City increased their loans to business men, and in the textile industry, which has large military orders to fill, cotton cloth makers increased operating schedules.

The course of industrial activity in recent weeks, as measured by the Associated Press seasonally adjusted composite index, which is based on 1929-'30 activity as 100.

Indices which were lower were the figures for new security offerings, bank clearings, railroad freight loadings, and electric power production. Automobile output, which normally would be dropping, held nearly steady at 127,500 units last week, against 127,675 in the preceding week. Automobile makers received $45,135,000 of additional defense contracts. Contract awards for residential construction held steady.

Index at All-Time Peak.

An all-time record high level was reached by the Associated Press weekly index of industrial activity. The index, adjusted for seasonal variations and based on 1929-'30 levels as 100, compared as follows:

	Latest week.	Previous week.	Year ago.
Automobile prod....	*129.9	124.5	105.7
Steel mill act......	133.8	133.6	92.3
Cotton mfg. act......	146.1	145.4	121.5
Electric pwr. prod..	*139.5	138.8	125.9
Residential bldg.....	125.5	125.5	91.4
Total carloadings....	82.0	83.3	72.5
Composite index....	*124.9	124.1	102.3

*New 1941 high.

Such industrial setbacks as took place last week were considered insignificant in view of the holiday curtailments and the high levels at which operations still stood as compared with the corresponding week last year.

For industry generally one of the most disturbing developments was strike trouble at several plants engaged in defense work. Government officials expressed concern.

STOCKS STEADY AFTER WORST DROP IN MONTHS

Gains Outnumber Dips at Close of Market.

New York, Feb. 15 (AP).—The stock market steadied today after its worst week in about nine months.

Easing of tension in the far east, combined with the belief yesterday's relapse had been overdone, brought in buyers at the start of trading. Gains at the best ranged from fractions to more than a point. There were scattered letdowns at the last, but many leaders closed at their highs for the day.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks rose .3 of a point to 40.1. On the week the composite showed a net loss of 2.2 points, biggest for any similar period since the week of May 25, when liquidation was touched off by the Nazi drive into France.

Sales Largest in Seven Weeks.

The two hour turnover of 404,030 shares was the largest for any Saturday since Dec. 28 and compared with 175,470 a week ago.

A reflection of recent private sales of sizable blocks of stocks was seen in the case of Libby, McNeill & Libby common, which today fell ⅛ point to 5⅝. It was the most active issue of the day. On Jan. 29 a 3,000,000 share block of this stock was offered "over-the-counter" at 6⅞. It was understood dealer support had been withdrawn. Kress, which weakened yesterday after a previous private sale, recovered ⅝ of a point.

Stocks on the "Big board" started on the downward path Monday as war and tax imponderables seemingly offset industrial hopefulness. The decline gained momentum Tuesday and took further strides Thursday after the Lincoln's birthday holiday when rumblings in the far east revived Wall street's nervousness. Selling Friday was the briskest in several months and actual volume the largest since late December.

CHICAGO LIST WEAK.

Continued weakness was evident on the Chicago Stock exchange yesterday when out of 68 traded issues, 33 declined, 13 moved up, and 22 remained unchanged in price. Transactions in the two and one-half hour session totaled 13,000 shares. Libby, McNeill & Libby stock, the volume leader, closed at 5⅝, a decline of ⅛ point.

TIN AND RUBBER CLIMB AS WAR TALK IS REVIVED

Wool and Coffee Set New Peaks, Then Ease.

A new 1941 high for tin and a wide swing in rubber prices as the result of threatened disturbances in the far east, plus the year's top prices for wool tops and Santos coffee stood out in last week's commodity futures trading. With the single exception of cottonseed oil, major staples made the best showing in several weeks and advanced uniformly. Cash markets were generally steady.

New war alarms in the orient and reports that Dutch shipping might be withdrawn from Pacific trade routes stirred the tin and rubber markets. Tin for May delivery jumped 1 cent a pound during the week to finish at a peak of 51.20 cents, while the cash metal added 0.87½ cent at 51.12½ cents.

Rubber Gains Reduced.

Profit taking trimmed rubber's earlier gains, but the commodity was 0.31 cent higher at 20.11 cents a pound in the May position and 0.47 cent ahead in the cash market at 20.37 cents.

Wool tops were firmly supported and reached $1.24 3-10 a pound in May contracts before ending the week 2.6 cents ahead at $1.24 2-10. Santos coffee weakened after setting a top 8.02 cents a pound in May futures, but the close was 0.27 cent higher at 7.90 cents. The cash price was raised ¼ cent to 8½ cents. Hides showed strength thruout the week and gained 0.35 cent a pound at 12.60 cents in the June position.

Lead Price Marked Up.

A 0.15 cent a pound boost in the cash price of lead to 5.50 cents, East St. Louis basis, highlighted the other nonferrous metal markets. In the May futures, lead was 0.09 cent higher at 5.44 cents, zinc advanced 0.40 cent to 9.40 cents, and copper edged forward 0.05 cent to 11.45 cents.

JUSTICE OFFICE ASKS REVERSALS IN TRUST RULINGS

FTC Asserts Legal Loop Holes Are Created.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 15 (AP).—Thurman Arnold, assistant attorney general, proposed today that the Supreme court be asked to reverse some of its previous antitrust decisions in cases involving the Clayton and Sherman acts.

Thurman Arnold.

His suggestion was made after W. T. Kelley, chief counsel for the Federal Trade commission, had testified before the monopoly investigation committee that Supreme court decisions had created legal loopholes in the antitrust laws. Kelley said that the laws had failed to prevent concentration in many industries, such as aluminum, automobile, meat-packing, cans, cement, steel, and others. He suggested that congress revise the laws to make them "effective."

Mentions Close Votes.

Arnold, chief of the government's antitrust division, interrupted Kelley to say that many past antitrust decisions by the Supreme court had been by vote of 5 to 4. "Every effort should be made," he said, to bring these points before the court again."

Kelley agreed and said that in the government's antitrust actions against Standard Oil, United States Steel, and International Harvester company, the Supreme court had gone outside the "intent of congress." He suggested broadening a section of the Clayton act which prohibits acquisition of stock of one corporation by another when such acquisition restrains trade. He proposed a prohibition against acquisition of assets as well.

Identical Bids Increase.

An increase in "identical bidding" for government contracts since inauguration of the vast national defense program was reported, Arnold said. "Complaints of identical bidding have increased by leaps and bounds. I can't even guess how many we get in a day."

Arnold said a typical recent complaint of "identical bidding" involved an army contract for cement. Two identical bids were received and rejected, Arnold related, and another firm from outside the territory offered a much lower bid.

"The two original bidders then wanted to reopen bidding and promised even lower bids," he said. "They wanted to show this outsider what they would do to price cutters."

ASSOCIATED GAS PLANS INCREASED BUILDING IN 1941

Outlines Budget Calling for $28,000,000.

New York, Feb. 15 (AP).—Trustees of the Associated Gas and Electric system, reorganizing under the federal bankruptcy laws, today outlined a budget for a $28,000,000 construction program in 1941, an increase of $3,000,000 over the 1940 budget, because of demands of the national defense program and the favorable business situation.

The outline was contained in a report filed in the United States District court, southern district. The report was the fifth since reorganization began Jan. 10, 1940.

Figures for Other Years.

In 1939 the construction budget was $17,884,757, and in 1938 it was $14,808,000.

About $7,000,000 in 1941 was allocated to provide for additional power plant capacities and $16,500,000 for minor or normal construction work.

Of the $4,500,000 earmarked for major transmission and substation work, $2,300,000 will be spent in Pennsylvania, $550,000 in Virginia, $725,000 in North Carolina, and $925,000 elsewhere.

Debts Are Reduced.

The report also disclosed that notes payable to banks and other similar obligations of subsidiaries of Associated Gas and Electric corporation were reduced from $14,534,628 as of Jan. 10, 1940, to $6,034,820 as of Feb. 1 this year. Nearly $2,000,000 of the latter sum consisted of new obligations incurred primarily for construction requirements of certain operating subsidiaries.

The trustees said an annual report, covering income and the cash position of the system, would be prepared before the next quarterly report due May 15.

GRAIN TRADERS DISCOURAGED BY NARROW MARKET

Liquidation developed in the grain markets late yesterday. Wheat lost ⅜ cent a bushel, corn ⅜ to ¾ cent, oats ⅜ to ⅝ cent, and rye ⅛ to ⅜ cent. Soy beans were unchanged to ⅛ cent lower.

Several large professional traders sold their holdings of wheat and corn futures, brokers said, having become discouraged over the failure of the markets to hold even small rallies. Uneasiness over the political situation in southeastern Europe was understood to have had some influence on the markets. Weather conditions in the southwest were reported favorable for the winter wheat crop.

Lard futures closed 2½ to 5 cents per 100 pounds lower in sympathy with grain. After the close it was announced that stocks of lard in cold storage in Chicago had increased 2,660,000 pounds during the first half of February. Traders had expected a reduction of about 2,000,000 pounds.

LATIN AMERICAN BEEF SHIPMENTS TO U. S. CLIMBING

Sales to England Slowed by Perils of War.

Unable to get meat to England in the volume they had expected to ship, packers of South America and Cuba are taking advantage of the high level of prices in the United States by disposing of large quantities in this country. Most of the imports are canned beef from Argentina, Uruguay, Paraguay, and Brazil, and fresh and frozen carcasses from Cuba. Shipping dangers and a lack of cargo space have hindered meat shipments to England.

During the week ended Feb. 5, the latest period for which figures are available, the port of New York received 1,134,408 pounds of beef from these countries, the department of agriculture reported yesterday. Imports at New York for the same period last year were less than 100,000 pounds. From Jan. 2 to Feb. 5 beef imports aggregated 4,801,220 pounds at this port, about double the 2,400,880 pounds received during the same period in 1940.

Canada Sells More Here.

Canadian cattle raisers are sending more beef animals over the border into the United States. Imports of live Canadian beef cattle for the week ended Feb. 6 totaled 1,912 head, compared with 961 the same week last year. The total for the period Jan. 1 to Feb. 6 at 13,875 head showed a gain of 90 per cent over the 7,275 head received during this time last year.

Canadian and South American exporters are getting from 25 to 30 per cent more for their cattle and beef than they received early last year, it was said at the Chicago stockyards yesterday. Packers yesterday wholesaled dressed carcasses of beef from $14 to $21 a hundred pounds, compared with a range of $11 to $16.50 a year ago, an increase of 27 per cent.

Cattle Markets Mixed.

Live steers purchased on the Chicago market during last week averaged $11.55 a hundred pounds, which was $2.60 higher than the same week last year, a rise of 29 per cent. Cattle markets fluctuated rather sharply, but average costs were almost the same as the week before.

Hogs last week sold at the lowest prices in five weeks, the six day average, at $7.75 a hundred pounds, being off 10 cents, and lowest since the week ended Jan. 11.

Lamb prices were mostly higher, the six day average, at $10.40, showing 15 cents gain.

CITY'S VETERANS OF 1864 HONOR NATIONAL CHIEF

Meet to Lay Plans for Annual Encampment.

For the second time within a few days [the first was on Lincoln's birthday] four Chicago civil war veterans got out their uniforms yesterday, brushed their wide brimmed hats, pinned medals on their chests, and set out for a big time.

They weren't disappointed. It was a big time replete with flags and bunting, speeches and jokes, songs and a hearty meal, all in tribute to the grand old man of the Grand Army of the Republic, W. W. Nixon of Jewell, Kas., commander in chief, 95 years old. Altho Commander Nixon was in Chicago to discuss arrangements for the national encampment of the G. A. R., its auxiliary, and affiliates next September, he did not mix business with pleasure last evening in the Hotel Sherman.

Old School Courtliness.

Instead he presided with old school courtliness and exchanged amenities at the speakers' table with his host, Hiram H. Shumate, 94, department commander of Illinois, and with two members of his executive board who had come a long way to be present, Col. Russell Martin of Los Angeles, Cal., adjutant general of the national G. A. R., and George Gay of Boston, Mass.

"Come, come, young man, I'm like Barrymore and will only have my left profile photographed," he stubbornly insisted to a photographer. "If you must catch my picture talking into this thing," he added, pointing to the microphone, "let's change its position, not mine." He posed stiffly like a wax statue but his right eye winked mischievously at a pretty member of the Daughters of Union Veterans who sat beside him.

"I want to thank you all for the kindness, love, and friendship which you have given me," announced Col. Martin, whose erect military bearing belies his 94 years. "Believe me, it has helped me to keep my health and preserve this school girl complexion."

Treason—Then and Now.

Comrade Gay, who at 93 was the youngest veteran present, rose from his chair with alacrity when called to speak. "The day I need a microphone, you'll all be deaf," he boomed into the public address system. "I just want to say that once more democracy is on trial and that while we are arming to the teeth to preserve it we should be cleaning our backyards of the alien elements who are trying to destroy it. I tell you they didn't call subversive propaganda 'freedom of speech' in '61 and '65." The glasses rattled as he pounded on the table. "They called it treason and that's what it is today!"

At the Chicago veterans' table the nodding head of J. H. Lewis, colored, 100 years old, lifted with a start. Leaning across to his local comrades, Milton Myers, 99; Ezra Peebles, 97, and Maj. A. E. Gage, 97, he commented, "He has said it, gentlemen. That's what it is, treason. It's too bad we aren't young enough to do something about it."

Radio Actress Dies

"Marge," of the radio team of "Myrt and Marge," who died yesterday.

Englewood, N. J., Feb. 15 (AP).—Marge—in real life Mrs. Peter Fick—29 year old member of the radio team of Myrt and Marge, died today in childbirth. The child, a boy, survived.

Marge was the daughter of a mother and daughter team that had been on the air continuously since November, 1931, in a program of the backstage troubles of a theatrical family.

Marge married Fick, an Olympic champion swimmer, last year. She had been married twice before and had a son by each of her previous marriages.

There was only 17 years difference in age between her and her mother, Mrs. Myrtle Vail, the widow of a vaudeville actor. The younger woman's first job was in vaudeville with her mother and father, as a singer and dancer. Following her father's death, her mother began writing stories of her experiences backstage, and soon the first show of Myrt and Marge was ready. Marge's stage name was Donna Damerel.

THE Reason FOR A LAIN & SON PREFERENCE

THE steady growth of the preference for Lain & Son, which is now 30 to 1, 30 times the average is not so astounding when you consider the reasons for Lain's leadership. No business ever grew which did not give the public extra values. This is a Lain & Son policy . . . to give you extra services which can not be duplicated. One of these unduplicated services is the Imperial Quartet and organist, another is the beautiful, carefully planned Lain & Son Chapels.

Into every one of their services there goes that care and consideration which has made Lain & Son funerals outstanding.

When you consider the many reasons for Lain & Son prestige and preference, and know that their prices are usually lower, you will understand Chicago's overwhelming acceptance of Lain services.

'Life With Father' Celebrates Year's Run at Blackstone

Bright Comedy Nears Chicago Stage Record

By Cecil Smith.

Birthday greetings to "Life with Father" are in order. Last night a lavish party, given by Oscar Serlin, the producer, celebrated the successful completion of 52 consecutive weeks of playing at the Blackstone theater. The second year, to be quite literal about it, actually begins on Wednesday, for "Life with Father" opened in Chicago on Feb. 19, 1940.

When "Life with Father" was first presented here on that memorable February evening a year ago, nobody could have ventured to predict a year of life for it on the Chicago stage. To be sure, it seemed from the very beginning to be the comedy of the decade, the one play so universal in its appeal and so appealing in its charm and good taste that every one with the price of a ticket would be fairly sure to want to see it sooner or later. But a year is a very, very long time in the theater. The most successful play of the 1930s, "You Can't Take It with You," closed after 49 weeks, and there had been no other recent runs to compare with that.

By now even the wildest box office hopes of last February have been proved too pessimistic. "Life with Father" still attracts audiences. Thousands of Chicagoans and thousands more visitors from out of town have not seen it yet, and the number of playgoers who want to see it twice, or even several times, is fantastically large.

Will "Life with Father" ultimately establish a new all time run record for the Chicago stage? That remains to be seen. On March 29 it will tie the engagement of "Abie's Irish Rose," which remained at the Studebaker theater for 58 weeks, from Dec. 23, 1923, to Feb. 1, 1925. If Chicago audiences continue to support "Life with Father" until May 17, the historic engagement of "Lightnin'" will be equalled. "Lightnin'" opened at the Blackstone theater—the present home of "Life with Father"—on Sept. 11, 1921, and closed on Dec. 9, 1922, at the end of 65 weeks. No other play in the entire chronicle of the Chicago stage has ever enjoyed such success.

During the first year of "Life with Father" Lillian Gish has never missed a performance. Percy Waram was forced out twice by vocal cords which refused to function. There have been changes in the rôles of the two youngest boys, as the original players grew too big and too wise to continue realistically in them. Several other minor rôles have seen a reshuffling of personnel, and one member of the cast, Shirley De Me, died during the year.

But despite these inevitable small readjustments, "Life with Father" is still the same play, with the same admirable principal actors, the same gloriously Victorian decors, the same richly humorous lines and situations, and the same nostalgic fascination of a bygone age. Even if I could, I would not retract a single word of enthusiasm I may ever have uttered for "Life with Father," for by its own merits it has continued to prove that it is the play of the decade. I salute the memory of Clarence Day, the original author; and I propose a series of toasts—to Russel Crouse and Howard Lindsay, who recreated the Day family in terms of the stage; to Oscar Serlin, who went thru privation and faced financial risks during the year preparatory to production; to Lillian Gish, Percy Waram, and all their excellent collaborators, for their skill and ripe understanding, and to the Blackstone theater for once again housing a play worthy of its great past tradition.

Just as "Life with Father" celebrates its first anniversary, another comedy which bears a little similarity to it opens at the Harris theater. Tomorrow evening we shall see "My Sister Eileen," which, like "Life with Father," has been fashioned into a play out of separate and scattered biographical sketches which first appeared in the New Yorker magazine.

"My Sister Eileen" is not, however, a period piece. Its time is the present and its locale is Greenwich village, where two sisters are somehow keeping body and soul together as they try to shape artistic careers for themselves. Now in its ninth week in New York, "My Sister Eileen" is one of the most popular and profitable nonmusical attractions there, being exceeded at the box office only by "The Corn is Green" [with Ethel Barrymore], "Arsenic and Old Lace," "Twelfth Night," and the incredible "Life with Father."

A very promising cast has been brought together for Chicago by Max Gordon, the producer, and George S. Kaufman, the stage director. In addition to Marcy Wescott, Audrey Christie, and Guy Robertson, all of whom were mentioned in this column last week, the company includes Philip Loeb, Theodore Newton, King Calder, Joan Castle, and Donald Cameron. The settings are the work of Donald Oenslager. Joseph Fields and Jerome Chodorov dramatized Ruth McKenney's stories.

Drama Notes

"Blossom Time" enters its final week tonight at the Grand Opera house. Next week the operetta will set forth on a midwestern tour which will include Milwaukee, Cincinnati, Pittsburgh, and other cities. "The Student Prince," which will follow "Blossom Time" into the same theater, will open next Sunday evening, with Ralph Magelssen, Marie Nash, and Walter Slezak in leading rôles.

Mark Love, the well known Chicago bass, has toured widely with a dramatized version of Mendelssohn's oratorio, "Elijah," singing the title rôle himself. After dozens of successful presentations in other cities, Mr. Love will bring his production into the Auditorium theater for 10 performances beginning on Saturday, March 1. The stage director is John Ross Reed. Mr. Love and Raymund Koch, Chicago baritone, will alternate in the part of Elijah. The singers of the other rôles have not been announced. The production is replete with realistic stage effects, and employs a chorus of 100 voices and a ballet. Matinées will be offered on March 2, 8, and 9. There will be no Sunday evening performances.

B. G. De Sylva, producer of "Du Barry Was a Lady," has now become the chief executive of Paramount motion pictures. This may mean that his three present successes—"Du Barry" here at the Erlanger theater, and "Louisiana Purchase" and "Panama Hattie" in New York — may be his last legitimate undertakings, at least for some time. On the other hand, backstage gossip at the Erlanger runs to the effect that he may produce a large musical in Hollywood. That would be a good idea, in view of the fact that New York musicals seldom travel as far as the Pacific coast.

Ferenc Molnar's comedy, "The Swan," opened at the Goodman theater last Thursday, as the fifth production in the members' series. The play, which is open to the general public, will continue nightly thru March 1, with a single matinée on Thursday of this week. The current production of the Goodman theater children's series is "Abe Lincoln—New Salem Days." Dramatized by Charlotte Chorpenning, the play will be given every Saturday afternoon thru March 8.

Danny Mann, the center comedian of the three "Pluto Boys" in "New Pins and Needles," admits that he joined the International Ladies' Garment Workers' union in order to get a job in the revue. Before he was admitted, however, he worked for nine months as a shipping clerk. In his spare time these days he is working with other members of the cast, serving as director of an informal production of "Outward Bound," which the players hope to give some time before long. He is a cousin of Arch Oboler, one of the country's most celebrated radio script writers.

Under the general title of "Theater Caravan," 10 weekly Sunday afternoon discussions are now being presented at the Jewish People's institute by Lewis Leverett, a former member of the Group theater. The discussions constitute a chronological survey of the American theater. Today's discussion, at 3 o'clock, is the third in the series. The subject is "1916-'17-'18: Time Out to Save Democracy." Next Sunday the discussion will concern "1922: The Revolting Playwrights."

A perfectly unauthoritative guess names April 1 as the date on which the Chicago company of "Arsenic and Old Lace" will be ready for public showing.

The first illustrated lecture in Burton Holmes' new series of five will be given in Orchestra hall Wednesday and Friday evenings and Saturday evening. The subject is "Happy Hawaii." Next week Mr. Holmes will present "The Pageant of Mexico."

New Barry Play Is Allegorical and Patriotic

By Burns Mantle.

NEW YORK [Special]. — Philip Barry, whose current "The Philadelphia Story" is one of the theater's greatest successes, has stirred a good deal of talk and hardly any excitement with a new play called "Liberty Jones." This, Mr. Barry has frankly explained, is one of his "dears," by which he means to say that it is one of the plays he has had the most pleasure writing. He would rank it with his religious drama, "John," his metaphysical "Hotel Universe," and his socialistic fantasy, "White Wings." None of these was successful, but each of them gave Mr. Barry a lot of satisfaction.

In the old days dramatists were conscious of an obligation to write for the theater and to meet the the demands of playgoers. Nowadays, once they achieve financial independence, they frequently assert their right to write for themselves. It is a good trick when they can do it well, and frequently it results in something unusually stirring in entertainment, as in the case of Robert Sherwood's "There Shall Be No Night" and Moss Hart's "Lady in the Dark."

John Beal.

"Liberty Jones" is an American allegory and was unquestionably inspired by a deeply patriotic feeling for the future of America. Liberty Jones is the heroine. Liberty is dying when we meet her, dying on a couch of luxury. None of the learned doctors who have been called to help her, old men education, letters, divinity and law, have been able to do her much good, and in her delirium she is menaced by three ominous specialists from the other side of the ocean, characterized as the three shirts.

Liberty's cry for help is heard by her old Irish nurse, Maggie, who hails, as you might suspect, from that battle ground of liberty which is Ireland.

Also by a young and idealistic aviator in the navy, who would be representing, according to the analysts, those youthful American liberals who stand ready to serve Liberty, with or without conscription, the minute they are convinced of her real need of them.

• • •

Tom Smith is such a gallant, altho confused, young liberal, and he is accompanied by his other self, Dick Brown. Liberty is naturally attracted to the stalwart Tom, and inclined to agree with him when he orders that all the nostrums the quacks have prescribed be tossed out the window. She even tries to rise from her bed and walk a little for Tom, and her strength grows from that moment on.

But Tom, too, has some difficulty making up his mind about just how to proceed. He thinks, perhaps, the menacing three from abroad have something. He is strongly against their schemes to kidnap Liberty, but he thinks perhaps they can be satisfied if he offers them a part of this America, which is the last free park in the world, in which to demonstrate their theories.

Taking a little, the three shirts would try to take all, and then Tom rebels. Among the things that help him to make up his mind is the fact that the sword worn and used by Liberty's grandfather falls from the wall almost at his feet. With this sword he attacks the enemy, disarming two of them. The third shoots and wounds him, but before the invaders can take advantage of this situation Tom's friends, the other young liberals, close in for his protection and drive them out of the picture.

This leaves Liberty and Tom free to acknowledge their love and their gratitude, and gives them strength to face and cross over a dark bridge that has been frightening them. [The bridge represents reality, according to my better informed friends.]

So off they go, into the bright light. Presently Liberty returns alone, draped in Tom's service coat, with epaulets that suggest wings. The young liberal may have been sacrificed, for all I know, that Liberty could live.

• • •

The debates, critical and lay, that have been aroused by the Barry play have been greatly varied. Some of the professional reviewers have spoken of it as being almost childishly simple, others as being pretentious and obscure. None has accepted it as satisfying theater entertainment, save in its beauty as a stage spectacle and the competence of its acting.

The Theater Guild is the sponsor, which should guarantee the subscription list, and a paying trade may be developed. In any event "Liberty Jones" stands for something Mr. Barry wanted to say, and the Theater Guild could do no less than give him a chance to say it, seeing what it owes him for saving their last two seasons with "The Philadelphia Story."

• • •

For my own part, I found the allegory partly rewarding and largely disappointing in that there is so much in the Barry argument that should be made plain just now, and yet is not made plain in "Liberty Jones." The fight that must be made for the life of Liberty, if she is to be saved, is obvious enough, and the false doctrines of the quacks who would save her demand exposure. But the facts must be stated forthrightly and not poetically, it seems to me. It is no time for realism to be obscured by a filmy beauty, however impressive the beauty may be.

John Beal, one of the cinema's favorite juveniles, plays young Tom Smith with ardor, conviction, and technical resource. Nancy Coleman, the young girl who was Susan's adorable daughter in "Susan and God," is the ailing Liberty, and nicely enthused by her responsibilities. The others, including William Lynn as a meek and worried Uncle Sam [bunting], and Martha Hodge as a stylish and flighty Aunt Columbia [bunting], are of help to the proceedings, and the lofty and luminous stage settings, by Raoul Pene Du Bois, are of striking beauty.

Saidenberg Debut

Daniel Saidenberg made his New York debut as a conductor on Jan. 28, directing a new chamber orchestra in a concert sponsored by the publishing house of Boosey & Hawkes. The former conductor of the Saidenberg Symphonietta was brought to New York to give programs of works published by this company, and the first concert featured the premières of compositions by three contemporary composers. One of these was the eminent American, Aaron Copland. The composer-pianist, Béla Bartók, and his piano-playing wife were soloists for the occasion. Following the New York engagement Mr. Saidenberg and his ensemble will give some 20 to 25 concerts thruout the east.

2nd YEAR!
"Nothing could be better for the American theatre than that Life with Father should be eternal."— Lloyd Lewis, Chicago Daily News.

"Life in Chicago would be unthinkable without Life with Father. May its second year, like its first, be fabulous, fortunate and fascinating."— Claudia Cassidy, Chicago Journal of Commerce.
"Life with Father is by now a national institution. And well it might be, for it is one of the most charming things we have ever seen in the theatre."— Robert Pollak, The Daily Times.
"As Life with Father enters upon its second year, it becomes plain that all Chicago would love to adopt Father permanently, and Mother, too, and the four boys, and Cousin Cora, and all the rest of these endearing people who had plenty of Lebensraum and who never heard of a defense bottleneck. Long years from now, Life with Father will be recalled as the most memorable comedy of this time, and I wish that we could keep it with us as an object lesson until we ourselves have learned to live as richly and as optimistically as the Days did."— Cecil Smith, Chicago Tribune.

Rudolph Ganz to Play Own Composition With Symphony

Apollo Musical Club Will Sing Tuesday Night

By Cecil Smith.

The midwinter choral concert of the Apollo Musical club, Edgar Nelson, director, takes place in Orchestra hall Tuesday evening. The program, consisting of three works heard here only infrequently, presents an interesting diversity of style. Johann Sebastian Bach's "Magnificat," which has not had a big league performance here since the Cincinnati May Festival chorus sang it with the Chicago Symphony orchestra in 1930, heads the list. Beethoven's Fantasia in C, for pianoforte solo, chorus, and orchestra, was last presented here in 1931. "The Music Makers," by Sir Edward Elgar, has remained in obscurity so long that it may by now be considered almost a complete novelty.

Dr. Nelson will, of course, conduct the Apollo club and the assisting members of the Chicago Symphony orchestra. The soloists are Bernice Rickman, soprano; Eileen Law, contralto; LeRoy Hamp, tenor; Michael Stewart, bass, and Elsie Alexander, pianist. Robert Birch is the organist. Since this is National Paderewski Testimonial week, the concert is dedicated to Ignace Jan Paderewski, in recognition of the golden anniversary of his American debut.

Elsie Alexander.

The "Magnificat" is the earliest of Bach's large scale choral works. The music dates from 1723, the first year of Bach's cantorship of the St. Thomas school in Leipzig. In the preceding years at Anhalt-Cöthen, Bach had been required principally to compose secular music. When he moved into a religious environment in 1723, the steady stream of cantatas and other church works began which continued without interruption until his death in 1750.

The "Magnificat," employing a Latin text, is abstract and florid in its musical nature. It has few, if any, of the touching moments of simple human sentiment which give so warm a glow to the "Passion According to St. Matthew." The music is treated structurally and architectonically, and the voice parts are embellished with an almost Italianate ornamental detail. The "Magnificat" is not a friendly work, but it is a noble and impressive one.

• • •

Since we have recently heard a very different, and much more personal, setting of the same text [albeit in English translation] by Vaughan Williams, it is startling to read a premonition of some such modern "Magnificat" in C. Hubert H. Parry's volume, "Johann Sebastian Bach," published 23 years before the Vaughan Williams work was written:

"There is hardly a bar," says Parry of the Bach work, "which could be taken to suggest that Bach intended to emphasize any personal aspect of the hymn of the Virgin. His purpose seems rather to be to suggest that Christian worshipers in a body adopt the hymn as an expression of praise, gratitude, and joy for themselves. . . . Such a subtle idea as the musical presentation of the humility, the proud joy, the exultation, the womanliness, and the wonder of the unique position which the Gospel narrative gives as the occasion for the hymn, would probably be too modern for any composer before the 20th century to concern himself with."

• • •

Beethoven's Choral Fantasia was last performed in Chicago by a chorus from the public schools, which appeared with Frederick Stock and the Chicago Symphony orchestra at Christmas, 1931. The Choral Fantasia, composed in 1808, is often supposed to be a preliminary sketch for the choral finale of the Ninth symphony, completed 15 years later. This assumption rests on the fact that the theme of the closing section of the Fantasia bears a strong resemblance to the main theme of the later "Ode to Joy" in the Ninth Symphony. Actually, however, there is no evidence that Beethoven had yet entertained any thought of setting the famous Schiller text to music, and he seems to have regarded the Choral Fantasia as a development of the thematic material of one of his songs, entitled "Gegenliebe."

"The Music Makers," first produced in Birmingham, England, in 1912, is the last of Sir Edward Elgar's important pieces for chorus and orchestra. The beginning of the world war in 1914 caused Elgar to turn his attention principally to patriotic subject matter, becoming virtually the musician laureate of Great Britain. Hardly any of his wartime works have proved to have enduring value. After the war Elgar's output was less prolific than before, and his only significant postwar compositions are the violin and piano sonata in E minor, the string quartet in the same key, the piano quintet in A minor, and the cello concerto.

"The Music Makers" employs a text by Arthur O'Shaughnessy, extolling musicians and dreamers as the prophets of future well being. Practical men and women of today, the poem asserts, are living out and bringing to realization the dreams of yesterday's musicians and artists.

In setting this contemplative thesis to music Elgar made use of liberal quotations from his own past works—the "Enigma" variations, the "Sea Pictures" for contralto and orchestra, the noble oratorio "The Dream of Gerontius" [which somebody ought to revive in Chicago], both of his symphonies, and the violin concerto. He also sprinkled in references to "La Marseillaise" and "Rule, Brittania."

TO CLOSE MUSIC SERIES

The History and Enjoyment of Music series in the Auditorium theater will be brought to a close next Sunday afternoon with a recital by the noted Italian lyric tenor, Tito Schipa.

Current Music News

Francis Aranyi, Hungarian violinist, will give his first loop recital on Tuesday night in Kimball hall. He has played in Chicago once before, when he recently gave a sonata recital with Heniot Levy in the Allerton hotel. Mr. Aranyi was good enough at the age of 13 to be accepted into the master class of Jeno Hubay. Later he studied with Willy Hess and Henri Marteau in Berlin. On the occasion of his debut with the Philharmonic orchestra in Vienna he played both the Brahms and Tschaikowsky concertos plus the Bach Chaconne. His European concert tours since that time have been extensive. Tuesday's recital opens with the Delius concerto which was given its first continental performance in 1920 in Berlin by Mr. Aranyi. The complete program:

Francis Aranyi.

Concerto .... Delius
Sixth Sonata, E Major, for solo violin .... J. S. Bach
Havanaise .... Saint-Saëns
Three Rumanian Dances from Hungary .... Bartok
From My Native Country .... Smetana

On Tuesday night the National Youth Administration orchestra will feature two soloists, Betty Valleau, violinist, and Bernice Tobin, cellist, in its concert in the Illinois music concert hall. Irwin Fischer will conduct.

Later in the season the NYA group will present three programs in the Goodman theater on Sunday evenings under the direction of Mr. Fischer. Each concert will feature the first performance in Chicago of some orchestral composition and also one soloist. Dates and soloists follow: March 9, Lois Bichl, cellist; March 23, David Chausow, violinist; April 6, Paul Parmelee, pianist. Two of the composition novelties are expected to be "Dawn" by the Chicago pianist, Storm Bull, and "Summer Eve" by Zoltan Kodaly.

Zerline Muhlman Metzger will direct the Fine Art Opera group in two performances of Thomas' "Mignon" in Kimball hall. The first, this afternoon, will have the following cast: Gwen Ekstrom, Mignon; Getrude Hildebrandt, Philine; Arthur Nordhem, Wilhelm; Otto Pabst, Lothario; Allan Sharp, Laertes; Richard Champley, Giarno; Jane Nelson, Frederick; Rolland Metzger, Antonio. The second performance, for next Sunday afternoon, will have a different cast.

An eight year old pianist, Sonia Gamburg, will be the soloist with the American Concert orchestra in its young people's concert in the Illinois music concert hall, on Saturday afternoon. She will play the second movement of Mozart's Concerto No. 23 in A major. Ralph Cissne will conduct and lecture briefly on the program.

An all-Russian program will be played by the Northwestern University Symphony orchestra, George Dasch, conductor, in Cahn auditorium of Scott hall today at 4 o'clock. Arwin Schweig, bass, will be the soloist. The program:

The musical organizations of the Salvation Army's William Booth Memorial Training college will give their annual concert on Friday night at the Army's Chicago temple, 1512 West Madison street. The varied program of instrumental and vocal numbers will be directed by Douglas Norris and Ronald Rowland. Commissioner Ernest I. Pugmire, commander of the Salvation Army forces in Chicago and the middle west, will preside.

A contest for scholarships for voice, piano, and violin students is being conducted under the auspices of the Chicago Woman's Musical club. It should be noted that the final date for entering applications has been advanced to March 10. Applications should be made to Mrs. Alice Mary Baenziger Adams, 1533 East Marquette road, Chicago.

A reception honoring the 15th anniversary of the Polish Arts club of Chicago will be held in the Cordon club, Fine Arts building, today at 3 o'clock. The musical portion of the afternoon will be provided by Thaddeus Kozuch, pianist, and the Sarmatia male chorus under the direction of Zdzislaw Skubikowski.

When Jan Kiepura, the Polish operatic and cinematic tenor, gives his recital in the Civic Opera house on Sunday afternoon, March 2, his concert will be sponsored by the Polish Women's Alliance of America. Proceeds of the event will go to the Paderewski Food Fund.

Rudolph Reuter, Chicago pianist and teacher, will give a lecture-recital on "What to Listen for in Order to Enjoy Music" at North Park college on Tuesday night, Feb. 25. He recently has led piano forums and given lectures and recitals for music teachers' groups in Minnesota, Nebraska, Ohio, Oklahoma, and Washington, D. C.

Sponsored by the Chicago Churches of Christ, the Chicago Radio ensemble, Lois Albright, conductor, will present a program of sacred music in the Auditorium recital hall on Tuesday evening.

Auto Licenses Theme of New Piano Concerto

By Edward Barry.

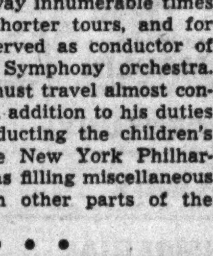
Many are the things which have moved composers to compose. Horses, sheep, hens, birds, insects, snakes, battles, voyages, the weather, caves, mountains, plains, drugs, alcohol, trains, engines, dams—these are only a few of the phenomena that at one time or another have found some sort of expression in music.

It remained for Rudolph Ganz, Chicago composer, conductor, pianist, and teacher, to investigate the esthetic possibilities of automobile licenses. Using a system which transforms numerals into the equivalent notes of the scale, he collected some tuneful auto license numbers, and, lo, the result was a piano concerto. No less a person than Secretary of State Edward J. Hughes has expressed his satisfaction at the signal honor which Illinois license tags are thus receiving.

This work is Dr. Ganz's contribution to the Chicago Symphony orchestra's golden jubilee season. He will play it in Orchestra hall this Thursday night and Friday afternoon with Frederick Stock conducting. Dr. Ganz has made 11 previous appearances with the orchestra, as pianist and as composer-conductor.

• • •

Dr. Ganz is a Swiss, born in Zurich in 1877. His first public appearance, which took place at the age of 10, was as a cellist rather than a pianist. Seven years later he turned up in public as a pianist, playing with the Lausanne Municipal orchestra. Out in the big world beyond the boundaries of his native country his official debut was made with the Berlin Philharmonic orchestra. This was in 1899. About the same time he conducted a symphony of his own composition in Berlin.



Rudolph Ganz. [Blackstone Photo.]

Dr. Ganz's American debut was made in 1902 in Chicago, whither he had come some two years before to take the headship of the piano department at the Chicago Musical college. He is now president of that institution, and his long and successful American career has more or less resolved around this city as a center. He has been away innumerable times on longer or shorter tours, and for six years he served as conductor of the St. Louis Symphony orchestra. Even now, he must travel almost continuously, for in addition to his duties here he is conducting the children's concerts of the New York Philharmonic as well as filling miscellaneous engagements in other parts of the country.

• • •

Dr. Ganz is known as a great wag and story teller. It is said that Sergei Rachmaninoff seeks him out when he comes to Chicago in the hope that his gloom may be lightened by his fellow pianist's tales.

Besides the regular Thursday-Friday pair, Dr. Stock and the orchestra will this week present a Young People's concert on Wednesday and a popular concert Saturday. The programs follow:

Thursday at 8:15 and Friday at 2:15. Frederick Stock, conductor. Rudolph Ganz, pianist.

Overture, "Polonia" .... Wagner
Symphony No. 3, D minor .... Bruckner
Concerto for Piano, E-flat major, Op. 32 .... Ganz

Rondo, "Till Eulenspiegel's Merry Pranks," Op. 28 .... Strauss

In Orchestra hall this afternoon Hans Lange will conduct the Civic orchestra in the second concert of its season. The Civic orchestra is a training school for orchestral players operated in conjunction with the Chicago Symphony orchestra. Frederick Stock bears the title of musical director.

The Civic orchestra's concerts are remarkable for their freshness and enthusiasm and are distinguished as well by a precision and polish which one does not ordinarily look for in an aggregation so young. The public is admitted and prices are exceedingly low. Today's program:

Overture to "Le Roi d'Ys" .... Lalo
"On Hearing the First Cuckoo in Spring" .... Delius
"Summer Night on the River" .... Delius
Symphony No. 4, D minor, Op. 120 .... Schumann
Serenade for Wind Instruments, Op. 7 .... Strauss
Suite from the Ballet, "The Fire Bird" .... Stravinsky

Notes of Music and Musicians

Jussi Bjoerling, young Swedish tenor of the Chicago and Metropolitan Opera companies, will give his only Chicago recital this afternoon in the Civic Opera house. Harry Ebert will accompany him in the following program:

Aria, from "The Magic Flute" .... Mozart
Die Mainacht; Ständchen .... Brahms
Verborgenheit; Fussreise .... Wolf
Aria, from "A Masked Ball" .... Verdi
King Heimer and Aslög .... Söderman
Aftonstämning .... Körling
Sverige .... Stenhammar
The Maiden Returned from the Trysting Place; The Wind in the Reeds; Black Roses .... Sibelius

Leo Kopp will conduct the Illinois Symphony orchestra tomorrow night in the Great Northern theater. For the occasion he will present the world première of his Second Symphony. His First Symphony was introduced likewise by the Illinois Symphony. Except for the symphony and a preceding Bach transcription the program will be devoted to a concert performance of excerpts from "Pelleas and Melisande," the rarely performed opera by Maurice Maeterlinck and Claude Debussy. It will be sung in English by four local singers: Louisa Hoe, soprano; Edward Stack and John Daggett Howell, baritones, and John MacDonald, bass. The order of the program is as follows:

Credo .... Bach
[Transcribed by Boessenroth]
[First performance in Chicago]
Symphony No. 2, Op. 9, C Major .... Leo Kopp
[First performance]
Excerpts from "Pelleas and Melisande" .... Debussy

Two performances are scheduled on the calendar of the busy American Opera company for this week. They are "Faust" tonight and "La Traviata" on Saturday evening. As usual they will be given in the Woman's Club theater. In "Faust" the cast will include Evon Stechow, Marguerite; Mildred Solarz, Siebel; Gladys McVoy, Martha; Frederick Rudin, Faust; John Alten, Valentine; Robert Ladoff, Mephistopheles; Martin Boughan, Wagner. In "La Traviata" the performers will be Violet Mumsen; Violetta; Alma Bedrit, Flora; Eleanora Bedrit, Annina; Joseph Folmer, Alfred; John Alten, the elder Germont; Irwin Burrichter, Gaston; Martin Boughan, Baron Douphal; Jonas Schleifer, d'Obrigny, and Ralph Rittenhouse, Dr. Granvil. Giovanni Berrafato will conduct both performances.

The company will also offer performances of "La Traviata" next Sunday and "Il Trovatore" the following Saturday night, March 1, in the same theater.

Our attention has been called to the fact that this is the 25th anniversary of the founding of the Illinois Federation of Music Clubs, Mrs. Royden J. Keith, president. Because of this anniversary the federation has expressed the hope that an Illinois boy or girl will win one of the $1,000 in the biennial National Federation of Music Clubs contest which occurs this year. It urges all those who feel qualified to enter the contest. The competitions for the state will be held on March 30 in the Lyon & Healy recital hall, but all applications must be in by March 12. These should be sent to the local chairman, Mrs. William H. Knapp, 2126 Orrington avenue, Evanston.

Next Sunday afternoon in Orchestra hall the Chicago Swedish Glee club will present its annual spring program under its director, Harry T. Carlson. Thelma von Eisenhauer, soprano, will be the guest soloist.

Marion Schroeder, soprano, and Aaron Leifer, pianist-accompanist, will perform for the Chicago Woman's Aid, 185 North Wabash avenue, tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock.

Tomorrow's concert for the Musicians' Club of Women will be given in the Fourth Presbyterian church at 2:30 by the Lyric Ensemble, Helen Leefelt, conductor; Alice R. Deal, Helen Benner, and Ruth Broughton.

By Mae Tinee.

Good Morning!

Intelligent acting glamorizes this little program melodrama which, without it, would be rather trite stuff.

After the first few scenes the action revolves about the efforts of Kitty Tracy, her saloonkeeper father, the parish priest, Father Cameron, and several other parties, to prove innocent Johnny Barnes, Kitty's fiancé, accused of murdering a slimy so and so whom he'd at one time caught annoying his girl. [Goshwhatasentence.]

Practically all the action occurs on the San Francisco waterfront.

Outstanding in support of the likable and capable Irene and Burgess are Barry Fitzgerald as a waterfront bum, Robert Armstrong as Cameron, and Raymond Walburn as the "admiral." . . . And SO nice to see Esther Ralston again!

Direction was capable.

See you tomorrow.

Disney's 'Fantasia' Will Have Chicago Debut Wednesday

Walt Disney's "Fantasia" will have its Chicago première at the Apollo theater on Wednesday under the sponsorship of the Woman's Auxiliary of the Grant Hospital of Chicago. It will bring to lovers of music a picturization of a group of musical masterpieces as interpreted by Walt Disney and his staff of artists and Leopold Stokowski and the Philadelphia Symphony orchestra.

Here Are Tests Buyers Use on Fine Furniture

"Popular Furniture Styles," a new booklet by Edith Weigle, tells which periods are most in favor with home owners and apartment dwellers, and answers questions about the mixing of styles and of woods. Price 5 cents by mail, 3 cents at the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street and Tribune Tower lobby.

By Edith Weigle.

February is the month of furniture sales. And when you purchase a dining room table, or a new couch for the living room, or a bedroom ensemble you are investing in something you'll be living with for many years to come, so it pays to know a little about what you're getting.

The following questions are used by one of the most famous retail firms in the country. Only if the answers are in the affirmative will this company's buyers purchase furniture which, in turn, they sell to their customers.

1. Is the case of the furniture of the best quality of hard wood: mahogany, walnut, maple, ash, beech, or birch? Is every individual piece kiln dried to prevent warping?

2. Are the legs a part of the corner post or base frame—not just doweled on?

3. Are there drawer frames in the case to make the drawers dustproof and are the drawer frames made an integral part of the inside construction of the case by being grooved or multiple doweled to the sides of the case—not just strips of wood?

• • •

4. Do the drawers have center guides? Are they hand fitted? And are they expertly dovetailed to insure strength in construction?

5. Are the veneers of the best quality? Are they sliced from the same piece of wood to obtain perfect matching and are they dried to a low moisture content to prevent warping and cracking?

6. Are the tops, sides, and drawer fronts made of eight ply panels [five thicknesses of wood]? Are the cores of the panels properly constructed and the veneers laid at right angles to the grain of the core to prevent warping?

7. Are the inlay and marquetry done skilfully by experts? Are there smooth edgings and almost invisible joinings?

• • •

8. Are the carvings roughed out, then cut by hand by skilled artisans to give character and beauty of detail?

9. Are veneers and wood glued by hand to obtain richness of color and to enhance the beauty of the grain?

10. Is the piece hand rubbed after each operation of the finish? Then waxed and again polished by hand?

11. Is the hardware of good quality—properly designed and proportioned for the design of the piece?

12. Are the tops of all of the pieces so finished that the grain of the wood is not hidden?

Ladies of Isabella to Initiate New Members

One hundred new members will be initiated by the Ladies of Isabella at a meeting at 8 o'clock Wednesday evening at the La Salle hotel. Miss Anna Pontius, recently elected supreme grand lady, will be the principal speaker. Mrs. Marie F. Boland, chairman of district deputies, will preside. Mrs. Theresa Murphy, supreme organizer, has arranged the initiation.

Quota International of Chicago to Fete Visitor

Miss Clara Frenzel of Waterloo, Ia., 7th district governor of Quota International, will be the guest of the Chicago unit of this service organization for business and professional women at a dinner Friday evening at the Hotel Sherman. Plans for the district conference, to be held April 19 and 20 at the Hotel Sherman, will be discussed.

Thru the Looking Glass

By Eleanor Nangle

Bleach your hair if you must, but make certain that a skilled operator does each touchup and that your hair gets far better than average care all the time. Bleached hair can be beautiful or baked looking, and intelligent care makes the difference.

We don't blame women for wanting golden hair. It's beautiful, it's eye-attracting, and it usually is flattering. But not all women can be blondes. Nature just didn't plan it that way. And it's always advisable for the brunette who wants to be blonde to think the whole project thru before she reaches for the bleach.

Women who were golden-haired in their childhood, and whose locks became darker as they grew older, are safer than the real brunette in bleaching their hair. Usually they have that important basic harmony between skin tone and hair. The true brunette with gray tones in her skin may find that bright golden hair is a completely unsuitable frame for her face.

• • •

This harmony is important. You'll look hard as nails if you don't have it. Deciding whether you have it should be your first consideration when you ponder taking to peroxide.

If you feel pretty safe on that score, your next problem is to make dead certain that the texture of your hair will stand bleaching. And remember that bleaching isn't a one-time thing. It's an endless process.

• • •

From this point on a conscientious and expert beauty operator is your stand-by. We know that some women bleach their own hair and do a pretty good job of it, but they are most emphatically the exception rather than the rule. We'd never advise a woman to attempt the job herself. If she can't afford the price of expert bleaching, plus good professional care between occasions, we think she ought to give up the whole notion.

Hair which is skilfully touched up, which is given much better than average care every day, and which occasionally gets professional reconditioning treatments may be successfully bleached for years. If the job is the homegrown kind, if the hair itself isn't kept beautifully between touchups, you can be absolutely certain that in the course of months or years it will become brittle as straw and utterly lusterless.

Eleanor Nangle, "thru her looking glass," sees everything that is new in the fascinating realm of beauty aids, and tells you about them daily in The Chicago Tribune.

Read Antoinette Donnelly's article in the Graphic section of today's paper. In it is news about hair and coiffures, and the relation of hairdoes to hats.

Household Forum

By Louise Bargelt

[Have you some household help that lightens labor; is there some convenience you could enjoy? We'll be glad to pass on your ideas to our readers. Address Louise Bargelt, The Chicago Tribune.]

Mrs. H. W., Ashland, Wis.—Last summer I used a number of gay enamels decorating flower pots, porch furniture, etc. Each can, even the tiniest, required stirring, which resulted in an accumulation of gorgeous little sticks. This gave me idea to do stirring with handles of kitchen gadgets, which I did. Now wooden handles of spoons, forks and other articles gleam with brilliant reds, yellows, blues, and greens. Any drip on to metal I remove with a scouring pad.

Mrs. Helen Smith, Chicago.—I take special pains to wipe dry all articles and dishes I place in refrigerator. In this way less moisture collects on freezing unit, and I'm sure I don't have to defrost refrigerator so often.

Ellen James, Chicago.—I should think it would be a good idea to perfume the wicks of birthday candles so they would give out a nice fragrance when they are "blown out."

Mrs. Cora Streeter, Milwaukee.—My husband sees to it that we have no "sticking windows" around our house in wintertime—or any other time. Whenever a window gets to acting up he applies a little liquid wax at the point where sash slides into frame. When this has dried the windows perform smoothly again.

Laura M. J., Aurora, Ill.—An old dish mop serves me splendidly when it comes to cleaning bedsprings. It twists in and out among the springs and does the work.

Mrs. Ted Drew, Chicago.—By way of getting ready for next summer: Why won't manufacturers of electric fans devise a simple everyday electric fan which can be screwed right into a ceiling light socket like any ordinary bulb?

J. Morrison, Chicago.—I use a cabbage cutter if I want to flake some soap to thin slices.

J. Ruby Anderson, St. Paul, Minn.—I use a clean clothespin when I'm removing a cake from pan. I just slip clothespin over edge of pan. It provides a cool handle and steadies pan.

Now, please—YOUR—idea!

American Made Cheese.

Camembert, Brie, Limburger, and Swiss cheeses have been made in New York state for more than 50 years in a form and quality that rivals the best made in Europe.

Dried Out Walnuts.

Dried out English walnuts may be freshened by pouring boiling water over them, draining and drying them, or heating them in a slow oven before use.

Spring's New Shoulderline Is Flattering

By Bettina Bedwell.

Hailed by many fashion experts as "the biggest fashion change in a decade" natural, feminine shoulder lines come in as THE big style news for spring and summer. Judging from the queries I have received on this subject, there is utter confusion in the minds of many women as to just what is meant by these new shoulders. There also appears to be a lot of heavy foreboding about what "sloping, Victorian, shoulder lines" are going to do to the athletic, streamlined chassis that has been our ideal of feminine chic and beauty these many years.

No wonder. There's no woman so far off in the sticks these days that she doesn't know what the broader shoulder line has done to neutralize the spread at the hips which is nature's gift to women. Small, sloping shoulders mean putting the spotlight on the hips, and if they're ample, why then there is no hiding the fact. But, let me assure you, all of you, that the fashion creators have no such evil intentions as the will to return woman to her ancient silhouette, which was that of a triangle with the base at the hips. These folks actually are going to do our figures good, because all they mean by natural shoulders, "fluid shoulders," and the Victorian breed is a softly rounded line, with all those aggressive nobs, and all that muscle bound heaviness that has been a feature of many garments in late years, removed.

Shoulders will be cleverly padded to have enough breadth to neutralize the hipline girth, but the padding will be done so it looks natural, so it is a rounded and curving line of beauty. I have seen padding applied to the sides of the shoulder lines, and none at the top, to achieve this effect. I have noticed that the dolman sleeve, made famous by Mainbocher, with softly draped effects fore and aft the immediate shoulder, is an important point in getting good results along the top of the silhouette.

In evening dresses the deep decolletage, with narrow straps all there is above the bosom, will, quite naturally, throw whatever shoulder effect nature has given you into high relief. This is high fashion, but there is no strict law that says you have to bare your shoulders. Many of the most famous of our designers are featuring small sleeves that are rounded into armholes to make the shoulders look feminine.

• • •

A feature of our spring fashions is the cape. Capes are being shown for daytime and for evening. They come in almost all lengths from the small shoulder capelet to the full length cape, and every major designer has made them. The cape serves the rounded shoulder line better than almost any other type of garment, and for this reason it looks well, because the cape shown this spring has beautifully rounded shoulder lines that, at the same time, are sufficiently broad to do flattering things to our figures.

The Lady of the House

The Price of Vanity.

Birds have their troubles, too. A woodsman reports finding a cock pheasant with its tail feathers frozen to a tree. I'll wager if a little brown hen pheasant had found him she'd have been tempted to fling Lord Lyttleton's "Advice to a Lady" at him:

"What is your sex's earliest, latest care,
Your heart's supreme ambition? To be fair."

And maybe she would have added: "Don't wear your tail feathers so long."

Among the more normal news items from Europe:

The mystery of Mozart's grave, the location of which in St. Mark's cemetery has never been definitely established, may be solved as the result of the discovery of new traces in the Vienna state archives. The papers were found during the hunt for material for "Mozart year" [1941], commemorating the 150th anniversary of the composer's death.

What is claimed to be the world's first beer museum has been inaugurated at the historic beer metropolis of Pilsen. Beer science and lore, the development of beer making from ancient to modern times, old and new beer songs, drinking vessels and drinking customs of many centuries are among the displays. A large collection of pictures and models of old breweries and beer cellars is part of the unique museum.

Philippus Aureolus Paracelsus, the great 16th century physician and hero of Browning's volume of the same name, is being honored thruout Germany on the 400th anniversary of his death, in Salzburg. In "Paracelsus' Ambition" Browning has him say: "I seemed to long to save mankind; to make some unexampled sacrifice in their behalf. To wring some wondrous good from heaven or earth for them."

The Old Stone House.

Sturdy and stanch is the old gray house
That rests on the wooded hill.
Tho a hundred years have passed it by,
It patiently waits there still.

Waiting, perchance, for the one whose hands
Builded with loving care
The strong, straight walls of gray old stone
To shelter his loved ones there.

Waiting, mayhap, for the patter of feet
Of children who played round its door;
For the voice of the mistress, gentle and sweet,
That is stilled forevermore.

Lonely old house; so silent, a house
Holding its breath it seems;
Ever waiting, watching, listening;
An old house dreaming its dreams.

—H. S. W.

[Author's note: The old house was the home of my grandfather; built, stone by stone, with his own hands.]

From Librarian at Green Bay:

"You will probably be disappointed to know that the engine house turned school, then branch library, which you mentioned in your column [Dec. 29], is to be abandoned, too. But perhaps the curse is taken off by the fact that the branch library outgrew the little old engine house and is to be housed in a new, modern building. What will become of the old place we do not know. There are many conflicting stories about its history, but it seems authentic that it was built 75 years ago."

From a Chicago Contrib:

"I, too, have a yard of pansies which I painted in the south bedroom upstairs. Also a yard of roses and a yard of chrysanthemums in the attic. I must have thought if one yard was good, three were better. Instead of a pug dog on a sugar bucket lid, my first masterpiece was an apple painted on a plate of ironstone china; and I still remember how elated I was when a visitor recognized the variety of apple. I no longer doubted that some day I would be a noted artist."

Along the Little Roads.

Red osier against the snow.
Song birds who don't shop in town.
Molly Cottontail racing for a brush heap.
Pussy willows waiting to be coaxed out by the sun.

Wild winter winds and sudden snow flurries. The garden filled with white bees and butterflies dancing all about. A rollicking west wind hops over the back fence and chases them all into the spruces.

New Costumes of Fine Wools Feature Plaids

By Rea Seeger.

For that annual restless feeling the fashion sleuths prescribe a shopping binge. For whatever ails you the first sight of gay new clothes can't be equaled as a pickup. Costumes of fine wool for daytime wear, travel tour, or for a smart outfit 'round the town, clever suits for the same purpose that will slide under winter-weary coats of either fur or fabric, or the indispensable, dull black, one piece dress without which no self-respecting wardrobe operates, all these are ready now in irresistible showings guaranteed blithely to take the money from a miser.

• • •

Plaids, stripes, checks, and jaunty tweed mixtures somehow make the best bait. Hanging around the various strongholds of fashion or, better yet, modeled on those never failingly sylphlike ladies of wax in the many windows, with such clothes over the shoulders, it's no wonder we susceptible shoppers rush any sign of spring.

We unhesitatingly proclaim that plaids are bigger, brighter, and better than ever. Horse blanket squares, and bigger than those, are abundant, and after a winter of dull, dark clothes it doesn't take much spirit or adventure hastily to get into any of these Gargantuan plaid and checked formations. The wool is so beautifully soft and pliant that all soft outlines are assured. Wiry, scratchy tweeds and woolens have been gone so long that they are completely forgotten. Even persons who have been bothered with an allergy for wools can wear these especially processed fabrics.

Trim two piece suits come by the hundreds. There's an unmistakably crisp freshness to all of these twosomes that screams Americana wherever they're worn, with or without benefit of fur or fabric coat. The streamlines are miracles of smooth fitting, jackets are enough longer to make one seem amazingly slender. That former rather difficult line that crossed the widest part of the body [the length of the jacket] has been moved down and the results are amazing.

Skirts are slim and straight when you are not in action. When you walk the needed extra inches are there under the precisely pressed, inverted therefore concealed, plaits fore and aft. Diagonal and bias gores add enough snap to keep the skirts from appearing just a sheath and that's all. Pockets, bands, flawlessly tailored collars and shoulders, and a clearly defined waistline are details that achieve perfection.

Now is the time to select a really distinctive, dull black foundation dress. Whether you highlight such dresses with sugar white frills, cuffs and collar, or wear such a dress as a foil for flashing, handsome costume jewelry, you need such a necessary background dress. Fine clinging crêpes are especially adapted for use in these exquisitely designed dresses. Shirrings, draping, tucking, bows, and belts of the material, swathed bodices, full skirts that achieve that fullness with skilled workmanship make this sort of luxury fabric imperative. All the desired effect of individualized dressmaker detail is lost if the fabric does not lend itself particularly well to this fluidity of drapery.

Sketched are four new spring outfits ready for immediate wear. Any of them will revive a wilted winter wardrobe with spectacular success. All are available in one showing of smart early spring models to be seen in a boulevard shop. For specific information call Superior 0200.

Guaranteed to Defeat Wardrobe Blues

A. Stunning duet in greige, beautiful mixture of gray and beige. Dress of monotone greige in long, fitted lines. Over the frock, newest type boxy jacket in longer length, the fabric a handsome plaid. B. Indispensable foundation dress of dull black. It has long basque lines in the bodice, dozens of small buttons, and clever shirred detail. Graduated flounces make the skirt. C. Costume of unusually large checks. Under vividly colored jacket is simple blue dress. Over shoulders of jackets is stunning long cape of same brilliant plaid. All pieces are separable. D. Snappy spring version of small checked suit, worked in red, white, and blue. Streamlined jacket has double row of dark blue buttons. Pressed flat plaits in a skirt cut bias both back and front.

Universal day—Responsibility and willingness to make sacrifices for the good of the family and community are in order today.

Personal days—If your chart gives this day as a four day for you, and you see by the above advice that it is a six day, with emphasis on home and family, duty and service, then you know that you can't run away from responsibility. The four days are for attending to practical matters, keeping the budget, saving, conserving, and establishing order, so if the accent is on home because it is a six universal day, then you know that your duty is to the home and family with emphasis on being practical and economical. A spending spree would not be wise on such a day, nor would it be suitable for a lazy day of rest. Better work a little.

HOME OWNERS' QUERIES

Chicago—[To the Home Building Editor]—Is it true they had bathtubs—and plumbers—back in Rome's peak days?. H. K.

Answer: So it appears. A plumber was called a "plumbarius" in ancient Rome. Some 5,000 years ago he was busy in Babylon constructing bathtubs, and 3,200 years ago—approximately—he was busily installing baths in the palace of Rameses III, in Egypt, where each lady of the harem boasted her own "parlor, bedroom and bath."

Chicago—[To the Home Building Editor]—Have heard that if you evaporate plenty of boiling water in a kitchen and also leave oven on for an hour this "steaming" will make it possible to wipe down painted walls instead of using so much elbow grease and cleansers. Is this satisfactory? J. Kane.

Answer: You might try it. Have heard it recommended. Have plenty of soft, clean rags, and work fast. I wouldn't guarantee this "easy" process as a substitute for thoro washing, unless walls and ceiling are only very slightly soiled.

Cedar Rapids, Ia.—[To the Home Building Editor]—Is there any sort of putty which can be depended on to fill in open joints between a floor and baseboard and do a permanent job—not affected by shrinking or swelling of wood? G. D. A.

Racine, Wis.—[To the Home Building Editor]—Can you paint and enamel an old bed of burnished brass? I'd like to make it look different somehow.—Mrs. G. S.

Answer: Yes, after sandpapering down to bare metal, and wiping with turpentine to remove any trace of grease or soil. Then use flat paint and finish with enamel. You'll achieve quite a transformation.

EVANSTON.—[To the Home Building Editor.]—Is there anything I can use in paste when applying wallpaper to a laundry room? Ceiling wallpaper has cracked? Any special treatment of wall before papering?—George F.

Answer: Use a waterproof wallpaper as insurance against dampness.

Aurora, Ill.—[To the Home Building Editor].—Would it pay me to have my plastered walls cleaned, or should I paint them? They are over a year old and getting dirty. I want to keep costs down. H. D.

Answer: Check on paints for your walls. Eventually you will have to finish your walls in some way. Different types of paint are available. If cost then seems prohibitive you can have them cleaned.

When Chicago Was Young

By Herma Clark

Letters from Martha Freeman Esmond to her friend Julia Boyd of New York.

Chicago, Feb. 19, 1893.

Dear Julia: Will has just departed for his office in a rather exalted mood still recalling the banquet of last evening, given by the lawyers of this district honoring Judge Henry W. Blodgett. Judge Blodgett, after serving 22 years on the federal bench, is retiring to act on a commission of the United States government to arbitrate the Bering Sea question. Will thinks he will be most excellent in that capacity, because of his great reputation in admiralty law.

Judge H. W. Blodgett.

At this banquet at the Grand Pacific hotel last evening, members of the bar from all over the country were present, and much reminiscing was done. Will said it touched him to see Judge John D. Caton, now an old man, walking to the speakers' table leaning heavily on the arm of his son-in-law, Norman Williams, himself one of Chicago's great lawyers. It must have been an inspiring occasion, with Judge Magruder, E. B. McCagg, Lyman Trumbull, Walter Q. Gresham, and Murray F. Tuley among the speakers. A cable was read from Justice Harlan of the Supreme court, who was in France.

Will felt the greatest speech of the evening was made by Judge William G. Ewing. Perhaps it appealed to him most because he had known many of the lawyers the judge named. He brought out the fact that a small district, of which Springfield is near the center, is really unrivaled in having furnished during the 20 years before 1862 so many men who had struggled to establish the rights of humanity, and to rear the temple of freedom. Said Judge Ewing: "Any who would know Illinois should study with care the lawyers of the state, beginning with John Rice Jones of Kaskaskia, in 1789." Among the lawyers he mentioned who impressed their character on the state's institutions were Breese Browning, whom he called the Chesterfield of the bar; Judge Thomas Drummond, who was father of our lovely young friend, Mrs. John V. Farwell; Judge Skinner, erratic, but great; Judge Dickey, and the Logans. There were more names, but these are the ones I remember best. Judge Ewing ended his speech on a religious note, which Will said was received by the guests in awed silence. "Mr. Chairman," said the speaker, "I reverently invoke the blessing of the God of all grace and mercy on the triumvirate, Caton, Trumbull, and Blodgett." It was the most impressive speech, Will thinks, that he has heard in years.

What an evening it was for Judge Blodgett! He is a truly great jurist, whose findings are regarded as final by the lawyers of this section. He has a fine face, strong and commanding, but an injury to one of his legs in early life has given him an awkward gait. Due probably to this injury, he is somewhat irascible and has strong prejudices, among these being an aversion to stenographers. He depends entirely on his own voluminous notes, and his extraordinary memory. From these and not from the stenographers' notes, he makes up his record. The Blodgetts live in Waukegan.

The Union League club is giving one of its great celebrations of Washington's birthday this week. The day is always given over to a meeting at the Auditorium theater, addressed by some great orator from out of the city, and the evening to a banquet held at the Union League club. This year Edward Everett Hale is to be the speaker of the occasion. In the evening at the dinner Lyman Trumbull will offer reminiscences of Lincoln, whom he knew intimately. He showed Will some letters from Mr. Lincoln and told him what he intended to say at the banquet. He will point out that the fires of liberty lighted by Washington and preserved by Lincoln have enlightened all lands, so that all may walk in freedom. How glad we must be that liberty gains constantly and will continue to gain!

I attended at Central Music hall this week a beautiful literary and musical entertainment for the benefit of what is known as the "Sunshine Bed," a free bed for children at the Presbyterian hospital. The drawing card was Kate Douglas Wiggin, whose "Birds' Christmas Carol" you have doubtless read. I met her personally at the home of Mrs. E. W. Blatchford, 375 La Salle avenue, whose guest she is.

Another handsome reception of the week was that given by Mrs. Hugh Heron, 2826 Indiana avenue, who received with her daughter. The house was beautifully decorated with cut flowers and there was a large crowd coming and going when I was there. Thus my days pass, in receptions and teas. But I find I can't do so much as I used to, and am obliged to "regret" many lovely entertainments.

Before I close, I must tell you of young Esmond's defense of the character of Abraham. A small neighbor, coming from Sunday school, had said Abraham was bad because he had two wives. "He didn't either," was Esmond's claim. "He had one wife and one porcupine." Your loving old friend.

Child's Innate Dignity Must Be Respected

By Gladys Huntington Bevans.

[Copyright: 1941: By News Syndicate Co. Inc.]

There are certain things in connection with bringing up children that parents, who are, after all, just fallible human beings need to be reminded of again and again. So, by the same token, there are points that should be brought up repeatedly in this column.

One of these reminders should be in regard to our correcting of our children. First, in regard to letting just one person do the job. Second, in regard to doing that correcting privately, avoiding it not only before guests or others outside the family circle; but even, when possible, avoiding correction before the family itself. This latter isn't always feasible, but it can be accomplished much more often than it is, if parents will only keep it in mind as a desirable thing to do.

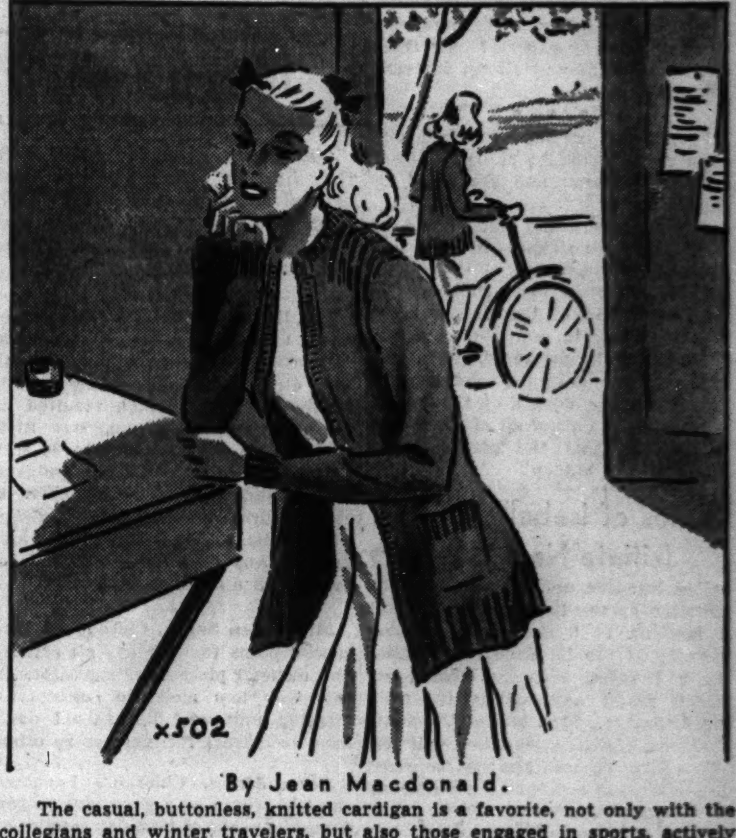
For children, unaware of it tho many grownups may be, have their sense of dignity and pride, too. Indeed, some adults are not only unaware of it, they scoff at the notion that a child has his own kind of childhood dignity, and at the idea that we should be concerned about it even if he has.

In these three attitudes grownups who have the guidance of children make a great mistake, and the result of that mistake is frequently the humiliation of a son or daughter before family or friends. This humiliation will rarely show itself as such, as, for instance, in a logical chagrin or embarrassment or blushing or even tears. More often, a child's or young person's humiliation will be shielded by an air of pertness, sulkiness, antagonism, or an "I don't care" manner, a "shell" which is quite misunderstood by the adult who is lacking in sensitiveness or perception.

The parents or intimate relatives who lack the kind of consideration we're talking about often will forfeit a child's loyalty, while the adults who do consider their child's feelings will win that loyalty and be the recipient of his confidences.

"Understanding the Adolescent" is a booklet of interest to parents, teachers and nurses. Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Address Mrs. Gladys Bevans, the Chicago Tribune, Chicago, Ill.

Casual Knitted Cardigan



By Jean Macdonald.

The casual, buttonless, knitted cardigan is a favorite, not only with the collegians and winter travelers, but also those engaged in sports, actively or in the spectator rôle. It is longer than the usual cardigan, and has ribbing along the sleeves and down the front, giving a new touch to an otherwise simple pattern. The jacket is knitted in lightweight wool and is available in 32, 34, 36, 38, 40, and 42 inches bust measurement.

For instructions in knitting the casual buttonless cardigan, No. X-502, send 10 cents in stamps or coin to the Needlework Bureau, Chicago Tribune, 220 Fifth avenue, New York City.

Quick Kind of Coffee Cake Is Time-Saver

By Mary Meade.

[Copyright: 1941: By The Chicago Tribune.]

Last week we considered some recipes for yeast coffee cakes, and today we have a few of the quick kind, with baking powder instead of yeast as the leavener. While it would be hard to match the goodness of a yeast coffee cake, many of the quick hotbreads come close to it. They have more appeal for many homemakers because of the fact that they are easy to make and foolproof.

Yeast breads of any kind take time, of course, and one of the precepts of modern cookery seems to concern timesaving. That's why the quick coffee cake was invented.

The filling for this coffee cake may be made in advance, then it's no trick at all to have hot coffee cake for breakfast, lunch, or afternoon tea.

QUICK PRUNE OR APRICOT COFFEE CAKE.
[9 servings.]

2 cups sifted flour
2 tablespoons sugar
4 teaspoons baking powder
¾ teaspoon salt
6 tablespoons shortening
1 egg
1 cup milk
Prune or apricot filling

Sift flour, sugar, baking powder, and salt together several times. Cut in the shortening until the mixture is in coarse lumps. Beat the egg and add to the milk. Add to dry mixture and stir to make a soft dough. Knead on a lightly floured board for 30 seconds. Roll into two rectangles to fit a square baking pan. Place one rectangle in the pan, cover with filling and top with second piece of dough. Brush over with soft butter, sprinkle lightly with sugar and cinnamon, and bake at 400 degrees for 25 minutes.

Or make a coffee ring from the dough. Roll it into one long rectangle, brush with butter, and spread with filling. Roll jelly roll fashion, and shape into a ring on a greased baking sheet. Cut with scissors at intervals, almost thru the dough, and turn each slice lightly on its side. Bake as described and frost the warm coffee cake with confectioners' sugar icing.

PRUNE OR APRICOT FILLING.

1¼ cups mashed cooked prunes or apricots
½ cup sugar
1 tablespoon cornstarch
2 tablespoons lemon juice
1 teaspoon grated lemon rind
¼ cup water
¼ teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon butter

Combine sugar and cornstarch. Add other ingredients and cook until mixture is thick. Remove from heat and add butter.

MINCEMEAT COFFEE CAKE.

1¾ cups sifted flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
¼ teaspoon salt
⅓ cup sugar
½ cup butter
1 egg
¾ cup milk
¾ cup canned mincemeat [moist]

Sift flour, baking powder, salt, and sugar. Cut in the butter until the mixture is in coarse lumps. Beat egg, add milk and mincemeat, and stir into other ingredients. Fill greased loaf pan or ring mold, and bake 25 minutes at 375 degrees. Remove from pan and spread with confectioners' sugar icing. Sprinkle with chopped nuts. Good hot or cold.

ICING FOR ANY COFFEE CAKE.

Put a tablespoon of top milk into a bowl and sift in confectioners' sugar to make a spreadable paste. If desired, a drop or two of vanilla may be added. Orange juice or pineapple juice may be substituted for the milk.

QUICK COFFEE CAKE WITH BROWN SUGAR TOPPING.
[8 inch square pan.]

2 cups sifted flour
3 teaspoons baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
⅓ cup solid shortening
1 egg
⅔ cup milk
½ cup firmly packed brown sugar
¼ cup butter
½ teaspoon cinnamon

Sift flour, baking powder, and salt. Cut in shortening. Add slightly beaten egg to milk and pour into dry ingredients. Stir to make a soft dough. Spread in a greased 8 inch pan. Mix brown sugar, butter, and cinnamon and spread over top of dough. Bake at 425 degrees for half an hour. This is best when hot.

Raisins or currants may be added to the topping of this coffee cake.

Here's another good topping for any quick coffee cake. Use the preceding recipe or another, and spread this mixture over the dough before putting it into the oven.

FRUIT TOPPING FOR COFFEE CAKE.

½ cup drained crushed pineapple
½ cup raisins or currants
1 teaspoon grated orange rind
½ cup brown sugar
¼ cup soft butter

Combine ingredients and spread over dough. Bake as directed.

Many other recipes will be found in "Better Homemade Breads and Rolls," a printed booklet prepared by our staff. There are recipes for yeast coffee cakes, as well, and for dozens of delectable biscuits, muffins, and rolls. The booklet is yours for 23 cents in stamps, mailed to us in care of THE TRIBUNE.

On the House

Something you will hear more and more about: Concealed radiant heating which requires no radiators or registers. Because heat is developed thru floor surfaces by means of coils of pipe beneath the floor and leading from a steam, hot water, or vapor heating plant using any type of fuel, this type of system will prove applicable to basementless houses. It will eliminate any bugaboo of a cold ground floor. Uniform air circulation, absence of drafts, and easy ventilation are all claimed for this new type of heating where floors, ceilings, and walls are warmed evenly. Also fuel saving.

Contract According to Culbertson

By Ely Culbertson.

[Copyright: 1941: By Ely Culbertson.]

It is a source of deep satisfaction to me that the colleges [even many high schools] are coming to recognize bridge as a factor to be reckoned with not only as a pastime or contest for their students, but as a great mind and character conditioner. For many years leading Culbertson teachers thruout the country have campaigned vigorously among college authorities and parents of students to have bridge given proper recognition among extracurricular activities. These efforts have begun to bear fruit. A great many of the colleges not only encourage bridge teams to play in league competition, but offer regular instruction courses conducted by qualified local teachers.

Certainly this is cause for rejoicing among all the parents who at one time, not so long ago, had to worry about their progeny pursuing Lady Luck thru the mazes of poker, blackjack and dice games. Aside from the fact that these enterprises were very hard on certain filial pocketbooks, thereby imposing an additional tax on the parents themselves, it was sadly recognized that these games offered very little food for minds that were supposed to be in the throes of "improvement." Neither of these charges can be legitimately laid against bridge. First [as I have said many times before] bridge is not a gambling game; its fascination does not require the enhancement of stakes. Second, bridge does teach a youngster how to use his head; how to concentrate; how to draw logical conclusions from interrelated facts. It is my earnest hope that in the very near future every institution of learning past the elementary grades will make this wonderful mind conditioner available to its students in some supervised form.

"Dear Mr. Culbertson: I have been an interested reader of your column on contract bridge for some time and have also attempted to digest the information and instructions in some of the books you have written on the subject. At this time I may as well admit that I have played the game for only a year but I enjoy it tremendously.

"I suppose personal accounts are of little interest to you, but I will say that I am a student at a university. I belong to the 'working-my-way-thru-college' majority, consequently I have opportunity to indulge in pasteboard recreation not more than two or three times a week, a sum total of about 10 hours.

"In a recent game of rubber bridge, I, who am considered a rather unconservative bidder, made an overcall which, when the hand had been played, brought the wrath of a very irate partner upon my shoulders, a wrath which I felt was not justified. As a result, I am writing this letter hoping that you will be able to find time to comment and give me some help in settling this problem.

"I was playing with three other students who have followed the game for years and two of them have taken cups in state bridge tournaments and have also received high ratings in your self-analyzing polls of former years.

"On the hand in question the situation was: Neither side vulnerable, East dealt and bid one spade. I [South] held:

♠A 5 ♥J ♦K J 9 7 6 5 ♣A Q 9 3

I promptly overcalled with two diamonds. The bidding then went:

East	South	West	North
1 spade	2 diamonds	2 hearts	3 diamonds
3 spades	4 diamonds	4 spades	Pass
Pass	Double	Pass	Pass
Redouble	Pass	Pass	Pass

"The reason I doubled and then let the redouble stand was because I knew that West often bid a very sleazy suit lacking in high card strength and that my partner, who gave me one raise could invariably be counted on for at least one or two tricks on defense [that's his bidding system]. Consequently, I felt we could defeat the contract at least two tricks. However, the contract was fulfilled with one overtrick, but by best defense, it could have been defeated one trick had not my partner failed to lead clubs after I signaled for a club lead on my first discard. Of course, he overlooked that part of it in storming about my 'lousy' diamond overcall. . . . Was he right?
D. V. B."

It is to be regretted that my correspondent did not supply the other three hands making up this hotly contested deal. For one thing, I am curious about the opening lead. Superficially, it appears that the lead of the singleton heart jack would have given the defenders an excellent chance to defeat the redoubled contract. Also, it would be interesting to examine the bids of all the other players, particularly North's, to determine how five odd in spades could have been made against South's hand in connection with a North hand that had freely raised diamonds and then accepted a double and a redouble of four spades.

As for North's contention that South's two diamond overcall was "lousy," it appears that North sets unusually high standards. By every measure that has ever been brought to my attention, the overcall was supersound. Indeed, except for the fact that no better bid was available [a takeout double was "out" because of the singleton heart] I should call the two diamond bid ultraconservative, considering South's nonvulnerability. The only criticism I care to make of South's bidding is that, after North's free raise, South should have jumped to five diamonds over East's three spades. Then the question of defense against a four spade contract could not have arisen, and if either East or West persisted to five spades, which South of course would double, the North-South pair could tone up their defensive play and come out with at least a minor victory.

Apropos of this, a general observation is in order. It is usually advisable for a pair to bid the limit of their own cards before doubling the opponents for penalties. Needless to say, there are important exceptions to this "rule," the conditions of vulnerability being the ruling factor. With equal vulnerability, a pair should go out for game unless they can reasonably expect to defeat the opponents three or more tricks. This also applies when only the doubling side is vulnerable [except at match-point duplicate.] Only when the doubling side is not vulnerable and the opponents are vulnerable should doubles be made on a two trick penalty expectation.

Hearts are trump and South leads. North and South are to win six tricks against any defense.

Solution: South leads the ace of clubs, on which North discards queen of diamonds. South next leads the spade seven, which West wins. No matter which red suit West leads, North wins the trick and cashes his trick in the other red suit at once. On these two tricks South discards the ace and king of spades, and all North's spades are good.

A FRIEND IN NEED

If you are in need, perhaps I can help you. If you have household articles or clothing you no longer use, please let me place them with needy families. Address correspondence to Sally Joy Brown, the Chicago Tribune, Chicago. Activities of this department are sponsored by Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc.

By Sally Joy Brown.

None of us, I am sure, would deliberately destroy or waste usable clothing, but many of us do so indirectly by storing it away for months or years until it becomes outmoded and, in some cases, destroyed by age.

With so many hundreds begging for apparel, we hope that those who have unused clothing of any kind will not hoard it for some future need which seldom arises.

Appeals for clothing pour in to this department every day. They come from families which have no way of helping themselves and no other source of help. The following paragraphs summarize the needs of only a few of the hundreds of cases listed in our files. We feel certain that if our readers could be fully conscious of the great need, ample clothing for the majority of these families could be found.

Mrs. K., who lives on the north side, is the mother of five children, boys 10 and 5, a girl 17, and twin girls aged 3. She was deserted by her husband, and now is on relief. She has been ill and is attending a clinic for medical care. All of the youngsters, who are average in size for their ages, are in need of clothing of all kinds. If your children are of approximately the same ages, won't you pass along their discarded things?

Mrs. B., also on the north side, is a widow and the mother of three children. She receives a small pension which is adequate only for food and shelter. The children are so short of clothing that it is necessary for this mother to wash every night, in order that their clothing may be presentable for school the following day. The oldest child, a girl of 15, is so conscious of her shabbiness that she is unhappy in high school. The mother has a heart ailment and should do as little heavy work as possible. There are girls 15 and 13, who wear shoes sizes 6 and 3, and a boy of 9 who wears clothing size 10-11, shoes size 3½.

Mr. L. is confined to a sanitarium, under treatment for tuberculosis. His wife has had a nervous breakdown and has been under the care of a physician for two years. They have one child, a boy of 4, who wears size 5 or 6, and is greatly in need of clothing, which neither his parents nor the agency which is assisting the family can supply.

Mrs. K., who is 60 years old, wrote in behalf of her invalid daughter and two grandsons. After more than a year of invalidism, due to a broken pelvis, her daughter now is able to walk a little, but has been unable to go out because she has no warm coat. She wears size 14 and would appreciate clothing. The grandchildren, boys 6 and 2, also need apparel. The address is northwest.

Mr. P. has had asthma and heart trouble and has been unable to work for the last year. His wife recently recovered from a serious operation and suffers from anemia. She has only a light coat, and because of her poor condition feels the cold severely. She would appreciate a coat, size 36-38, and clothing for her daughter, 14, and a boy, 13. The address is on the northwest side.

The Stamp Collector

Mr. Cabeen will answer questions about stamps, except concerning values. Do not ask where stamps may be sold, as the Stamps and Coins advertising section adjoining contains offers to buy and sell. Inclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope for reply.

Estonia has commemorated the centenary of postage stamps by issuing airmail stamps with the dates 1840-1940. The design is indicative of the progress made in carrying the mail during the past century. The cover was lent by G. R. Petrie of Cadillac, Mich.

A special 3 cent postage stamp will be issued on March 4 to commemorate the 150th anniversary of the admission of Vermont to statehood. It will be placed on sale at Montpelier. Usual cover service will be handled by the postmaster of that city.

Vermont, which was the first state admitted to the Union formed by the 13 states signing the constitution, occupied a peculiar position geographically and politically, for it actually was a part of the 13 states due to claims on its territory by New Hampshire, Massachusetts, and New York. Massachusetts agreed to the independence of Vermont in 1781, New Hampshire in 1782, but it was not until 1790 that New York state ceased to oppose its admission. In April, 1775, Vermont had proclaimed the territory independent and in 1777 a second convention announced a free and independent state by the name of New Connecticut.

Since this title had been used by other settlers in the Susquehanna valley the name Vermont was substituted. Ethan Allen and others who had waged successful war against the British and Indians were responsible for organizing the conventions which led to the formation of the state. Vermont was admitted to the Union by an act approved Feb. 18, effective March 4, 1791.

Recent dispatches indicate the three mints of the United States have been hard pressed to provide sufficient minor coins to cope with a demand created by sales taxes and by coin operated devices. Just recently a local item announced that for the first time Chicago had been supplied by the San Francisco mint.

It is not often local collectors are able to obtain a supply of uncirculated coins with the "S" mint mark, and the event is noteworthy. One collector who examined several rolls of cents found that curious things were happening at San Francisco which do not happen at the other mints. It appears that speeding up the various minting processes has caused a letdown in workmanship. Dies have been used after cracks appeared and have been repaired and continued in use. Two rolls of cents were made up entirely of eight varieties of cracked dies and there was not a normal cent in the lot. A third roll contained seven of the eight varieties previously found and another new variety, but still no normal coin. A fourth roll yielded eight new varieties, while a fifth roll duplicated one variety each from the third and fourth rolls and added six new varieties. These last two rolls contained 36 coins which were normal on the obverse or heads side, but only four of the lot were without cracks on the reverse, and these four showed low letters especially in the "PLU" of E Pluribus Unum and the "O" of One. One cent in the lot was missing a large share of its important lettering.

Just to check the work of this mint one roll of 40 nickels also was examined. Fourteen of these had finished rims while 26 showed the marks of the punch press which cut the coin blanks or planchets. The 14 coins were all normal, with sharp and full letters and good portrait. These coins stacked nicely, but the 26 which appear to have been minted without the collar around the dies were all cracked die varieties except one and formed a very insecure pile when stacked. The one exception mentioned is below the grade of an ordinary counterfeiter's work and might very well be refused by any one noticing it carefully.

The Sanabria Air Post catalog just published lists and prices all air mail stamps up to the end of December, 1940. It is available to collectors at $1.50 for the regular edition and $5 for the de luxe edition. The 1941 edition contains some 840 pages and shows over 3,000 illustrations. New listings include aeropostal stationery and air stamp proofs and specimens.

The Sanabria catalog lists all air mail stamps, both official and semi-official issues, and contains information about pioneer flights, etc., and has a section devoted to Rocket covers. The stamps are priced for mint singles and blocks of four and for used singles. This book is available at stamp and book stores or may be ordered from Nicolas Sanabria, 17 East 42d street, New York.

Bermuda has a new provisional due to a shortage of half-penny stamps in the colony. The regular one penny red and black stamp has been locally overprinted "half-penny" in black. It was announced at the same time that the current two penny stamp is now being printed with a red frame instead of the customary black frame. The yachting scene remains in blue. Preparations are being made to issue a seven pence half-penny stamp for prepaying air mail matter to the United States. This colony has recently issued a three pence stamp overprinted upon the two pence half-penny stamp.

The Liberian government has announced that the Rowland Hill Centenary commemorative stamps could not be prepared on time, due to war conditions, and that the Commonwealth commemorative stamps were overprinted with a suitable inscription as a substitute. There will be no first day cover service. Red Cross stamps also had been ordered and the lack of these was made up by overprinting the Commonwealth series. All the overprinted stamps will be placed on sale in Monrovia, the capital, and at the Liberian consul general's office, New York, on Feb. 25, 1941.

Fashions as I See Them

By Judith Cass.

The smartest fashions I see nowadays are in the shop windows, for this is a time of year when only wax mannequins are wearing new clothes, at least in Chicago. It is a little too early for spring togs to be worn, altho wise shoppers already have started assembling their spring wardrobes.

Well dressed women are enlivening their old winter outfits with new hats or accessories, but, on the whole, I stick to my opening statement that store window mannequins are the best dressed women we Chicagoans see in these dull, grey February days. This will not be true for long, however, for with a couple of days of spring weather every one who makes any pretense of being fashionable, will look as if she were ready for the Easter parade.

It is hair-dos that have been intriguing this society reporter recently. Heads are so much more individual and distinctive than they were a year or two ago, it seems to me. At an Arts club musical recently, for instance, around me were six of the most charmingly gowned, perfectly gotten up young women imaginable, each with a coiffure that was definitely different. The youthful president of the exclusive club, Mrs. Alfred P. Shaw, the former Rue Winterbotham, wears her hair in a style that would be becoming to few women, but she and her sister, Mrs. Winterbotham Badger, have discovered that short almost mannish haircuts suit them to perfection.

Their short hair, brushed up off their foreheads, show to advantage their beautifully shaped heads. Mrs. Shaw has the teeniest little sideburns; so does Mrs. Norman S. Merrett. But here the resemblance between these two young women ceases, for Mrs. Merrett [the former Beatrice Kirk Cuthbert] has what might be described as a glamor girl bob. Her auburn hair is long, curling around her face, and worn in page boy style. Miss Pauline Palmer, the Potter Palmers' younger daughter, parts her soft, dark hair in the middle and lets it fall simply into what it will. Some curls up, some curls under, and the effect is of the utmost naturalness.

Mrs. Bartle Bull, more chic and stunning than when she was Miss Rosemary Baur, pins her front and side hair up high and the back falls into a long page boy bob. This style shows the strong modeling of her face and her pretty little ears. Mrs. Bull is one of the courageous young women who are in Chicago for the duration while their husbands are fighting for Great Britain. She and her babies, who call London home, are with her mother, Mrs. Jacob Baur.

Yet another Arts club guest was Mrs. John Carey Murphy, the erstwhile Peggy Hambleton whom every one loves. She is noted for her chic and originality. At present she is wearing her blonde hair in a low roll with enough softness around her face to make the style becoming. The singer that night was the beautiful Jarmila Novotna, the Czecho-Slovakian prima donna who came, saw and conquered in opera last season. Her hair bears mention, too, for it was arranged attractively and smartly. Parted in the middle it was drawn into a rather big, but not low, roll, making a charming frame for her delicate face and dark eyes.

• • •

At a recent ball Mrs. Harry S. Vested, who has blonde hair which she wears in a sleek, long bob, had a soft, loose curl looped over a white feathered bird at the top of her head. Perhaps it was a Grecian headdress; at least her gown definitely was Grecian. It was of heavy white crêpe, looped at the shoulders, with three gold kid bands encircling her waist, and a wide band of the same around the hem. Pretty young Simone Simon was at the same party, as Spanish as any of the lovely—or unlovely—ladies by Goya that now are hanging in the Art institute. A perky black velvet bow at the side of her head held Miss Simon's black lace mantilla in place, and her gown was of black and red velvet, the black in the off-the-shoulder bodice and the red in the voluminous skirt.

Mrs. D. Wendell Fentress, another attractive young woman at the same ball at the Casino club, had her light brown curly hair gathered into a sort of froufrou on her forehead. Very chic—and becoming. A tangerine camellia, exactly the shade of her crêpe gown, was tucked in her curls at one side. Jet beading accented the neckline of the gown.

Your Stars ★ Today ★

By WYNN

Sunday, Feb. 16.

Get in your good thinking early today; routine the balance of waking hours after noon; relax, rest up, store the battery. Week ahead holds several good background vibrations, so work and plan for long distance achievements.

Psychology's Laws.

We don't know all the laws of nature; some know more of them than do others. But the more one knows the more he realizes that those laws are fair. Only to the ignorant does the universe appear whimsical and capricious. To the wise man this life and its background has always been a matter of actions and reactions under laws. All should know what those laws are, particularly in psychology.

Your Year Ahead.

Your year ahead from birthday today is restless. Problems in home, estate, with elders, and your own past, especially inner past. Face and dispel them, work thru. No sudden changes. Danger: April 29-May 13.

Tomorrow.

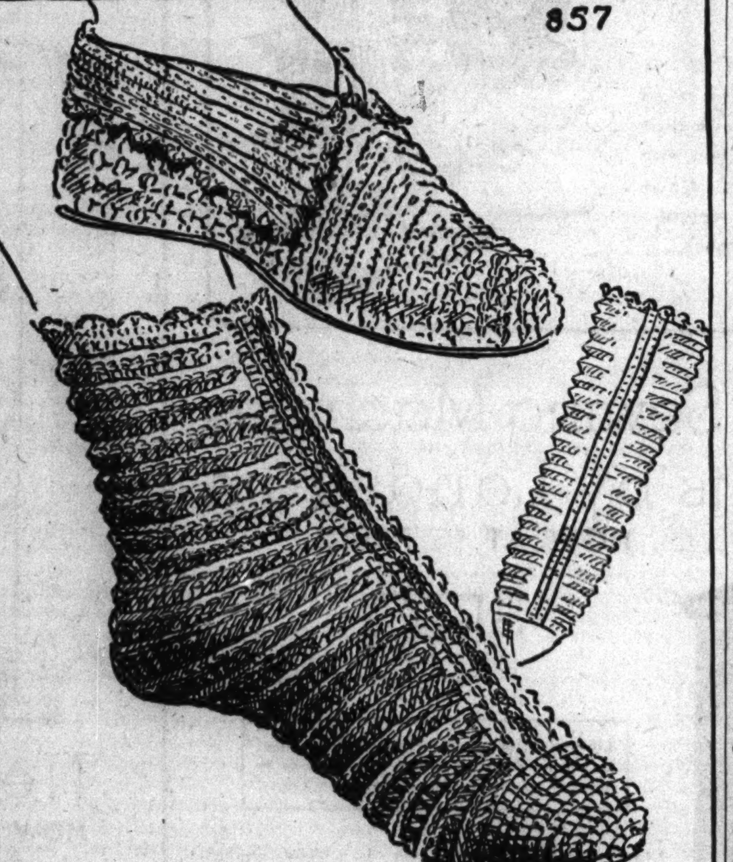
Bed Socks and Slippers



By Ellen Bruce.

The best way to prevent cold feet on cold nights is with soft, woolly bed socks, and warm, comfortable slippers. These crocheted socks and slippers are quick and simple jobs which any one may attempt with success. Young and old alike suffer from cold feet when the temperature is below normal, and these clever items combat any such discomfort.

For instructions in crocheting the bed socks and slippers, No. 857, send 10 cents in stamps or coin to the Needlework Bureau, Chicago Tribune, 220 Fifth avenue, New York City.

Children's Patterns

Nothing in the history of fashion can equal the prominence given to juvenile styles these modern days. "Time was" when little girls were seen and not heard, and didn't have really pretty dresses, but the 1941 petite damsel is more fortunate. She is allowed to express herself [according to the rules of child guidance experts!] and her mother believes in pretty clothes for small daughters. We think the dress patterns offered today are shining examples of smartness in juvenile attire.

Both frocks are cut along princess lines, altho one is more "little girl" than the other. Printed materials make up beautifully in both designs, and No. 3179 also makes provision for a creeper for diminutive brother or sister.

The embroidery pattern, costing 10 cents extra, forms the basis of a variety of motifs children like, and which may be used on their frocks and suits. The number is 11208.

Style No. 2651 is designed for sizes 2, 4, 6, and 8. Size 4 requires 1⅞ yards of 39 inch material, with ½ yard of contrasting for dress and matching panties.

Style No. 3179 is designed for size 6 months, and for 1, 2, and 3 years. Size 2 requires 1⅜ yards of 39 inch material, with ¼ yard of contrasting for dress; 1⅜ yards of material with 1½ yards of ruffling for creeper.

Each pattern costs 10 cents.

Address orders for Clotilde Children's Fashions to Chicago Tribune, P. O. Box 537, Grand Central annex, NEW YORK CITY, inclosing 10 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred—wrap it carefully) for each pattern ordered. IMPORTANT! Be certain to state clearly the number of the pattern and the size desired, and write your name and address plainly.

Could Cleopatra Drink a Pearl with Stomach Acid Pains?

An intriguing story of Cleopatra is the one where an admirer praised the beauty of two of her pearls, whereupon she dropped one into a glass of wine and drank it. She would hardly have done this had she suffered after-eating pains. Those who are distressed with stomach acid pains, indigestion, gas pains, heartburn, burning sensation, bloat and other conditions caused by excess acid should try a 25c box of Udga Tablets. They must help or money refunded. At drug stores everywhere.

STUBBORN RHEUMATIC PAIN

Ask any live druggist in America for an 8 ounce bottle of ALLENRU—a liquid—costs but 85 cents—must help you or money back—save this notice.

Downey Stars at Chez Paree, but Libuse Nearly Steals Show

By Will Davidson.

The abuse some people will take for a laugh!

Frank Libuse, for instance.

Bald, bulge-eyed Frank is putting worried furrows in the poker faces of Chez Paree's waiters, and temporarily resentful looks into the eyes of some unsuspecting patrons who happen to run afoul of his hilarious inefficiency. The Libuse act is primarily that of a heckler, and his floor show appearance, while fast and funny, is secondary to his table hopping. In his famous way he comes close to stealing the current Chez revue from such a star as Morton Downey.

Downey, however, is too well established to let a flash act steal more than its just share of the laurels. When he puts that Irish twinkle into "Irish Eyes," . . . when he muses musically over "The Last Time I Saw Paris," . . . when he lumps old familiars like "Make Believe," "Mexicali Rose," and "My Blue Heaven" into one nostalgic medley . . . then Downey is in a class by himself. A person so likable at Morton can't help showing it in his songs.

Lois Wallner and the 16 Singing Commanders are proving to be a really exciting unit—one of the strongest ever heard hereabouts. They join forces with the Adoreables in two very effective numbers, "I Hear a Rhapsody" and "Gems of the Operettas." The Sterner Sisters are attractive dancers who have an especially cute conga routine.

Fred Evans has produced some more spectacular ensemble numbers for the Adoreables. In addition to the two mentioned, are "A Scene in Morocco," "The Navy Marches on," "Andalusia" and the holdover sensation "Evolution of the Colored Dances."

Larry Clinton has the kids excited all over again at the Panther room. His impelling sort of swing, his amusing slant on popular music, and the good natured tomfoolery of his entertainers is tailor made for the Hotel Sherman swing salon. Jimmy Curry's solemn vocal vivisection of "Night and Day" is a comedy highspot. Butch Stone provides the hey-hey harmonies, and pretty little Peggy Mann offers ballads and personality songs alike.

The floor show is topped by the insanities of Stump and Stumpy, two very funny colored boys. Dolly Bell is effective in her tap acrobatics and the Dorothy Byton dancers do prettily by several routines. The ever present Carl Marx continues to be one of the most reliable comedy acts in town.

"Why don't you get out there and try doing better?" is a standard rebuttal to critics. So Jean Enzinger, who as a newspaper writer and expert on popular music has had various things to say about singers and swingers, got out there and showed them for the first several days of the Clinton show. It was her first public attempt, and for a very scared little girl she did quite a creditable job. But now she's revealed her marriage to Clarence Cherok, a Krupa trumpeter, so the brief career as a singer is over.

Revisions in the show at Harry's New Yorker make it one of the strongest in a long time. Newcomers are Christy and Brown, knockabout comedians, and a new Muriel Kretlow line. They join Dolly Kay, George Moore, very effective young emcee, Fanchon and Fanchon, Diana Berry, and Arne Barnett's band.

Mary Olcott, singer, Cassandra, oriental dancer; Sherry Wynn, singer; Betty Hill, dancer, and Del Estes, mistress of ceremonies, make up the 14th anniversary show now being presented at the Minuet club.

Ruth Dennen, a Chicago girl who was a prize winner in the Tribune's Chicagoland Music Festival in 1930, is the new prima donna of Hassard Short's "Gay New Orleans" revue at Michael Todd's Theater café.

Trianon ballroom offers this lineup of bands: Gene Krupa and Lawrence Welk today; Tiny Hill and Welk next Saturday; Gus Arnheim's band, Feb. 25, 27, and 28; Griff Williams opening March 1.

Boswelling the Bistros: Maggi McNellis literally hits the high spot of her singing career when she goes into New York's 65th floor Rainbow room next month. La Belle Thrush will end her wowing of the Pump room crowd Thursday night, along with Matty Malneck. Both give way to Teddy Wilson, piano playing band leader, who opens Friday. Matty carries with him a highly deserved reputation as the most versatile and most entertaining small unit ever to play the city. His humorous approach to unusually fine musical interpretations lifts him far above the average. . . . Harry Lim's jam session at the Sherman's Panther room this afternoon will feature Lionel Hampton, current rave of the Grand Terrace, Roy Eldridge, Kansas Fields, Jesse Simpkins, and Rozelle Claxton—with Benny Goodman promised as a looker-in-on. . . . Roy Scott sneaks his silent music into New York Friday. . . . If you're gaga about boogie-woogie you can hear some of the best as played by Mel Henks, who's now with Lew Storey's band in the Glass Hat of the Graemere hotel. . . . Linda Preston, Junoesque singer recently at Harry's New Yorker, is now doing a straight rôle in vaudeville. . . . And it probably won't be long before the Colony club resumes floor shows.

A FIXTURE AT ARAGON

Vaudeville

At the State-Lake theater a roadshow, called "Stars Over Hollywood," brings Simone Simon back to the Chicago stage for the first time since she was in "Three After Three." Eddie Foy Jr., Dorothea Kent, Shirley Dean, Roy Rogers, the Mercer Brothers, Zerby and Wiere, the Melody Men, and a dancing chorus make up the rest of the cast. "Texas Rangers Ride Again," with John Howard and Ellen Drew, is on the screen.

Simone Simon.

Phil Spitalny and his famous Hour of Charm all-girl orchestra have taken over the stage of the Chicago theater for the week. This group of 30 female vocal and instrumental musicians includes such popular specialty performers as Evelyn and her magic violin; Rosa, Linda, and Lola; Vivien; June, Lorraine, and the 3 Little Words. On the screen is "Virginia," with Madeleine Carroll and Fred MacMurray.

The Oriental theater is offering "Ol' Satchmo" Louis Armstrong and his orchestra in a "Jive Jamboree." This swing revue also features Timmy Rogers and Freddie Gordon, Sunny Woods, Ann Baker, Luis Russell, "Red" Allen and many others. The film is "San Francisco Docks," starring Burgess Meredith.

Dowling's Tour Profitable.

Eddie Dowling is finding his tour of "The Time of Your Life" so profitable and audiences thruout the country so responsive to the Saroyan comedy that he has postponed his forthcoming production, Sean O'Casey's "Purple Dust," till late in the spring.

Social Set Hears a Wide Variety of Lectures

By Cousin Eve.

These are the days when the restless move on to winter resorts and the affluent take a fling in New York. A friend paints a lurid picture of her Gotham stay—nine plays in six noons and nights, mostly about murders. The high cost of night clubbing in places like the Stork, El Morocco, Monte Carlo, where a hundred dollar bill vanishes like ice in the sun. The St. Regis is still in top favor with Chicago and goes in for beauty and glamor.

Duchesse de Talleyrand (Anna Gould) has bought her father's old mansion at Irvington-on-the-Hudson and regained her American citizenship. There was an important fashion note, that after 25 years of oblivion frocks are all feminine with lace and lingerie again.

• • •

Lady Decies, the former Mrs. Harry Lehr of Newport, later a resident of the Rue des Saints Peres in Paris, has already left New York and arrived at Palm Beach. Here, alas, altho this dream city of millionaires and palm-bordered patios is ready for anything, the weather has been foul. For a long month heavy rains and cold winds from the sea have emptied the beaches and bath clubs.

Two Chicago hostesses, Mrs. McKay LeRoy and Mrs. W. Alexander Yager, gave large indoor dinners at the Everglades during the week, followed by bridge. Each hostess took the beautiful large Gray room for her party and it was set up with a handsome buffet and a flock of small tables. The hostess arranges the seating by card, as for a formal dinner. These buffet dinners are the rule at Palm Beach, owing to the shortage of service in the far south.

Life flows placidly on at home, and one goes daily to lectures like a lamb to the slaughter. In the last seven days three remarkable women have come here with their various specialties and spoken to distinguished audiences. From France came Mme. Genevieve Tabouis, noted journalist and niece of the late French ambassador to London, Roger Cambon. Mme. Tabouis has devoted her fiery energies for years to the leftists and was known for her writings about European affairs. She is supposed to have forfeited her French citizenship with others who fled at the change of government in June.

Society Hears Wide Variety of Lecturers

Dame Chrystabel Pankhurst comes of a fine militant English family. Her name, with that of her famous mother and sister, Sylvia, is written large in the annals of suffrage for women. She is a delightful person, with a lovely voice, and is traveling in the interests of religious revival in the world.

Mai-Mai Sze has just returned from China and was wearing a smart crimson brocade frock of Manchu style sheathed over her ultraslim figure. It was slit to the knee on one side and had long sleeves and high neck. I've seen lots of thin girls in my time, but Miss Sze [pronounced Suh] is the slimmest of them all—almost concave in fact. She had shining black bangs over her forehead and is exceedingly pretty—no matter what.

• • •

We traveled out to the Town Hall ballroom event in Evanston to hear Mai-Mai Tuesday night. Having known her ambassadorial parents, Dr. and Mrs. Alfred Sze, these many years, it was high time I met Mai-Mai—a new fangled Chinese belle if ever there was one. Brought up in London where her parents headed the Chinese embassy for a long term, she had prepared herself for life at Oxford, and starred for two seasons in "Lady Precious Stream." Dr. Sze is a very tall, black haired man, broad shouldered and erect, and Mme. Sze is a smart matron of much allure who made a great sensation in London and Washington with her magnificent Chinese robes and jewel jades.

Mai-Mai Sze stood before her big audience for an hour with clasped hands, speaking in a voice that had the clear timbre of a silver bell. Her subject was "China Today." Beautifully her well chosen words floated out, making the picture of the China invaded, and the free hinterland. It was a dispassionate recital and very interesting, especially the reference to hospital service established in underground caves of the northwest provinces. From 50 to 60 million agricultural workers have left east and south China and migrated to the rich terrain of the west, not yet prepared to absorb them all. The coöperatives and their work was another intensely vivid topic that she elaborated in a telling manner. And when the clever girl had finally made her bow and left the stage with Dr. Chen, the Chinese consul general, she had never overplayed and never bored.

Later on she said that she carried it about to read to herself—it is so lovely, so saturated with the celestial beauty of China.

• • •

Some things hit one's funny bone more than others. For instance I was charmed at an invitation to hear Mme. Genevieve Tabouis. Mme. Tabouis' talk was the attraction of the open meeting of a fashionable literary club, in session twice monthly at the Fortnightly in Bellevue place. When Mrs. Clark Lawrence introduced the speaker as a French writer who had roused Herr Hitler's ire by her pen more than any other—a little figure, white haired and venerable, whisked itself to the platform and opened fire. Her topic was "German Ideology of Race" and she spoke at great length in fluent English, but her strange diction left one rudderless at sea. The main interest was in the woman, frail and full of years, who was still so gallant and so game.

There again was Dame Chrystabel Pankhurst of London by way of being a latter day evangelist, and here in Chicago a guest of Mrs. William Stanton Monroe.

Several of us went to Moody temple Saturday afternoon to hear her preach on "The War as Found in the Bible" to an audience of 1,800 members of that church. The Moody tabernacle so far has only a handsome Gothic door; its meetings are in a huge basement assembly room, for all the world "like an air raid shelter," said the noted English woman. It was quite fascinating to be there bombarded only by texts. Dame Pankhurst is a dynamic speaker and charming looking, with an aureole of auburn hair.

Mrs. Monroe had a small tea for her friend Monday afternoon where every guest had an opportunity to chat with Dame Pankhurst first and then hear her expound informally from the prophets. The visitor sat in an angle of the hearth with its blazing logs while her audience formed a large circle, intently following her leaps from Daniel thru Revelation with lurid pictures of war. Dame Pankhurst quoted also from the greatest minds in history, Bacon, Sir Isaac Newton, the famous physicist, and Pascal that the prophets of old proved the religion of Jesus Christ. There is nothing on earth more fascinating at the moment than prophecy and the present warlike era presages the second coming of Christ, according to the quotations read by the learned English woman.

Dame Pankhurst was a friend of the late Neville Chamberlain, former prime minister of England, and was a loyal admirer of that statesman. After this informal discussion on holy writ there was a move toward the dining room, where Mrs. Henry S. Monroe was presiding at the samovar.

Another modest heroine of this occasion was tall, gifted Suzette Hamill [Mrs. Pat], one of whose enchanting books lay upon the living room table. It was a small volume covered in green and yellow striped linen, printed and bound from soup to nuts by herself. The book is a short tale by Mark Twain in beautiful clear type, a recent product of the Pocahontas Press. This private printing press is Mrs. Hamill's pet avocation and named after her ancestress, Pocahontas.

The Harrison family is intensely proud of its descent from this celebrated Indian princess and Suzette Morton Hamill has been the descendant to make a sort of cult of it.

I don't quite remember if the British museum loaned her some precious parchments having to do with that early time in Virginia, or if she went over to London and had free access to the treasures. But she has wonderful material for a book on the subject.

Among those invited to meet Dame Pankhurst were Mrs. Fletcher Durbin, Mrs. Cecil Barnes, Mrs. Charles W. Dempster, Miss Adela Barrett, Mrs. Pat Hamill, Mrs. Harold C. Smith, Mrs. John A. Carpenter, Mrs. Harley McNair, Miss Elizabeth McCormick, and Mrs. Tiffany Blake.

The benefits of the future seem more on the side of pleasure than earlier in the season. Le Cercle Français has its annual bridge rout Tuesday, Feb. 25, at the Woman's Athletic club. And next Wednesday Grant hospital has seized the opening of Walt Disney's "Fantasia," not to mention Stokowski, who conducts the music for this new form of picture entertainment. Heading the benefit committee of the woman's auxiliary are Mrs. Henry Bartholomay, Mrs. George F. Henneberry, and Mrs. Clarence Seipp.

Mrs. Frank S. Porter, president of the auxiliary, had a luncheon Tuesday at the Woman's Athletic club, following a lecture by Carleton Smith, who had flown from New York to elucidate "Fantasia." "Fantasia" has to be explained, it seems. Very magnificent music by most of the great composers comes streaming out of the holes and corners of the theater. The pictures themselves will change in time and the music will change, but the show itself, "Fantasia," will go on forever, maybe.

Carleton Smith came in brightly from a plane and opened with his favorite prelude—the one about speaking at the feeble minded institution. But after the music critic really got going his talk was excellent, amusing and concise with a few backhanders along the line—and why not? Every one loved hearing about Stokowski and Grace Moore and Virgil Thompson and a score of others.

The Grant hospital benefit opens "Fantasia," and the audience, judging by the subscription, will be large and glamorous. The woman's board of Grant hospital has names powerful in Chicago for generations and the sponsors include men and women in varied walks of life. Among them are Mr. and Mrs. Henry Bartholomay, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Cummings, Mrs. Louis Eckstein, Mrs. John Gary, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hamill, Mr. and Mrs. Walter R. Kirk, Mr. and Mrs. Bruce MacLeish, Mr. and Mrs. Rudolph Reuter, Mr. and Mrs. Dan Rich, Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Ryerson, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Seabury, Mr. and Mrs. Silas Strawn, Mrs. Frederic Upham, Mr. and Mrs. Frederic Woodward, and the Philip Wrigleys.

ENGAGED

The engagement of Miss Phoebe Jane Love to Ross Alan Slingman has been announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Ray Love of Larchmont, N. Y., formerly of Winnetka. Mr. Slingman is the son of Mrs. Theodore D. Slingman of New York and the late Mr. Slingman. Miss Love attended Penn Hall Junior college and was graduated from Northwestern university. Mr. Slingman attended the School of Mines at Alaska university in Fairbanks, Alaska.

Society Editor Finds Florida to Her Liking

By India Moffett.

"This isn't typical Florida weather," apologized a year-around Floridian as a puff of wind almost lifted my hat off my head today, but typical or not, it suits this Chicagoan. ORLANDO, FLA. The sun is bright and the air is warm enough to make a spring suit comfortable, so why complain about a little wind? My Florida friend should come to Chicago and see a real wind.

Nature was kind to those who have motored south this past week, for the sun shone brilliantly every day while we were on our way from Chicago to Orlando. Man has done his part to make the motor trip south a pleasure by providing roads that are marvelous. Nary a detour delayed us, nary a thief spoiled our trip by removing our baggage from the motor car. A little ice on the roads and a few snow flurries between Chicago and Evansville forced us rigidly to observe the speed limit the first day out.

The splendid assistance provided by the Chicago Motor club made it easy to follow our route until we came to Nashville, which has few street signs and those few are so old they are not legible from a car. If a motorist goes straight thru it is easy, for the routes are marked, but alas for those who attempt to side-step and call upon Nashvillians. Finding their way about is worse than a Chinese puzzle.

The only thing that could have made the trip from Nashville to Chattanooga lovelier was to have had the rhododendron, dogwood and mountain laurel in bloom. In another month or two those hills will be green and every bush will be in bloom and then we defy you to locate a more beautiful section of the country.

Tennesseans are justly boastful of the beauty of the central and eastern parts of their state for they are magnificent. Their mountains are high and awe-inspiring as the western ones, but they have a friendliness that the others lack. Lookout Mountain, at the foot of which Chattanooga is located, makes up in length what it may lack in height [it is 2,250 feet high], for it is about 95 miles long and is situated in three states, Tennessee, Georgia, and Alabama. From a certain high spot in the Rock City gardens atop Lookout one may see these three states and three more, Kentucky, North Carolina, and South Carolina.

Going up or down the incline railway that connects the base with the summit is thrilling, even in these days, so imagine what it must have been when the railway was new nearly half a century ago. Hundreds of persons use it daily for there are many beautiful homes on the mountain, and suburbanites as well as sightseers make use of it. The grade is 73 degrees at the steepest point of the 4,750 foot long incline, the steepest cable one in the world.

Missionary Ridge, Raccoon Mountain, Signal Mountain, and Waldens Ridge look down on Chattanooga, also. Some of the fiercest battles of the civil war were fought on these mountains and on Lookout, as well as in the valley itself, where the bloody battle of Chickamauga took place. It was the battle of Missionary Ridge that is said to have launched Sherman on his march thru Georgia, so some historians regard this battle as the turning point of the war. Monuments, cannons and parks commemorate the fighting and make history come alive for visitors today.

Georgia, land of peaches, red clay, tufted bedspreads, patient looking mules and boney cattle, was met on our trip. Past Atlanta we sped, anxious to go as far south as possible before we slept. Duncan Hines probably never has heard of the Griffin hotel's coffee shop, but never did we taste better fried chicken, turnip greens and hot biscuits than we dined upon that night. So good were these "vittles" that we persuaded the cook to fix up a lunch for the next day. The perfume of roses was in the air when we stopped to enjoy the cold chicken and biscuits and jelly the next day and the Florida sun was so warm we discarded our winter wraps.

Should we turn off the highway at Ocala and go six miles to Silver Springs, was the question of the afternoon. "It'd be a shame to be this near and not see the eighth wonder of the world," advised a gasoline station attendant in the bustling little town of Ocala. "I'd rather own the springs than the United States mint," he went on.

We understood his reasoning when we saw the hundreds of motor cars in the parking space at the springs. We took the one dollar and shorter trip; many more seemed to be taking the two dollar and longer one. It was interesting to see thru the glass bottomed boat the bubbling springs, the limestone and shell that sparkle like a million jewels. The water is crystal clear and looks cold, but is said to be 72 degrees the year around. "Tarzan," with Johnny Weismueller, was filmed there and Spencer Tracy and others from Hollywood will be there soon to make "The Yearling," so our guide told us. Well, now, we've seen this eighth wonder of the world so we need never go again.

• • •

Duncan Hines never has heard of the Zellwood inn, either, we would suppose, but if he had, he surely would include it in his "Adventures in Good Eating," for it is a rare place. It is a tiny inn, less than 30 miles north of Orlando and about a city block off the highway, no signboards guide the passing motorist to it; we would not have stopped there for a meal if our companion had not known it from previous visits.

Supper was the meal we had there, a good old fashioned supper with 18 varieties of food on the table, country style. Such roast beef hash, such liver, such fried potatoes, such vegetables, such biscuits, such orange blossom honey, such steamed apples. Seven Chicagoans now are among the few guests the little inn can accommodate. Two elderly gentlewomen from Tennessee are the hostesses.

Orlando and its neighbor to the northeast, Winter Park, are two of the prettiest places in Florida. There are 32 lakes in Orlando and 10 in Winter Park; few of the streets are straight for most of them wind around the lakes, and nowhere are there more charming homes than one sees on a drive thru these two cities. Orlando is growing and becoming busier every day, now that there is a big air base located here. It is a year-around city; Winter Park is more of what its name implies, a resort. In one day here we have seen 11 Chicagoans: Mrs. Arthur T. Aldis, who has a beautiful home in East Park avenue, Winter Park; Mrs. Ernest G. Kilroe, Mrs. Aldis' niece, who also lives in Winter Park; Mrs. Andrew B. MacCaughey, who has a delightful Spanish type house in the Via Tuscany, Winter Park; Mrs. MacCaughey Schreiner, who with her two children, is visiting Mr. and Mrs. MacCaughey; Mrs. William E. Casselberry and her son's wife, Mrs. Hibbard Casselberry, both of whom have houses in the Via Tuscany; Mr. and Mrs. Charles F. Mather-Smith, who live in a gorgeous, huge house in the center of a citrus grove in Oakland, west of Orlando; their house guests, Mrs. Jacob Baur, Mrs. Townsend McKeever and Mrs. Wayne Wills.

• • •

Mrs. Aldis had as her guest earlier in the winter Mrs. Victor C. Sanborn of Lake Forest in Vero Beach, on Florida's east coast. Graham Aldis came south last week to visit his mother, but only stayed a few days because he had to return to Chicago to serve in the ordnance department of the army. He is a reserve captain. Mrs. Aldis and Mrs. Kilroe are both working every day in the Bundles for Britain workroom in the Annie Russell theatre of Rollins college.

Mrs. "Hib" Casselberry is active in Red Cross work and this week is busy at the Orlando Country club, for she is in charge of the Mid-Florida Women's Golf Championship tournament, which opened on Wednesday. Mrs. Stuart Templeton of Lake Forest has returned home after a brief visit with her mother, the senior Mrs. Casselberry, but will return to Winter Park for a longer visit later in the season.

Mrs. Wills motored south with Mrs. Hugh McLennan, who has gone on to Palm Beach. Mrs. Baur and Mrs. McKeever came down together by motor, arriving last Sunday.

MARRIED ON JAN. 25

Mrs. Joseph Allen Rubenstein is the former Mildred Florence Rothbaum, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Rothbaum of Lake Shore drive. Her marriage to the son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Rubenstein of Kingston avenue took place on Jan. 25. Mr. Rubenstein and his bride will return from a southern cruise in March.

Landscapes by Lane Newberry on Exhibition

By Edith Weigle.

Lane K. Newberry, always a competent and interesting painter, has an exhibition of his latest landscapes at the Findlay galleries. They are pleasing pictures in themselves, but more than that each has a special charm because of its locale.

There is the glimpse of the New England village with the gentle rise of mountains behind it which is Plymouth, birthplace of Calvin Coolidge and the spot where he took the oath of office for the presidency. Another canvas shows a little cabin riding the crest of a hill, the humble house where Abraham Lincoln was born. And next this painting hangs Mr. Newberry's study of the birthplace of Carl Sandburg in Galesburg, Sandburg whose life of Lincoln is an epic of our time.

Several small oils show the beauty of the flowering trees in the Morton arboretum near Downer's Grove, the painter's home. Also in Chicagoland territory is the delightful landscape called "Apple River Canyon." The artist explains that this particular region is known as the Berkshires of Illinois and that it was here that the young Abe Lincoln came as a soldier to fight Blackhawk and his band of Indians.

Two of the finest canvases in the show are "Hibbard Country" and "Bennington, Vermont," snow scenes in which the artist has captured the whole atmosphere and unique character of the landscape. They are as typical of the Green mountain country as maple sugar and blueberries

Also at the Findlay galleries for the rest of this month are a series of 28 colored prints, views of London and the English countryside, by the famed Thomas Rowlandson.

Starting this week and continuing until April 3, a group of Japanese prints by Suzuki Harunobu, an artist known for his purity of line and exquisite combinations of color, will be on view at the Art institute in Gallery H5.

An art exhibition of the works of Clay Kelly is being held at the studio at 1542 East 57th street. Among them is the beautiful series of etchings Mr. Kelly made of the doorways of the University of Chicago buildings.

At the Chicago Woman's club is a collection of paintings by Lucille R. Keeler. Among the 17 which comprise the show are portraits, landscapes and flower studies.

The Chicago No-Jury Society of Artists will hold its 16th annual exhibit at the new St. Clair gallery from March 15 to March 29.

Paintings, drawings and etchings by the late Ernest S. Klempner are on view in Studio 1018, Fine Arts building. Mr. Klempner, who died on Jan. 14, was well known in the art worlds of Europe and this country for many years. Among the portraits he painted in England were those of the late Lady Randolph Churchill, Lord Northcliffe and Lord Asquith. He also painted Fritz Kreisler, Josef Hofmann, Zimbalist and Caruso. Mr. Klempner's last exhibit was held in Newport, R. I., last summer.

Today at 2:30 p. m. at the Art institute there will be a gallery talk on "Painters of the Renaissance in Italy." The place of meeting is gallery 45, the speaker is Frank Parker, and the lecture is free to the public.

In Fullerton hall of the Art institute on Thursday at 6:30 p. m. Miss Helen Parker will talk on "Guatemalan Holiday" in the Florence Dibell Bartlett lecture series. These talks are also free.

Mrs. Ruth Van Sickle Ford, director of the Academy of Fine Arts here, has been appointed a member of the Grand Central Art gallery in New York and is one of five artists in the United States thus honored. Each one will contribute three paintings, one each year, after which they become life members.

The gallery of the Austin, Oak Park and River Forest Art league, where an exhibition by men members is on Sunday of this month from 4 to 6 p. m.

Public officials and judges will join the woman lawyers at their annual jollification. Cotillion dances and a program with a patriotic theme will be in order. Miss Laura V. Cook heads the large committee in charge.

Another gay event of the week will be the 20th annual birthday party of the Hotel Women's association, Tuesday at the Edgewater Beach hotel. Mrs. Georgia A. Hunt, president, is arranging the celebration, in which more than 500 members and guests will participate.

The Federation of Norwegian Women's Societies will celebrate its 25th anniversary with a luncheon tomorrow at its headquarters, 2512 North Karlov avenue.

A combined birthday party and silver tea is scheduled for the Half Century Civic club Wednesday afternoon at the Morrison hotel. Mrs. Elsie McDonnell is president.

The Polish Arts club will celebrate its 15th anniversary with a concert reception, and tea this afternoon at the Fine Arts building. Friends and artists who have contributed to the club's advancement will be special guests. An exhibition of paintings and sculpture, a play, and a literary contest are planned in connection with the anniversary.

Federated Music Clubs to Attend Symphony Event

The Illinois Federation of Music Clubs will have a large party of members at next Thursday evening's concert of the Chicago Symphony orchestra at Orchestra hall. Dr. Rudolph Ganz, commissioned by Dr. Frederick Stock, conductor of the orchestra, to write a concerto for the orchestra's golden jubilee series of concerts this season, will appear as piano soloist in the première performance of his work that evening with the orchestra.

Both Mr. Ganz and Dr. Stock are honorary members of the federation, which has a special bond with the orchestra since its own early leader, Mrs. Theodore Thomas, was the wife of the orchestra's founder. Mrs. Royden J. Keith, the federation's present president, will be in the party, which was arranged by Edith Heffner Dobson.

Dinner Parties Open Art Show at Palm Beach

By Helen Van Hoy Smith.

PALM BEACH, FLA.

Americanism lifted its head in Palm Beach this week where aid to Britain, aid to Greece, and observation of National Paderewski Testimonial week all claimed attention.

The much heralded exhibition of contemporary American art opened on Saturday at the Society of Four Arts. A fanfare of sumptuous dinner parties preceded a gala reception and preview on Saturday night. A preview and tea also were held in the afternoon. This exhibition is sponsored by a committee headed by Mrs. Benjamin Rogers of New York. Cochairmen are Mrs. LeRay Berdeau, formerly of Chicago, Mrs. Frederick Johnson, and Mrs. Paul Moore of New York. The object of these smart and energetic social leaders is the fostering of aid to American art and American artists. Mrs. Walter Brewster of Chicago assisted the committee in New York with the selection of the 95 paintings.

This collection covers a wide range of subject matter: Arabesques, animal studies, landscapes, marines, and a few surrealist paintings. All pictures reflect some phase of Americana with emphasis on the bright, the gay, and the hopeful.

Among those giving dinner parties prior to the evening gala were Mr. and Mrs. Berdeau, Mrs. Rogers, Mrs. Diana Guest, Capt. and Mrs. John H. Gibbons, Mrs. Jay J. O'Brien, Mr. and Mrs. Harrison Williams, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Strout Davis, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Fitzgerald, and Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Glasgow, the last named from London.

Mrs. Berdeau wore a gown made and designed in America. It was in pink with voluminous skirt, and bodice of horizontal multicolored stripes. Mrs. Rogers' smart black gown and her distinctive jewelry also were designed and made here.

Mrs. Elisha Dyer Hubbard and her cousin, Mrs. Charles O. Parsons, and Mr. and Mrs. Weymouth Kirkland were among the 20 dinner guests entertained by Mr. and Mrs. Berdeau at Villa Today.

• • •

Americanism rampant also was indicated in plans announced by the Everglades club for the Washington Birthday ball. This event will have definitely a homespun flavor if present intentions are carried out. Women who usually come to the Everglades club dripping in diamonds and trailing chiffons will wear ginghams and calico. The men will forsake dinner jackets in favor of overalls or other rustic habiliments.

Recently the Palm Beach Garden club started its tours of Palm Beach estates which this year are taking the place of a flower show. Five estates were visited, the proceeds swelling a fund to purchase a mobile canteen for Great Britain.

Mrs. George Alexander McKinlock of Chicago is honorary president of the Garden club and a leading spirit in all its activities. Mrs. Donald R. McLennan of Chicago is assisting Mrs. Joseph Frederick Gunster, the president, in arranging the tours.

• • •

Many from Chicago attended a gay cocktail party on Monday afternoon, given by Mr. and Mrs. John L. Volk at the new South Ocean club. Chicagoans there included Col and Mrs. Robert H. Morse, Mr. and Mrs. Noel Marshall Seeburg, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth G. Smith, Mr. and Mrs. LeRay Berdeau, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Sheldon Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Strout Davis, Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Hughitt, and Mr. and Mrs. William E. Vogelback.

Mrs. John T. H. Mitchell and her daughter, Miss Anne Mitchell, gave a luncheon at the Beach club for Mr. and Mrs. Chester L. Dane of New York and Lady Decies, the former Bessie Drexel of Philadelphia.

Mrs. Joseph C. Belden gave a small luncheon followed by bridge for her cousin, Mrs. Henry B. Stimson of New York.

Miss Joanna Fortune was among those entertaining on Tuesday night at the Everglades club preceding a backgammon tournament. Mr. and Mrs. Harry N. Gifford of Chicago also had guests at this event. Mrs. George H. Malcolm of Chicago was among the participants in the tournament.

• • •

The Everglades club has announced, probably more in sorrow than in anger, that it will strictly enforce the "no dogs allowed" rule. Canines—regardless of pedigree—may not enter the interior of the club. All dogs on the fairways and on other al fresco settings of the Everglades club must be on a leash.

"Onward America" was the theme of a fashion show at the Breakers early this week. Many modes in red, white, and blue combinations were shown: One play suit was of jersey, shorts of wide blue and white stripes, a blue bra, and a coat dress of bright red reaching below the knee.

A hat of "old glory" red accompanied a gray afternoon dress; other hats were shown trimmed with flowers, feathers, veils, or all three. But no one in Palm Beach can wear hats with the grace and chic of Mrs. LeRay Berdeau. She has a little straw one impudently trimmed with the head of a rooster, and it's adorable—on Mrs. Berdeau.

WEDS IN JUNE

Miss Shirlee Krane's engagement to David L. Weinberg has been announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Leonard J. Krane of Merrill avenue. Mr. Weinberg is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Max Weinberg of Lansing, Ill. The wedding is planned for June.

Social Fetes Roll Merrily On in Miami

By Clarissa Greene.

MIAMI, FLA.

MIAMI, Fla.—Tho Miami traffic has reached its annual standstill, social activities, sports events, and war relief work go merrily on.

The Harry L. Vaughans entertained with what began as a cocktail dance at their home Tuesday for Mrs. Belle P. Miller of Chicago. Several of her friends from that city were among their 80 guests. A number stayed for dinner and lingered for a midnight snack before reluctantly departing. Mrs. Miller, who was matron of honor at the Vaughans' wedding, is visiting at the Miami Beach home of the J. B. Ortlunds, also of Chicago. Other Chicagoans were Mrs. James C. Cox, Mrs. George W. Griffiths, the Herbert W. Youngs, the Harvey Hansens, who have a winter home at Golden Beach; the Walter J. Merrills, whose Golden Beach home near the Hansens' is leased for the winter while they stay at Surfside, and the Joseph Regnells, who are guests at the Albert I. Appleton's home on North Bay road.

Mrs. Eugene F. McDonald Jr., who is working seriously with her piano studies at the University of Miami conservatory this winter, entertained for her instructor, Harold Bauer, and Mrs. Bauer at a dinner party at the Bath club on Tuesday night. Commander McDonald is expected to arrive from Washington within the week.

Mrs. Theodore S. Gary of Chicago and her young son, Theodore Jr., arrived on Friday to visit her parents, the Hewett Browns, on Greenway drive in Coral Gables. Next Friday at the Bath club Mrs. Brown will entertain with a luncheon for Mrs. Gary and her other daughter, Mrs. Hubert J. Jenkins of Louisville and Palm Beach. The Jenkinses are building a winter home in the latter city.

Frederick A. Poor of Chicago, president of the Bath club since its organization 14 years ago, refused to continue in that office. George S. Hasbrouck of Berwyn, Pa., founder member and house chairman for a number of years, was elected to fill the vacancy.

• • •

Chicago's mayor, Edward J. Kelly, was among those entertaining with box parties at the Flamingo park exhibition tennis matches. Miss Barbara Cox, daughter of the James C. Coxes, also entertained. Miss Cox is among Bath club tennis enthusiasts.

Gates of beautiful Ocean Front Harbel Villa will be opened hospitably on Tuesday. In the manner observed for many years by Mrs. Harvey Firestone and the late Mr. Firestone, the Miami Beach Community church, fashionable sanctuary where most Chicagoans attend, will hold its annual garden party here. Thru this one event the welfare program of the entire church is financed.

Mission Play to Be Revived This Year in Riverside, Cal.

LOS ANGELES, Cal.—Back in Riverside, the town where it was written, California's famous historical "Mission Play" will be given again this winter.

The play, originally presented for more than 3,000 performances in a playhouse across from San Gabriel mission, is being revived as one of the 300 events of the All-Winter Sun Festival of visitor entertainment. It will be given Feb. 22 to April 6, inclusive, at the Civic auditorium in Riverside in the heart of the orange country.

Founding of the 21 original missions, those mellow churches of tile and adobe which still attract visitors today, is told in the pageant. Indian rôles in the cast of over 100 will be played by Indians from Sherman institute. Spanish dancers will be descendants from the southland's earliest white families.

"It may be a matter of years then?"

"It might be."

"Then that girl would be 18 or 19 by the time you finish and I'll be a toothless hag of 22 or 23."

"Good Lord, Sue, doesn't that road mean anything to you but one girl? There'll be no end of other men up there with me to occupy her time."

"You're worrying about rivals already. But don't worry. You saw her first. You were the first civilized man she ever saw, just as you were with me."

"Do you want me to bash you over the head?"

"Not especially, but I think that when you go into that valley the next time, I'd better go in with you. I'll bet I could whip her. I'm pretty athletic, you know."

"I know you are. You've certainly got me whipped. Well, I'll let you know when we go in and I'll see if I can't get you appointed bodyguard for the surveying party. And now will you please drop Theby? We've said enough about her."

"O, her name's Theby! What a beautiful name! I'm only Sue. No wonder she fascinates you so you can hardly wait to get back to her and see what she'll do to you next."

He was frantic now, and wished he had never come, because he was sure that he had lost Sue. It never occurred to him that a woman loves to interpolate quarrels into love scenes in order to give them variety and suspense and the excitement of making up, which comes like spring after winter. How monotonous springs would be if there were not winter-sweetened, like apples!

Sue Begs Fleming to Give Up Career

But now Susan, realizing that she had baited Fleming to the breaking point, grew suddenly wonderfully tender and with a Machiavellian cleverness increased his torment by changing its form:

"Forgive me, darling, for being such a jealous cat. But it worries me so to have you so far away. I never get to see you any more."

"Naturally, since you're in Hawaii when you're not in London. And when you're in Pasadena you are so busy and so popular—so populous that I can't get near you."

"You could if your work weren't so far away. Why don't you give up the whole messy business of building roads and get a position in a bank or something?"

"But road building is my career. It's my life."

"Then why not build roads nearer home? I'm sure the one right outside our house could stand a lot of repairs."

"I have to go where they send me."

"Well, they didn't send you up into that hideous valley. You went there of your own accord, and you're doing everything you can to get yourself locked in up there with that girl for years and years."

"In the name of Mike, will you leave that girl out of it?"

"You put her out of it and I will. But how can I help worrying about her when I'll never know whether she's murdering you or making love to you?"

"Which would you prefer?"

"Murdering. If there's any love-making made to you, I want to make it."

"Well, begin then!"

She obeyed him for once. But now he was tortured because the perfection of her arts seemed to argue long practice. Yet he made the best of it, and they did not waste the moon. He took Sue home and she gave him the parting assurance that life for her was only a matter of pining away in lonely waiting till he had reached a peak where he was earning enough money to pay for love in a bungalow.

As he drove away from her father's handsome mansion he wondered how many men were working their heads off under the spell of that same promise. He would have been surprised if he could have known.

An inkling of the fact that he was not alone in the crowded corridor of Sue's affections came to Fleming when he learned the next morning that she had been unable to break several engagements she had made before she dreamed that he would be coming down to see her for the whole of Saturday and Saturday evening. But she promised to help him desecrate the Sabbath.

And now he was marooned on a practically desert island among no more than a million and a half uninteresting people. He was so desperately idle that, instead of waiting till Monday, as Kimberlane had instructed him, he went to the Los Angeles office of the highway commission in the California State building and delivered Kimberlane's report to the snapping turtle named Niebel.

He ripped open the envelope, glared at the enclosure, and snapped:

"Why didn't he mail this instead of sending you all the way down here?"

"Mine not to reason why, sir," said Fleming. "Mine but to do or die."

"Poetry, eh? We can't use it round here. Well, you go back and tell Kimberlane I'll mail the answer. That may show your boss who's boss. You can tell him so."

"I'd rather you told him, sir."

"It'll be a pleasure. Take a cigar and get out of here."

"Thanks for both privileges, sir."

"Good day!"

"Good day-ay!"

Fleming left the office, puffing at a better cigar than he could afford, and puffed out contempt for Kimberlane, who was going to get a drubbing from his superior. He deserved it for stealing Fleming's great idea and then having to surrender it himself. Poor humble Fleming was like the lowly cormorant that dives in the sea and brings up a fish, only to have to drop it before the threat of a fish hawk, who has to drop it at the sight of a bald eagle. Swingle was hardly an eagle, but he was certainly bald.

Thinking of these thefts, Fleming thought of Bill Baylor and was glad that he would get back to camp on Monday in time to tell Bill about how he had finagled Kimberlane into stealing his highway. He must warn Bill not to betray his secret.

Again telepathy failed to get in touch with him, for almost at that moment Baylor was in Kimberlane's office, reporting for duty ahead of time in order to curry favor. He was good and hot at Fleming for cutting him down on his visit with Annabel, but his rage softened a little when he found that Kimberlane had Fleming's airplane photographs spread across his desk and was bursting with delight in a map he was at work on indicating just where the highway should be laid down.

"That's mighty white of you, chief."

"What's white of who?"

"Your taking Flem's idea and sending it forward with your approval."

"What do you mean, Flem's idea?"

"Why, Flem's idea. Before I left on my vacation Flem told me all about how he climbed over those mountains and discovered that valley—a couple of eagles showed it to him—and how he got the notion for a highway thru it and made all his sketch maps and notes on grades and soils, rocks, drainage, and all, and how the hillbillies destroyed them; and how he hired an airplane and took photographs.

"Before I left for my vacation he showed me his notes all worked up and sketch maps made. It's the dream of his life. We had long talks over it, but, frankly, I told him you'd never accept any suggestions from a subordinate. But you are a man and I done you wrong. I apologize, and if you'll excuse me for saying it, chief, you're what I call one white man."

He was white, all right. His usual crimson was a fishbelly pallor. He was muttering:

"Well, I'll be—I'll be——"

He might be, at that; but he could hardly confess to Baylor what a fool Fleming had made of him and how heartily he had collaborated in the process. So he took Baylor's compliments with impatient modesty and depreciation, conceded Fleming all the credit for the plan, and let Baylor go.

The more he thought of the trick that Fleming had played on him and the ridiculous ease with which he had been trapped, the angrier he grew, the more determined he was to inflict dire punishment on Fleming.

Of these gathering clouds Fleming was blissfully oblivious as he walked the too sunny streets of Los Angeles, resenting the fact that he dared not tell Kimberlane what Baylor was even then telling him.

Going to the nearest bank, Fleming descended to the basement vaults, rented a long, thin tin box and slipped into it the secret paper showing that Kimberlane had post discovered his pre-discovery. Since he had so much leisure on his hands, he sat down in the bank and wrote a long memorandum telling the true story, deposited that, saw the box locked in with two keys, and went out in search of ways of killing a lonely Sue-less Saturday.

There was no lack of other young women who would have been glad to console so robust a young man, but they were not Miss Tipton. He called up various old cronies, but they were all out. He motored to the beaches, went to a movie, ate dinner alone, went to another movie. He saw an appalling amount of love being made on the sands and on the screens, but he was not having any himself.

He was so desperate on Sunday morning that he went to a church of his own sect; that is, he motored out in the Sierra Madre mountains to see a crew that was supposed to be repairing the devastation committed by a cloudburst. All he had for a number of back wrenching, axle threatening miles along a caricature of a mountain road was the sight of an abandoned camp. The appropriation had given out and the district had no political importance. He did not know this, but he suspected it, and his hopes for getting his own road built began to give out of gasoline.

He made his way back to Pasadena in time to have kept Sue waiting an hour. That was the only bright spot in his day. But Sue forgave him and they decided to ride up to Santa Barbara for dinner and back in the moonlight. It was Sue that decided on Santa Barbara, while Fleming wondered if the prices there would leave him gasoline money for his return to camp.

She told him how she had missed him and how miserable she had been with the bores she could not escape, but she did not tell him who the "bores" were; in what lively surroundings they had made her so "miserable"; nor yet how successfully she had convinced them that they were the most fascinating men she had ever met. It may have been in a kind of self-defense before her own conscience, if any, that she abruptly said:

"What's the color of her eyes?"

"Whose eyes?"

"Theby's eyes. Whose else?"

"How should I know what the color of her eyes are—is. Probably 'are' is right. They're probably different colors."

"That is considered very attractive," said Sue, "especially when one is green and one is blue. You should know. You stared into them for days."

It might have been better for all concerned if he had told Sue a pack of lies about how beautiful Theby was, and what wonderful eyes she had. He had not the faintest notion of their color, but he could have made it up. On the other hand, it might not have been better; for there seem to be no scientific methods of managing so unscientific a problem as love.

It seems to be the intention of nature that, since young lovers can rarely get married for many, many years in modern society, they must keep their infatuation interesting by finding ways of keeping it uncertain. Being a profound scientist in love, Sue alternately impersonated the jealous vixen, and the meek adorer. What her real feelings were and what the real Sue was like he would doubtless never know. She would never know herself.

Bill Baylor Demands Return of His $10

The dinner was beautiful and dramatized by the dangerous amount of money it cost. As usual the upkeep of Sue was a critical matter, but her beauty and her interludes of sweetness seemed to make her a necessity, however expensive. He hated to leave her and she harrowed him properly with references to her alleged or real suspicions that he was hurrying away to Theby.

He was hurrying away that very night, but it was because his money was so nearly gone that he had to tell his landlady that he would mail her a check. He drove the whole distance back to headquarters, pausing at intervals to snatch a little sleep by the roadside when his head began to nod and his hands to wobble on the wheel.

He arrived in time to take breakfast at his boarding house. The first man he met was Bill Baylor, who was always as surly as a sorenosed bear till after breakfast. When Fleming put out his hand to welcome his long absent friend, Baylor put his own hand palm up, and growled:

"Where's my $10?"

"Where are the snows of yesteryear?"

"I'll yesteryear you, if you don't come across."

While Fleming was explaining his embezzlement and promising to repay it as soon as he could borrow the money from somebody else, Bill's coffee came and his orange juice, oatmeal, pork chops, and potatoes. After he had weighted down a roadbuilder's light breakfast with a tower of wheat cakes, he became once more his amiable self, and smiled again on his treacherous friend. But he might less painfully have struck him a blow on the nose when he said:

"O, by the way, I see that while I was on my bob-tailed vacation you put your great discovery into old Kimberlane's hands after all. I told him it was mighty white of him to take up your idea and forward it with his indorsement."

"My idea! You told him it was my idea?"

"Of course. Why not?"

"My gosh, man, youve ruined me, I'm as good as fired now."

He was so shocked that he left his sixth griddle cake to chill on the plate. His own hot hopes were now as soggy and nauseous. As a comforter Baylor was Job-ish:

"Well, if you'd sent me my $10, I'd not have come back in time to put my foot in my mouth."

"It's hard to tell which is the biggest of the two. I guess they're a perfect fit. They've probably cost you your $10. Kimberlane gave me a message to old Niebel and Niebel gave me a nasty answer to deliver. I suppose I might as well write it out and send it in with my resignation attached. If I run out quick I may escape the boot. Well, good-by, Bill, it's been nice knowing you. Let me give you one last warning: If you should ever get a brilliant idea—not that you ever would—but if you should, forget it. My genius has been my ruin."

He saw an appalling amount of love being made on the sands, but he was not having any himself.

WORLD'S GREATEST STORIES

She had started her career very young, dancing in a small cabaret in the village in New York.

THE DETECTIVE'S WIFE

By Olga L. Rosmanith

(Copyright: 1941: News Syndicate, Inc.)

TOM BURKE opened his front door and stepped in thankfully. At once the genial atmosphere of his home embraced him. A vase of coral colored gladioli stood against the white paneled wall in the lamplight.

He was staring at the brilliant flowers and marveling at the knack Jenny had of making their modest home look beautiful and expensive. For taste and charm none bettered his own. Jenny would have liked to hear this, but Tom spoke in shorthand. "Looks kind of nice, doesn't it?"

She stood on tiptoe to kiss him. "You're kind of nice to notice it. Some husbands wouldn't."

He went into the living room and turned the tuner on the radio while Jenny went into the kitchen to hurry dinner.

Jenny seldom asked questions. Tom began to talk when he had eaten and was enjoying his rich black coffee. "Cussedest case I ever worked on. Why on earth should any one want to harass a nice old lady? Not an enemy in the world."

Jenny liked perplexing cases. "Who called you in, Tom? Did she do it?"

"No. Her adopted daughter who went to San Francisco last year to get married. The police tried all summer, but they got tired of it——"

"Tell me about it again, Tom. I may have missed something."

"There's nothing to miss. There's so little, nothing makes sense. She was a Broadway star in her youth and then a character actress in the silents. She had three husbands, one dead and two divorced. No animus with the new wives. I've checked up on them. They're nice women and it was all such a long time ago. They didn't even know she was still living.

"She adopted a child to keep her company—the one that's grown up and gone. For a year she's been going on all alone in her home in Benedict Canyon without so much as a cat. Suddenly anonymous letters get thrown in her garden and stuck in her mail box calling her all kinds of names. Funny letters, not threatening or venomous, but enough to disturb her peace, what with cops sitting in her kitchen mopping up coffee and pie at all hours and detectives wearing out her sitting room furniture. The daughter wrote to me when they stopped bothering. It looked the easiest case to break—but it isn't. I set a watch, but they watch, too. Something drops in again the moment we relax."

"Forget it now," said Jenny, "and have a rest. I'll see if there's anything interesting on the radio." While she ran her finger down the program in the newspaper, she said casually—"they have some interesting talks for women in the day. I listened to a woman on child psychology this morning. Fascinating. She said neglected children often made trouble because they would rather be punished than ignored—especially if they were accustomed to affection. Isn't it pathetic for a child to get so lonesome he'd take a beating to get attention?"

Tom sat up suddenly and stared at Jenny, but she went on looking at the paper. "I'm not in the mood for variety." She threw the paper aside. "I went into court this afternoon to hear the verdict on the Russell case. The judge was as fair as he could be on such evidence, and the jury was bound to follow him and convict her. But I still believe her story."

"Now, really, Jenny, that's crazy. Mrs. Russell hadn't a leg to stand on. She admits going regularly to the Pepper Tree Arms, and 12 people saw her leave the building in a terrible hurry the night Morgan was murdered. Now what do two and two make?"

"I know it looks bad. But I trust her. There's something so clean about her. That proud sensitive mouth and those steady honest eyes. She wouldn't double-cross her husband. It isn't in her. If two and two make five there's something screwy somewhere."

But Tom reasoned: "If it wasn't her, it must have been another woman. She's lucky she only got life."

Jenny went upstairs to a small study, took a circular from a drawer in Tom's desk, and wrote on the bottom of it—"I believe in Mrs. Russell's inocence and I can help you." On the circular was a portrait of Tom looking keen and far-sighted and above it—"Thomas Burke, Private Enquiry Agent," his telephone number and his office address on South Grand, Los Angeles. Inside the folder were eulogies from satisfied clients including some famous names in the picture colony. She folded it, put it in a envelope, addressed it to Brent Russell, Esq., Vice President, Supreme Picture corporation, Culver City, and marked it urgent and confidential.

She slipped on a tennis coat and went out to mail it without Tom missing her. When she returned he was listening to a news broadcast.

Ten days later Tom came home from the office jubilant. "The case of the persecuted lady, my moppet. Solved! She wrote the letters herself! Bored and forgotten. Wanted a bit of excitement to liven things up. I got a hunch and the rest was easy.

"And there's something else funnier. Brent Russell called on me to see if I could dig up new evidence to warrant a retrial for his wife. It takes thinking about. Might be a lot of work for no dough. You see it's no evidence—no pay. Twenty grand if I find some."

"But Tom, you must try. You needn't give it all your time. I could do things to help you."

"O things. Women gossip to women. Maybe I could find something at that apartment house——"

"Nix. I wouldn't like you to go snooping——"

"I wouldn't snoop. I'd listen. I could live there a few weeks. There are three tenants with rooms to rent."

Tom set down his empty glass.

"Seriously Jenny, I'd be licked from the start. You've got to be a realist. Even her husband is doubtful about her——"

Tom Finally Gives In to Wife's Pleading

Jenny gave a little scream. "Her husband! O, how could he?"

"He doesn't want to think that way, but what can he think? He's a beaten man. I never saw a guy so deflated. He's heart-broken."

"Then you must help."

He gave in. After dinner they went over the news reports from the beginning.

Harriet Russell was the beautiful 28 year old wife of Brent Russell, wealthy film executive. She was a San Francisco society girl from a famous banking family and had never had film ambitions. They had been married eight years and had two children.

The evidence revealed her as an unusual type for Hollywood. She liked fun and was often seen at the races at Santa Anita and week-ending on the golf links with her husband, but she did not care for big parties. She liked her home, entertained a few select friends there, and spent a lot of time with her children. But she also liked being alone. She was in the habit of driving off in her car in the afternoons and going long solitary walks on the beach or in the lonely roads thru the canyons. That was her explanation of her absences. If untrue, no one knew where she went.

The evidence also established that she was generous and kindhearted. She had brought an old woman, Miss Denny, who had been her childhood nurse, from the damp climate of San Francisco and installed her in an apartment in the Pepper Tree Arms on a hillside street between Hollywood and Los Angeles.

The old woman had lived there for a year and died there in November. During that time she had been feeble and ailing and Harriet Russell had visited her at least once a week, and at her death paid for her funeral. Most of the tenants of the Pepper Tree Arms knew her by sight. Her Madonna-like beauty of dark eyes, smooth dark hair drawn over her ears, and severely simple dark clothes attracted attention and impressed her on the memory.

Miss Denny's apartment had been on the first floor opening off the entrance hall, the door vis-a-vis to the door of the apartment occupied by the murdered man, Capt. Jack Morgan, retired from the sea, ex-captain of freighters running between California and South America and a native of San Francisco.

One tenant gave evidence that she had emerged from the elevator late in the afternoon of the 18th of November and had seen Mrs. Russell admitted into Capt. Morgan's apartment. This was a fortnight after Miss Denny's death and 12 days after her funeral.

Twelve people gave evidence that they had seen her run from the doorway of the Arms at 7 o'clock on the evening of the 21st of December, run up the hill, and turn left to the car park, start up her car and drive on up the hill into the darkness. Seven of these witnesses were tenants who knew her by sight and five identified her in a lineup. Eleven of these witnesses had been standing talking at the curb before getting into their cars to go on a party. The 12th was a boy who lived in the house and was hanging a holly wreath on the entrance when she passed him.

His evidence was that he had called out, "Hello, Mrs. Russell." She had paused a moment as if startled, put her hand up to her face, said, "Hello, Grumpy," and ran down the steps as if the devil were after her.

The boy was almost sure he had heard the shot, but thought nothing of it. The body was found in the kitchen and the kitchen was at the side of the apartment near the car park, and nobody paid any attention to a noise like a backfire.

Three days later, newspapers and milk bottles accumulating at Capt. Morgan's door aroused suspicion, and the superintendent went in with his key. The captain had been shot in the chest and died immediately, his head and shoulders against the service door and his feet against the gas stove.

None of Mrs. Russell's fingerprints had been found in his apartment, and the gun wiped clean was the captain's own property. At first Mrs. Russell had denied all knowledge of him, denying flatly that she had been near the house since the death of Miss Denny. But two damning pieces of evidence had made her change her story.

A miniature of herself as a child had been found in his apartment wrapped up and addressed to her and stamped for mailing, and a page torn from a notebook with the names and addresses of several men and women running the research departments in the studios, in her handwriting, had been found on his body. Confronted with the fact that the page fitted the torn edges of a notebook she carried in her bag, Mrs. Russell retracted her denial of knowledge of Capt. Morgan and attributed it to panic caused by the circumstantial evidence.

She said that one day in May when she was having tea with Miss Denny, Capt. Morgan came with some newspapers and magazines for the old lady. He seemed very depressed and Miss Denny on introducing him to her guest had remarked that maybe Mrs. Russell would have some idea how he could make a little money, she knew so many people. On hearing that he had spent many years at sea, she had suggested he should put his name down at the studio research departments where he might earn fees as a maritime expert on cargo shipping. A check up at the studios showed he had never acted on her suggestion.

She further explained that the miniature had been in Miss Denny's possession for many years, and after her death she remembered it and hoped she could recover it for her children. Aware that Capt. Morgan made a habit of dropping in on the old lady to talk to her and take magazines, she had called and asked him if he had ever seen it in the apartment. That call was the one made on Nov. 18. The captain had seen it, but told her that a relative had come and taken Miss Denny's personal possessions away and sold them locally. He promised to try and trace the miniature for her, and he had evidently done so.

The second damning piece of evidence was an entry in the dead man's diary indicating a strong motive for murder.

NEXT SUNDAY—"LUCK IN HOLLYWOOD," A SHORT STORY BY JIM TULLY

"If I can't have H. nobody else is going to. I had her first. What is life all about? We don't ask to be born, and when we are we can't stand it. She's the only thing I ever had that makes this nightmare possible. H. stands for Heaven and Hell and for Her and she is both of them."

The prosecution claimed that Capt. Morgan had been a youthful escapade in Mrs. Russell's life before she married and left San Francisco, that he had found her on his forcible retirement from the sea [he had been fired for losing his ship in a collision], and that Miss Denny had been brought from San Francisco to live in the Pepper Tree Arms as a blind to cover Mrs. Russell's visits to her old lover. Finally that she murdered him to prevent him from making trouble with her husband and ruining her life.

"Twenty grand," sighed Tom, getting up from the table spread with newspapers. "You couldn't clear that woman for 20 million. Why did she lie about knowing him if she was innocent?"

"Panic, like she said, darling. That's natural. It was true about the miniature. They found that Morgan had been searching for it in the downtown junk shops."

"But she came out of the apartment after the shot. Nobody else came out. No one could have got out of the service door and set the body back where it was. No, Jenny, intuition deceives you this time."

"Well, anyway, I'm moving into the Pepper Tree Arms tomorrow. I'm going to be a little girl from Kalamazoo trying to break into the movies."

Jenny chose to take the room in Mrs. Mullins' apartment. It was the least attractive of the three, but the woman was big, untidy, garrulous, and full of curiosity. She would be a talker. Jenny got settled in and initiated into the workings of the divan bed. By suggesting a cut in the price of the room on account of the murder, she got Mrs. Mullins started.

"It certainly gave the Arms a bad name, but that's all over. We don't have trouble getting tenants."

"Is the apartment rented?"

"No. But it will be. The whole thing will be forgotten—even the girl who did the murder."

"If she did commit it," said Jenny artfully.

"She did it all right. Capt. Morgan met Mullins in the car park that day last May, the day he first met her. He said—'Well, Mullins, you're wrong. All women are not alike. Today I met an angel——'"

Jenny Believed Harriet Incapable of Intrigue

Jenny heard no more. Sensation flowed over her like icy water. This was an angle she hadn't thought of, the thing that made the impossible possible. Looking at Harriet Russell in court, so pale, dignified, and wistfully beautiful, so obstinately insistent on her innocence, Jenny had known her incapable of the sordid intrigue of bringing Miss Denny to Los Angeles as a blind for a double life.

She went down and drove her car down the hill and out along Hollywood boulevard home. It was late afternoon. Her servant had been and gone. The charming house was in perfect order and empty. A note from the girl lay on the hall table. "Mr. Burke called he'd be out late on a case. Not to wait up for him."

Jenny went thru into the kitchen feeling empty and alone. She made some coffee and took it to the breakfast nook. On the table lay the batch of newspapers reporting the trial. She turned them over sadly. Harriet Russell's face looked up at her—a photograph taken after the verdict. The dark eyes had the bewildered entreating look of a shot deer dying on the ground. Jenny said aloud—"I was right after all. She's human. She could succumb to some wild sudden love that touched her heart, but she couldn't take up a gun and kill a man—not even to save her happiness with her husband."

Jenny finished her coffee, felt better, left a note on Tom's pillow and went back to the Pepper Tree Arms.

Mrs. Mullins had told what she knew of Capt. Morgan and Mrs. Russell. Now she felt it fair to cross-examine Jenny. "Know anybody here, Miss Burke? How do you figure to worm your way into a studio?"

"I don't know anybody and I don't know anything. I thought I'd just call and ask for appointments."

Mrs. Mullins laughed for a whole minute. "Why child, if you saw the Venuses that have come and stayed in this house, and then gone to the studio apartments, and then gone downtown to live in a slum and then gone home or started carrying trays in a Pig'n Whistle. There are too many of them. You're pretty, but not like them. Unless you're cast for Minnie Mouse——"

"You're not very encouraging," said Jenny glumly. "Is it all done by influence?"

"Sure is. Tell you what. You cultivate Miss Rivers. She's a headache, but she sure knows how to get on in life. Why that girl's 30 if she's a minute and she's going to marry a director. That is, when his wife will go to Reno——"

Mrs. Mullins set the table for supper. "She's a headache, but you'd learn something. She lives across the landing and she keeps borrowing things from me and never returning them. An egg for her breakfast, a lemon for her hair, a three cent stamp, a cup of sugar. These things mount up. I'm next to supporting her——"

"Does she work in the studios?"

"About once a month. Extra girl. First class wardrobe and the airs of Mrs. Astor's horse. She's worked in night clubs doing imitations. She's too delicate to dance or anything like work. But strong enough to stay out all night smoking in night spots. But now she's got this fellow she's going to be a star. So she thinks."

Jenny felt nauseated. The front door bell rang. "Bet that's her," said Mrs. Mullins. "Come to borrow a chop for her dinner. Follow me out and make up to her."

Jenny followed into the foyer. A girl stood at the door in a printed cotton wrapper—a good looking girl with striking dark eyes and a mop of fluffy blonde hair. Her voice was husky as if she smoked too much. "Be a good scout, Mullins. I'm a ship wrecked sailor. My lighter won't work and I've got no matches."

"Here are some," said Jenny, opening her bag.

Mrs. Mullins introduced them. "This is my new roomer, Miss Rivers. Pretty, isn't she?"

"So, so," said the visitor, head on one side. "I like the way she does her hair. Drop in and see me if you're lonesome."

"Thanks, I will. I must have seen you in a picture. I've seen you somewhere."

Miss Rivers grinned pleasantly. "You flatter me. Didn't know I stood out that much. I'll return the matches tomorrow. So long, I'm in a hurry."

Mrs. Mullins shut the door with a snap. "Lucky it's matches—not money. You've said good-by to them."

Jenny went out after dinner and walked up the hill and round the house in the clear cool night. The house was built up the hill so that the high end had six floors and the lower end eight floors. The two floors on the lower end were below the entrance level. The janitor and the superintendent had apartments there. Capt. Morgan's apartment was at the high end with his kitchen window overlooking the car park. Jenny looked at the window. It would have been possible for some one to go thru that window had it not been heavily barred with ornamental iron. She remembered also that the evidence had shown it was locked on the inside. She saw a door standing open and entered. It was the entrance to a back staircase going up past the kitchen doors of all the apartments on the high side of the building.

Feeling depressed she walked on up the hill to the summit. It was here the frightened woman had gone in her car. They couldn't have seen the car in the dark nor the license number. Probably no one would have looked at it, if she had come down the other way and driven past them.

She went back to the cheaply ornate house with its pseudo-Spanish ornamentation and went up to bed.

Jenny thought it unlikely that the flamboyant Miss Rivers would be any help to her, but she had a theory that you had luck if you helped luck get at you. She went after her matches.

Miss Rivers was surprised at Jenny's meanness in worrying over a packet of matches, and showed it. Without her wheedling grin she was definitely thirtyish and disagreeable. She came to the door in a bathwrap. "I was just going to wash my hair. Can't you leave it till tomorrow?"

"I wanted a smoke, Miss Rivers, but no matter. Would you like me to show you how I fix my curls? Yours are too loose. You said you liked mine."

Miss Rivers Brightens as Jenny Rinses Hair

Miss Rivers smiled cynically. "Old Mullins has been telling you I know a thing or two. What a woman! Oh, all right, come in. Guess you're not going to start any hot competition."

Jenny went in. While Miss Rivers shampooed her hair, Jenny told her how the curls had to be fixed by hand in flat rings on the head and pinned there to dry. Then they would come out as soft and clinging as a baby's. The prospect of her tumultuous hair looking like Jenny's put Miss Rivers into a good humor. She rinsed her hair, soaked up the water running from it with a bath towel, bound a face towel round it and sat down before her dressing room mirror.

Jenny got a severe shock.

Jenny got a severe shock. The nun-like effect of the folded towel hiding the yellow hair answered the question of where Jenny had seen the girl before. With dark hair she would be the double of Harriet Russell.

With a great effort she stood behind the girl's chair fixing the curls patiently with the little pins while her heart beat like the wheels of a train—"she's a murderer—she's a murderer—she's a murderer."

Afterward Jenny shopped and drove home to prepare dinner for Tom. When he came home she was in a fever of excitement. "Tom, darling. I must know this quickly. If a person discovered he could look exactly like another person if he wore similar clothes and a dark wig, could he impersonate that person to get away with a murder?"

Tom said—"Say that again slowly."

His brows rose while Jenny repeated it. "Say you're on to something. Yes it could be done. You ought to know by now that anything is possible in this cock-eyed world. Don't tell me you've found——"

"Tom, there's a girl living at the Arms on the top floor right above Capt. Morgan's apartment that's a dead ringer for Harriet Russell, only you'd never guess it because she wears fancy clothes and shaggy blonde hair. A back staircase goes right from her kitchen door to his kitchen door. She could have seen him 10 times a day without anybody knowing.

"Tell me what to do next supposing this is the answer——"

"The Morgan apartment is now for rent, isn't it?"

"Yes."

"Then the janitor would let me in?"

"Sure he would."

"Good. If she was in the habit of going down there, there's sure to be a few prints somewhere. You get a print and then I'll try to match it."

Jenny was too excited to eat. "That's easy. I'll ask her to return the sugar."

Jenny took a clean handkerchief with her when she went to call for Mrs. Mullins' sugar. Miss Rivers came to the door after repeated ringing, cross-grained and sleepy-eyed. Her eyebrows shot up to her subdued hair when Jenny asked for the sugar. Her fickle amiability vanished. "Some very peculiar people occasionally dwell in our midst."

Jenny tried not to hate her. "I don't see anything peculiar in coming to you when we are short. You don't hesitate to come to us."

"What have you to do with it?"

"No sugar for my breakfast coffee if you don't return it."

"Come on in then."

Jenny stood in the kitchen while Miss Rivers poured the sugar from a bag into Mrs. Mullin's cup. She held the bowl of it in her long fingers. Jenny took it by the handle, heart going madly. "Thanks. I wonder if you'd mind telling me your first name?"

"Why do you want to know?"

"Just wondered if you were a Mollie Rivers I'd heard about."

"No. My name's Heidi. Now run on and let me get some sleep."

Jenny paused on the landing outside the door shut abruptly behind her and wrapped the cup in the handkerchief. Heidi. She felt weak on emotion. If Tom found the prints it was all over—all over. One girl free—and another in the trap. She hardened her heart. This girl deserves it. She called Tom at the office and told him to meet her in the hall below as quickly as he could with his fingerprint outfit.

The janitor left them alone in the haunted apartment. It had been denuded of its furniture, but Tom was not worried. It had not been cleaned and painted, except for the removal of the bloodstains in the kitchen. It was a small place of two rooms dim now with drawn blinds, but otherwise full of sunlight. Tom turned the slats of the blinds so that the sun came in and made straight for the kitchen.

There were glass fronted cupboards for the china. "This," he said with a deliberately businesslike manner, "is where visiting women leave their fingerprints."

Unable to bear the suspense and the associations of the place, Jenny waited in the living room looking thru the blind at the white houses opposite with their fluttering awnings and their green gardens terraced up the hill. She felt as if she had birds flying in her stomach. Suddenly Tom shouted. "Jenny, you're a wonder. Here they are."

He put a call thru from Mrs. Mullins' apartment to a detective friend in the police department and waited till he came. The two men went in to see Heidi Rivers together while Jenny packed up and drove home again. Tom had a busy day and in the evening he told Jenny Miss Rivers' story.

She had started her career very young, dancing in a small cabaret in the village in New York. A man had offered her a job in a cabaret in Panama. Full of the lust for adventure she had gone and been trapped into a depraved life there. Capt. Morgan had come into Panama on his ship and fallen in love with her and given her money to go to San Francisco, his home port. He had supported her there for several years and she had saved out of his money till one voyage she had left San Francisco in his absence and gone to Hollywood and changed her name. She had had a tough time at first, but was making headway when he was fired from the company for losing a ship and set out to find her. When he did find her he wanted her to marry him and settle down, figuring she had run away because he hadn't married her. He thought he owned her because he had rescued her. She implored him to leave her alone to take the chance a new love affair offered to get on in life. But he was mad with jealousy and told her he would rather keep her down with him than let her rise without him.

She had not intended to kill him, but on the night of the 21st of December she had gone into his apartment from the back stairs on her way out to a party. He had threatened to follow her and expose her past to her lover if she went. His revolver was lying on the kitchen table between them. She picked it up and fired at him on a wild impulse. His falling body had wedged the kitchen door and she could not move it without being stained with blood.

She had waited panic stricken for people to come, but voices went on outside and nobody came. She looked thru the living room blind and saw the people standing at the curb. She waited and waited but they still lingered. Finally she decided to hide her hair and her dress and make a run for it in the dark. She pinned a pair of his black socks tightly round her head like a turban and put a black alpaca jacket he wore in the house over the glittering top of her black dress. She washed the gun, made sure there was nothing of hers in the apartment and slipped out of the door quietly.

Went On to Party After Burning Jacket

The boy hanging holly on the entrance door had nearly stopped her heart beating. But he called, "Hello, Mrs. Russell." She got back her breath, answered, "Hello, Grumpy," and ran up to her car, drove over the hill to Griffith Park, burnt the socks and the jacket and went on to the party.

She agreed it was a terrible nervous strain to stay on at the Pepper Tree Arms while the trial was in progress, but she had a lease on her apartment and was afraid trying to get out of it would draw attention to her.

"And she was darned right it would," added Tom. "It took a mouse to trip her up. The so-and-so. Hard as nails—lawless as they come—and clever."

"But I can't understand her not confessing when Mrs. Russell was convicted. She could have pleaded self-defense."

"We put it to her. She said cynically she didn't expect Mrs. Russell to stay in. She thought wealth and influence would get anybody out. And she had no pity for spoiled rich women."

Jenny sighed deeply. She felt as tired as if she'd walked a thousand miles. "Tell me something pleasant. How happy they are, for instance—"

"I haven't the words for Brent Russell's condition. They'll tell you themselves. And you'll be a social success in this cock-eyed town if you don't watch out."

"I'll watch," said Jenny, "I like my life the way it is——"

Tom was leaning back in his chair blowing smoke rings at the ceiling. "Oh boy, women are the devil when they take to crime. They're worse than men. They're so darn ruthless——"

"And when they take to detecting it?" inquired Jenny.

"You could learn. You have a talent. And the right luck." He patted the bulge of the wallet containing the check in his left breast pocket.

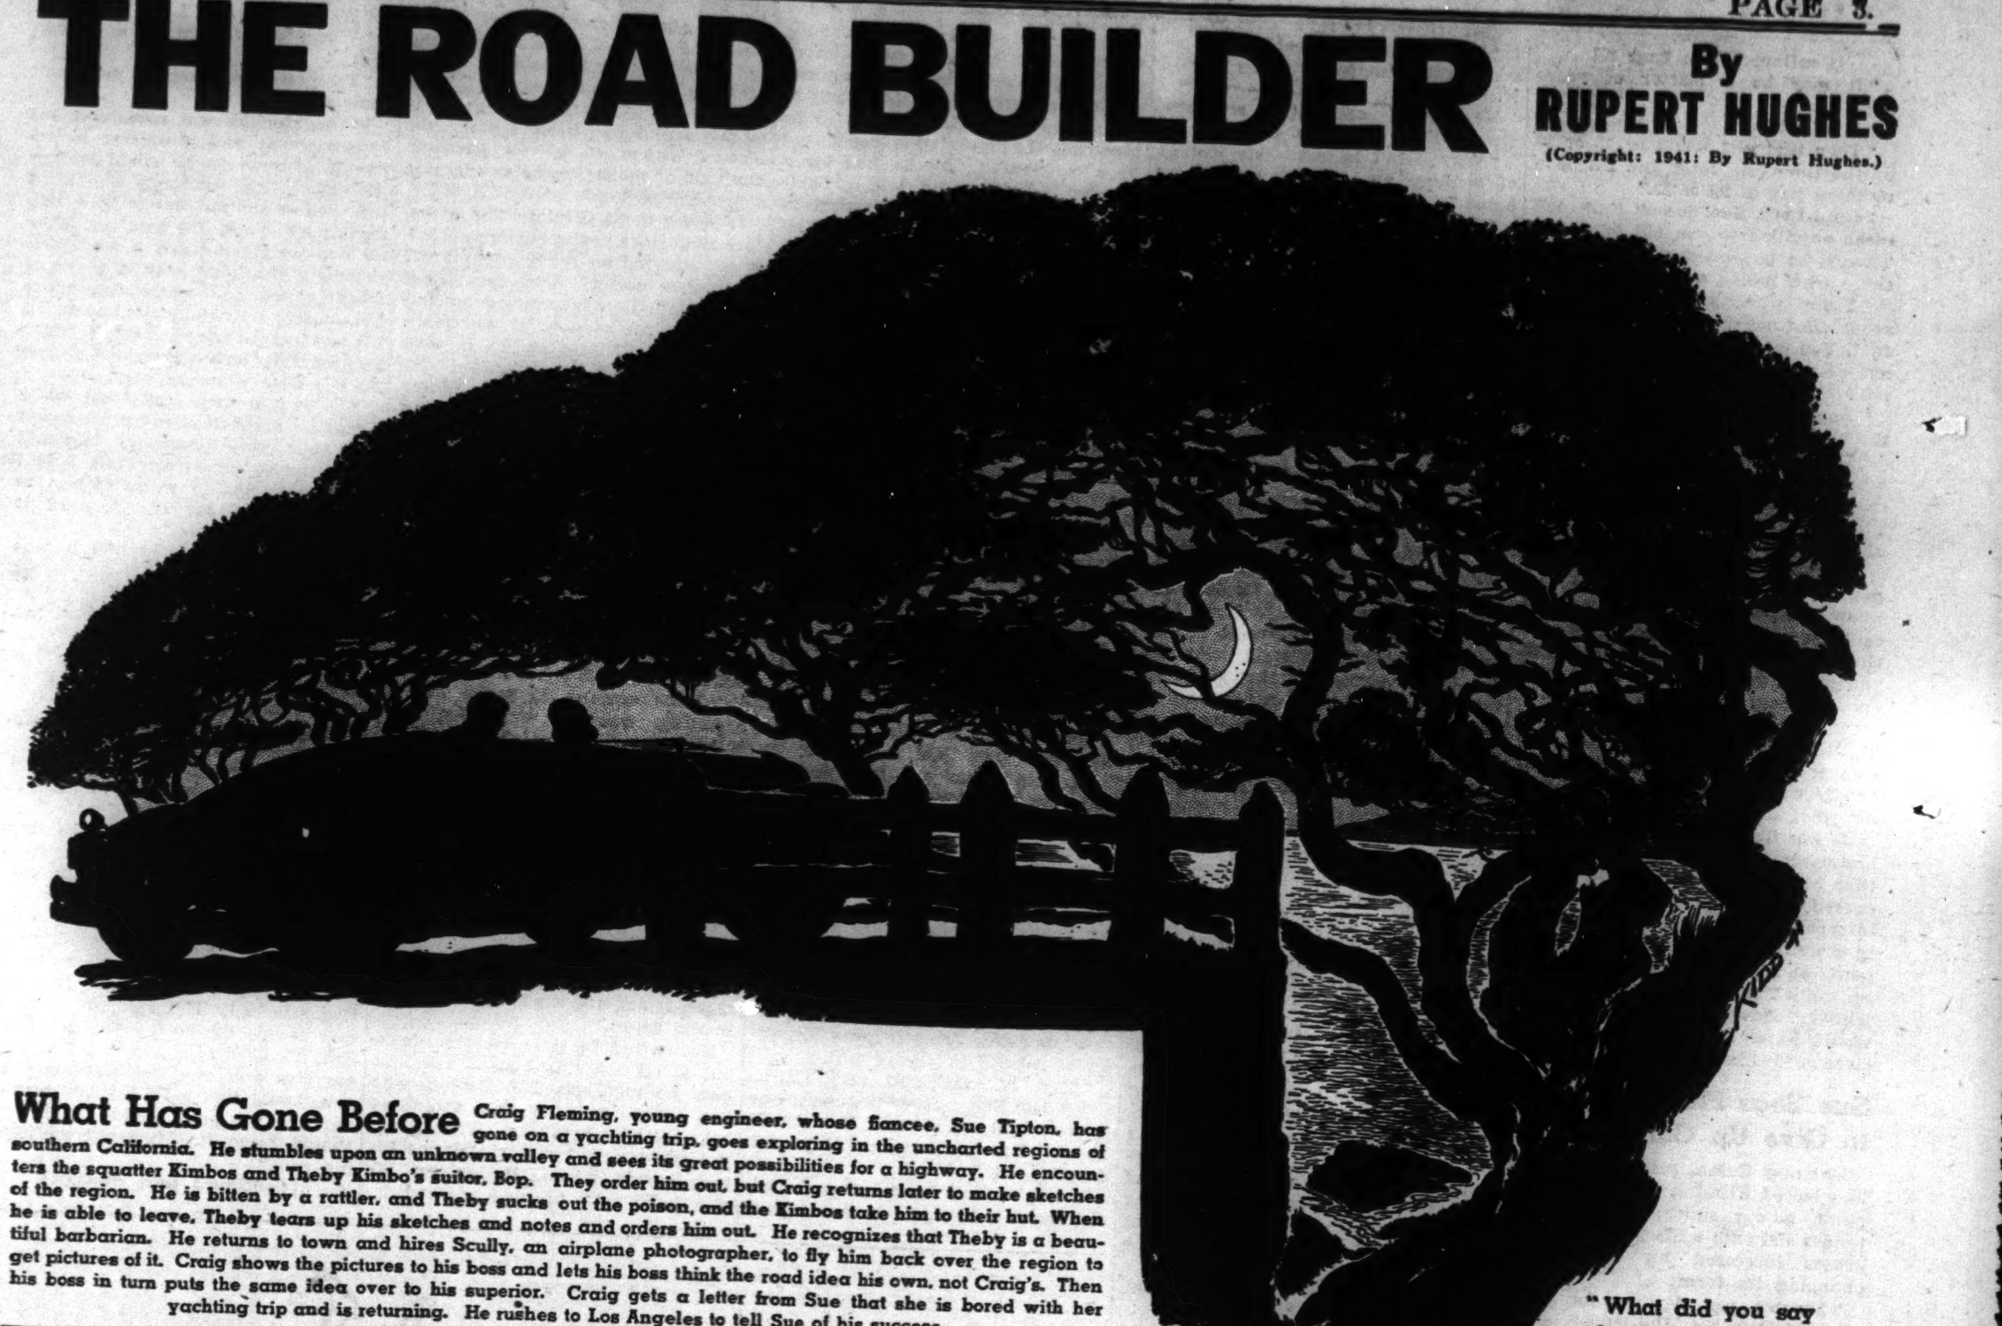
THE ROAD BUILDER

By RUPERT HUGHES

(Copyright: 1941: By Rupert Hughes.)



"What did you say the girl's name was?" Was this all his great deeds meant to him?

What Has Gone Before Craig Fleming, young engineer, whose fiancee, Sue Tipton, has gone on a yachting trip, goes exploring in the uncharted regions of southern California. He stumbles upon an unknown valley and sees its great possibilities for a highway. He encounters the squatter Kimbos and Theby Kimbo's suitor, Bop. They order him out, but Craig returns later to make sketches of the region. He is bitten by a rattler, and Theby sucks out the poison, and the Kimbos take him to their hut. When he is able to leave, Theby tears up his sketches and notes and orders him out. He recognizes that Theby is a beautiful barbarian. He returns to town and hires Scully, an airplane photographer, to fly him back over the region to get pictures of it. Craig shows the pictures to his boss and lets his boss think the road idea his own, not Craig's. Then his boss in turn puts the same idea over to his superior. Craig gets a letter from Sue that she is bored with her yachting trip and is returning. He rushes to Los Angeles to tell Sue of his success.

INSTALMENT V.

NONE of the brewing trouble troubled Fleming on his way to his holiday with Sue Tipton; for even if telepathy had been doing its best his mind was in no receptive state for telegrams from the office. Sue had sent for him, pleaded for him!

He knew her well enough to wonder how long her mood would last, how long it would be before she tossed him aside for somebody else. But that would only make his sunny hours with her the sweeter. By "sunny" he really meant "moony" since the moon is the sun for lovers.

When a man is his own master, he is the slave of his ambition, and that is the slave of opportunity. He gets no wages, has no hours. No whistle blows to end his work. A holiday for him is a day of extra toil.

But when a man is working for somebody else he can watch the clock with a high sense of self-respect and throw a declaration of independence at it. There is at least a holiday-and-a-half every week, with occasional clusters of holidays. He expects extra pay for every lick of work he does after the whistle blows. When the minute hand hits the sacred hour he leaves his pick in the air, his typewriter in mid-syllable, his ledger unbalanced.

Craig Fleming, for all his devotion to his career, was human. When he had that valley highway on his mind, he worked at it night and day. At least half his mind was on it during the hours he was supposed to be earning his wages from the state. This was not cheating; for the word "cheating" implies something unusual and abnormal; but doing less than one's utmost for an employer is so normal that it is practically universal.

That is why they have bosses, and time clocks. Otherwise, businesses would never get done. They even have to have bosses for the bosses. As soon as Kimberlane had kidnaped Fleming's idea Fleming began to loaf and Kimberlane began to work overtime. As soon as Spetts had stolen his idea, Kimberlane became again a clock-watching boss.

As the father of a great new highway Fleming was the serf of a dream and had no time for love. When he became again a mere employé of the highway commission he became again the young man in love, with one-half his mind imagining how nice it would be to be with a certain girl.

Kimberlane, for his own selfish purposes, had illegally told Fleming to take the week-end off and had faked up a message for him to take in person to Elmer E. Niebel, a higherup at the Los Angeles office. As Fleming interpreted this, "the week-end" meant Saturday.

His office hours ended at 5 and at 5:05 on Friday his car was a south-bound streak. Instead of praising the unknown engineers who had laid down the expensive road, he kept complaining when he came to a curve that required a little slowing down, or a heavy grade where his car did its own slowing up. The state had built those highways out of the blood and the bone of taxpayers, ostensibly for commercial purposes; but from late afternoon to early morning a large part of the traffic was devoted to love. Young men and old and young women and old were speeding to their lovers, or speeding somewhere with them.

Fleming Makes a Date with Sue by Telephone

Tho Saturday morning was payday, Fleming had wheedled his wages out of the cashier on Friday, and secured Kimberlane's letter to Niebel the same afternoon. But he neglected to send $10 of his pay to Bill Baylor for the excellent reason that he would need it himself for his hours with the insatiable Sue.

He had telephoned to her and arranged to reach her home in Pasadena late that evening. This would save him from taking her out to dinner. The fact that he could not wear his dinner jacket would also save him from taking her to any of the more expensive dancing places. When he had apologized to Sue for this over the telephone, she had said:

"If you could know how sick I am of dinner coats and evening jackets on yachty boys, you'd come in that sweater and corduroys you used to wear when you were in California Tech and we were both young."

There is nobody nicer or less demanding that a woman trying to retrieve a lost lover, and Sue's kindness exerted its old hypnotic spell. As Fleming sped toward her at a highly illegal speed, he remembered the scared and skinny little thing she had been when he had first deigned to notice her; he remembered how she had gradually filled out as if she had been very gently and artistically inflated.

But when he reached her home and stood in the hall waiting for that girl to come bounding down the stairs, he was startled to behold the stately princess who descended them. Her old exuberance, her slang, her very snobbery were gone. She was imbued with the occult things one is supposed to learn in Hawaii. There was an undulant, dreamy, amorous mood in her every motion. She seemed to carry her own private moon with her and to be attended by a distant, invisible chorus singing a blissfully sorrowful tune.

Omitting the usual preliminary sparring, she fell into Fleming's arms with the clinging softness of a silken shawl, and murmured throatily:

"Darling! How I have missed you."

He knew that she had been flirting overtime, working her head off and giving her heart a workout every waking hour, and he had to say:

"Darling, your lies are sweeter than the truth from anybody else. Go on and give me your version of everything you've done and seen."

A foolish girl returned from far exotic climes would have delivered long travelogues on what she had seen. But Sue was the wise one. She said:

"O, darling, there's no use telling you about Hawaii. It's just like the movies. The important thing is what have you been doing? I'm dying to know. Let's not go to any of those crowded bright lights. I want to be alone with just only you—and the stars."

He could afford the stars and he knew where he could get a lot of them—with a moon thrown in for good measure—a somewhat nibbled moon and therefore not too bright.

So he drove to a lonely hilltop where she could be alone with just only him. She accepted just enough endearments to enslave him again, then refused his lips and arms with a flattering reference to their danger, and offered him the ultimate voluptuousness of talking about oneself to a coöperative listener, who interrupts only to express interest.

With such an auditor, it was inconceivable that Fleming should not have described first the dull drudgery of office and field work far from her, and then revealed how well he had got along without her by telling her of his great discovery and his majestic plan. First he pledged her to inviolate secrecy and woke a curiosity that was hugely disappointed when she learned that the great mystery was only a highway thru a canyon. She gave him her solemn pledge in advance not to divulge the secret, and for once she kept such a pledge. She could have imagined nothing less worth divulging.

If work was the ancient curse of Adam, Eve's curse was that she had to listen to him tell all about it. But Sue was a practiced martyr, and a woman can always think of other things to think of, or sit and study with fascination the way a man's eyebrows grow or the funny way he has of making faces when he is serious.

It cheered Fleming no end to find Sue so receptive to his professional talk. He flattered himself—and her—that she had grown up at last and was taking the interest in his work that a devoted wife would be expected to take. So he enlarged on the wonders of his adventure. He made the mountains a little higher than they were, the valley a little deeper. He started to make the rattlesnakes a little more vicious and voluminous than they had been, but she cut that story short with a gasp.

"I'm horribly sorry for you, you poor darling, but you'll really have to skip the snakes. I can't stand them in a zoo, to say nothing of chewing on my darling. All I want to know is that you didn't die of the nasty brutes."

He reassured her on that point and was glad to skip both the snakes and the facts about how Theby had saved his life. Telling a girl how another girl was a heroine is always good stuff for skipping. He sketched in the Kimbos and their hospitality as well as their hostility, and he minimized Theby to the vanishing point. Then he went on to his airplane flight, the details of his photographs, and finally reached the grand climax in the duping of Kimberlane and his high hopes of the future.

Sue's First Question Is About Theby Kimbo

At the end of his long, long chronicle of his engineering achievement, he waited proudly for Sue's applause. And what she gave him was a most peculiar question:

"What did you say the girl's name was?"

He stared at her aghast. Was that all his great deeds meant to her? He said:

"What girl's name? Kimberlane's secretary's name? It's Ellenbogen—Helen Ellenbogen."

"Don't be silly," said Sue. "You know the girl I mean. The one that wanted to shoot you, and burned up your notes. Was she as fascinating as she sounded?"

He was amazed, as men usually are, at so much intuition and perspicacity in so little a woman. He did not realize that of the two forms of emphasis, understatement is far the more emphatic, and that the worst way to smuggle a thing past a guard is to try to conceal it. He was positively frightened by Sue's uncanny remark:

"I suppose she simply saved your life."

He wondered if Sue were a mind-reader, but she explained what she meant when she said:

"If it hadn't been for her I suppose you'd have been bored to death by those dirty old hillbillies. You roadbuilders must find lots of romance in those construction camps."

"O, yes," he said with tons of irony, "the government furnishes a seraglio with each one."

Irony never made any impression on Sue. She said with fascination:

"She wanted to shoot you! The darling! What wouldn't she do to you—and to me—if she found us up here? Do you suppose she can hit what she shoots at?"

He could not tell how much was teasing and how much she suspected of what he had concealed. So he had to take it until she said:

"Do you think you're being quite true to her?—or to me?"

"Me true to that little illiterate rat! She's no more to me than—than——"

"No more to you than Than, eh? Well, Than is quite a lot. And as for illiterate—aren't we all? Even you are only an engineer, and I'm not even that well read. People fell in love long before there were books."

"O, quit it, Sue. You're making a mountain out of a——"

"A molehillbilly?"

"She's only a kid of 15 or 16—how do I know how old she is?"

"Juliet was only a kid of 13 when she got Romeo into all that trouble. How long will it take to build this road of yours thru that valley of hers?"

"Well, that depends on when it starts."

"How soon could it start?"

"The most likely date is never. But it might take years. At best it is bound to take months."

"You'll go into that valley with the first surveying party, I suppose, and stay with your pet project till it's finished."

"If they'll let me. I'll be heart-broken if they don't."

"And once that road is begun how long will it take to finish it?"

"God only knows. We may run into all sorts of difficulties—storms, floods, strikes. If the state's financial condition goes on getting worse they may stop it midway."

Bus to Taxco Bumpy But Trip Is Interesting

By Anson Brown.

A pig was squealing in the aisle beside me and I was beginning to itch, but ah! this was Mexico once more! The only bus I could catch at noon was the third class. The springs were gone, the windows rattled, the seats creaked, a baby was crying, and the fat woman behind me snored. We bounced, we lurched, we roared around corners. Mexico once more, O boy!

TAXCO, MEXICO.

The bumpy hills rolled away on all sides. They billowed off to a distant gray haze, parched in a hot noonday sun. Wave after wave of heat rolled up to the blueness above. I shed my jacket, loosened my collar, and scratched some more.

An hour and a half passed and we skidded into Cuernavaca's narrow streets. Dogs, donkeys, and cobblestones there were. I could feel each cobblestone. Did we have any air at all in our tires? We stopped at the main plaza. For a penny I bought a taco from a woman outside my open window. It was filled with meat of unknown origin and chili peppers. For the next 10 miles I breathed thru my mouth trying to squelch the fire that seared my tongue.

• • •

It was a long ride, full of color and noises and odors and kidney jolting, but one shouldn't mind. I'd have walked if necessary to get back to Taxco. It's the funniest little town in all the world. Lazy is no word for it. Even the squat stucco cottages seem to yawn every time their front door is open. The laurel trees on the square are sleepy with their leaves scarce moving in the idle breeze that bathes Taxco in a year round warmth. Like as not when one arrives he'll find part of the town population enjoying a siesta on the cathedral steps. The rest of them probably will be on the huge balcony porch of Paco's bar making wise cracks about the constant flow of visitors moving about the plaza with their cameras.

Four hours by third class bus from Mexico City to Taxco. Would we ever get there? At every round of a curve I expected to see the huge outlying hotel or the shrine on the nearby hill. I hadn't been back for three years and it was more exciting than coming home. I had almost given up. Perhaps we had taken the wrong turn out of Cuernavaca. Then, there it was; the old crumbling aquaduct, the cobblestone streets, poinsettias in bloom, and the red tiled roofs of the houses piled one on top of the other over the hills.

• • •

How our antiquated bus ever made the last hill up to the square is beyond me. We fumed and roared, then screeched to a stop just below Paco's balcony porch. The Americans on the porch, peering over the railing, must have thought me more of a tramp than a vagabond, in my dirty white trousers, sandals, sweat shirt, and 100 miles of Mexican dust. Then Natalie Scott, that sweet person from New Orleans, whose two cookbooks are a credit to any kitchen, recognized me beneath the grime, came down from Paco's and promptly planted a kiss on each cheek. That was my welcome to Taxco where again I was to settle. It was great to be back. The little Kitagawa house high on a hill awaited me. I was to stay a month.

Historic New Mexican 'Choza' to Be Handmade

SANTA FE, N. M.—Another of New Mexico's historic landmarks—the little "choza" [dugout] where Eugene Manlove Rhodes met southwestern cowpunchers and outlaws and recorded them in his book "Paso Por Aqui"—is to become a memorial. The "choza," located about 30 miles south of Alamogordo, N. M., at the very edge of White Sands National monument, is being excavated and restored by friends of the noted New Mexico author of western stories.

What is the Salton sea? —R. A. K.

It is an unusual body of salty water in a dip of the desert in southern California. It is 246 feet below the level of the Pacific ocean, a few hundred miles away, and it has on its shores a cluster of bubbling mud pots that look like miniature volcanoes.

What are the ski facilities in the Laurentian country in the province of Quebec? —M. M.

The area, comprising 600 square miles, has a wide diversity of facilities for winter sports. Among these are many downhill runs, ski tows, and slalom courses. It is one of North America's finest ski centers.

Descendants of Aztecs to Give "Tiger Dance"

TAXCO, Mexico.—Descendants of the Aztecs will feature their famous "Tiger Dance" here on March 1. Wearing fantastic feathered costumes and masks of animals and devils, Indian dancers will enact the hunt of the jaguar, or Mexican "tiger," in the courtyards of the Borda cathedral, largest church in Taxco, as well as the smaller church of Veracruz. Native pipes and drums will provide a weird accompaniment.

Phoenicians Order 'Rain' by Telephone

By Frederic Babcock.

"Down here," a Phoenician [the residents of Phoenix go by that name] told this correspondent, "when we want rain we order it by phone."

PHOENIX, ARIZ.

It was an apt illustration, even if it weren't literally true. The Phoenicians and their neighbors can get all the water they want by phoning for it, but the water comes thru irrigation ditches, and not directly from the skies. If it weren't for the irrigation this would be one vast desert.

• • •

It is related that in 1867 a group of pioneers were resting from their labors in this valley, serviced by the Salt river and protected by a ring of purple mountains. The site of a new city had just been chosen. The pioneers were wondering what they should name it.

Darrell Duppa, an English prospector, looked out over the valley, painted in brilliant hues by the setting sun. Everywhere were signs of ancient life. Canals crisscrossed the land. Crumbling adobe dwellings told of a civilization long since dead. Even attempts at literature by a prehistoric people were to be found in images and symbols on the rocks.

• • •

"The Egyptians had a myth," Duppa said, "about a giant bird that once in every 500 years was burned in its own nest. Magically, each time it rose from the ashes bigger, stronger, more beautiful than ever before."

"What did they call it?" he was asked.

"It was named the Phoenix bird," he answered.

"What about it?" a co-worker demanded.

"Well," Duppa said, "we plan to build a modern city on the site of the ashes of one of America's ancient communities. It will be bigger, stronger, more beautiful than its predecessor. So why not call it Phoenix?"

• • •

The prospector could scarcely have foreseen the extent to which his dreams would be realized. Today the city he named has not only grown large and splendid, but the whole valley has been made to thrive again.

Phoenix is the center of 400,000 acres of an irrigated oasis. Water stored up by the Roosevelt dam and four other projects has turned the valley into a mass of truck farms and orchards of dates, oranges, lemons, grapefruit, and olives. The city and its suburbs have long avenues of palms, pepper trees, and other semitropical foliage. The whole effect is a sort of 20th century duplication of the Garden of Eden.

Strangely enough, evidences of the remote civilization from whose ashes the city sprang are still to be seen in the ruins of Indian homes preserved as historic shrines. At Pueblo Grande, a few blocks from the center of the city, scientists almost daily are turning up souvenirs of the earlier culture.

And even the valley's modern system of irrigation is based on the series of canals dug by a vanished people.

Air Passengers Double.

MONTREAL, Que.—More than twice as many passengers were carried by Trans-Canada Air Lines in 1940 as in 1939, last year's passengers totaling 53,180 against 21,596 for 1939. The peak month of 1940 was August when 7,000 passengers used Canada's national air service.

'Friendly' the Arizona Name for Wickenburg

By Lolita Linn.

WICKENBURG, ARIZ. There are a few things in this world which should be earmarked "friendly." At the head of our list are: a wriggling fox terrier puppy; an open fire; a warm, scented kitchen, and Wickenburg, Ariz.

Wickenburg has a modest way of explaining its attractions in terms of magic river water. He who drinks of the water of the Hassayampa river will surely return. That is the legend. We suspect that the truth lies in the warm, if shy, welcome which the stranger finds waiting for him in Wickenburg.

This old town retains enough of its western sense of proportion to be just a bit different about its own charms. It is immensely pleased that its guests return year after year and that J. B. Priestley, who spent two winters at the Remuda ranch, says that it has one of the best winter climates in the world, but it has never gone in for pretty girl publicity or even for the preservation of local color at the expense of residents who prefer sidewalks.

It accepts modernity with the same calmness with which it must have accepted the colorful and somewhat turbulent days of the gold rush era. It maintains a quiet pride in its own institutions and traditions. [The volunteer fire department is as exclusive as any first rate club.] Its people wear blue jeans and broad brimmed hats, not to impress the visitors, but because the riding is rough and the sun very bright.

• • •

No doubt it was a visitor who first called Wickenburg "the guest ranch capital of the world," altho we imagine that he said "dude ranch," for the ranches around Wickenburg follow the tradition of the western dude ranch where the eastern visitor lives "in the manner," but in all the freedom and informality of the great cattle domains. The host is very likely to carry your bags; the cook takes a personal interest in your likes and dislikes, and the head wrangler has you riding along mountains trails almost before you have time to confess that you are "afraid of a horse."

The brands of the ranches around Wickenburg are no more distinctive or interesting than the people who operate them. Here you find hosts who concern themselves personally with the smallest detail of their guests' comfort and whose personalities give flavor and distinction to their ranches.

Out at the M Bar V ranch [Monte Vista] are the Lewis C. Whites, who located their guest cottages with an eye to the best views of river bed and surrounding mountains. For variety and fun they often take their guests over the old trails in a horse drawn station wagon.

"Bob" White finds time to operate a 10,000 acre cattle ranch on the side and he has an easy way of transforming a city dude into a promising "cow hand."

Mollie Meaker of Evanston, who is staying at Monte Vista with her mother, Mrs. Guy L. Meaker, has taken to levis and a Stetson hat with the ease and grace of an old timer, altho this is her first experience on a western ranch. The Bert Grahams of River Forest are staying at Monte Vista now. Recent guests were Mr. and Mrs. Morton Bodfish of Chicago.

In an earlier day cattle ranchers built their house and corrals in a spot sheltered from the wind and, if possible, where there was water for the shade trees which they prized along with their fine horses and their saddles. The site of the Kay-El-Bar ranch must have seemed as perfect to them as it does to the present day traveler. It is a pleasant surprise to come around the last sharp turn of the mountain desert road which leads to the ranch and to see the graceful old adobe buildings nestled among the trees in the river bed. The season is early, for the almond trees are budded and the violets which border the patio of the Casa de Rosita are in bloom.

The traditions of the cattle ranch turned "dude" are familiar to Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Collins, the managers of the Kay-El-Bar. Their early experience was on the Valley ranch and the H F Bar ranch in Wyoming. They are proud of the fact that they manage two of the original dude ranches of Arizona. In the summer they go up to the Cross Triangle, 93,000 acre cattle ranch outside of Prescott.

"Tom" Collins, Harry H. Redfearn of Highland Park, and Charles Baird, who has his own ranch in Montana, were feeling lucky the day we visited Kay-El-Bar. They had just come back from the Phoenix horse races where they won the quinella.

Mr. and Mrs. Redfearn and her son, Bobbie, are spending several weeks at the ranch.

The Frank Corwins, out at the Lazy R C ranch, came to Arizona in 1924 from Canton, Ill. Their young son, Jim, who started building up his string of horses when he was 8 years old, has always dreamed of being a dude rancher, and his parents are helping him to realize his dream on the Lazy R C.

This is a ranch which would appeal to almost any boy who loves the stories of the west. In the old days it was a stage stop and what is now the dining room was a long courtyard in which the horses were sheltered from the Apaches. The front door of the Lazy R C looks out on the desert—the back door—on an oasis of giant palms watered by seven springs.

Those who travel on the Santa Fe to Phoenix can see the historic Bar F X ranch where Henry Wickenburg had his home and where Jack Swilling, Lord Duppa, and their associates formed the canal company which started the town of Phoenix.

The Bar F X also is managed by a young man, Anthony F. O'Brien. Tony O'Brien is carrying on the traditions of his pioneer father who was prominent in the cattle and mining activities of young Wickenburg and of his mother, Mrs. Mary Patty Hutchinson O'Brien, whose father was chief engineer in the early days of the Vulture gold mine.

When Tony O'Brien and his mother built the new ranch lodge they were careful to build the wide veranda around a towering palm, for they remembered how much the elder O'Brien loved trees. He planted over a thousand in Wickenburg when it cost 25 cents a month to water a single tree.

Triangle W is the newest of the guest ranches around Wickenburg. Mr. and Mrs. Charles D. Williams, who built and manage it, formerly lived in Kansas City. For all its newness, Triangle W has a charm worthy of a western ranch. No doubt part of it is due to Mr. Williams' love for the west and his sincere respect for its traditions. And Mrs. Williams' childhood training in a minister's family stands her in good stead when it comes to making folks feel at home.

No story of Wickenburg could be complete without mention of the Jack Burdens, who have made the "R R" brand of Remuda ranch synonymous with western ranch hospitality, and of their associate, Carl Stibolt, formerly of Lake Forest. As happens so often in Wickenburg, Carl Stibolt came as a guest and remained to take an active part in the life of the community.

Among those who return to Remuda each year are the Eugene Ketterings of Hinsdale, the Charles Dennehys of Lake Forest, and Miss Hazel Haseltine of Chicago. Mrs. Hollis Kirk of Chicago comes to the ranch in October and stays until late spring. The Robert Dickinsons, formerly of Lake Forest, have been guests this winter at Remuda. They are now building their own ranch home, the Lazy Y, on the Black Canyon road.

MELROSE PARK TO ANNEX G-M PLANT

ERIE NEIGHBORS WIN NO. 1 BATTLE IN WAR ON FILTH

Next Objective to Be Better Housing.

BY ELAINE MINER.

This is the story of a neighborhood which refused to stay down, which is another way of saying it is the story of neighbors, of men and women who decided that financial difficulties need not result in shabbiness and filth.

The neighbors on Erie street are striving for a goal many might consider beneath the dignity of a starting point. To them, however, it is a monumental task—that of improving their surroundings to just the point where health and decency are possible. More than 75 of these neighbors are banded into the Neighborhood Health club, so named because if their aims are realized their children will be healthier. The club's project, however, affect nearly every resident in the area bounded by Paulina street on the west, Chicago avenue on the north, May street on the east and Kinzie street on the south.

Learning Their Rights.

Rundown flats that were fire hazards and garbage strewn, rat infested alleys once formed the pattern of the neighborhood. Today more than 1,000 garbage cans have been placed in the alleys and the people are being educated to use them. Today too residents are learning that the law says they don't need to risk being trapped in a fire because there is only one stairway, and that their buildings are required to meet certain minimum standards of cleanliness and health. Thus are the patterns of years being slowly changed. The Neighborhood Health club is doing it the hard, sure way—from the bottom up.

The club, under the leadership of Mrs. Emma Kay who was just elected president, and Mrs. Sophie Swiderski who has been secretary since the work was started, has the assistance of an additional fifty young people whose name, the Dare-to-Be-Different club indicates the courage with which they tackle hard problems.

Temperate and Clean.

They dare to be different in politics, by not taking money for their votes; on alcohol, by not serving it at their parties and weddings; in housing, by improving their homes; and in health, thru K. O. N. C. activities. Those initials K. O. N. C. are as familiar to Erie neighbors as is the word Chicago. They stand for Keep Our Neighborhood Clean and are flung as a challenge or a warning to anyone caught dropping paper or litter on the street. They are, in effect, the slogan of health.

Bernice Hubick is chairman of the K. O. N. C. committee. Its other members include Dan Brindici, John Leverenz, Sam Vaccaro, Sarah Gosh, Sylvia Muradian, Minnie Coluosuonno, Eva Creccio, Carmen Genova and Elaine Hubick.

The story of the Neighborhood Health club and K. O. N. C. goes back a little more than two years and starts at the Erie Neighborhood house at 1347 West Erie street. At that time garbage was piled from both sides of every alley till it met in the center. Sometimes the refuse lay for weeks, even in summer, the smell of the filth forcing those in the settlement house to close windows. The rats were the only living creatures really happy about the arrangement.

Accept Status Quo.

The neighbors accepted all this with a simple statement. "It has always been this way," they said.

And the ward superintendent said that he had tried, but that you "couldn't do a thing with these people"—they didn't coöperate and they didn't care. And he pointed to a pailful of garbage being heaved right out of a second or third story window to land helter-skelter in the alley below—if no one happened to be walking by to interrupt its fall.

But the word "impossible" is only a challenge to Miss Florence Towne, who has spent 25 years in settlement work. She asked the neighbors whose homes and alleys were near the settlement to attend a rally at Erie house. Those who attended organized the Neighborhood Health club.

Provide Garbage Cans.

Their procedure was simple. Each became responsible for certain blocks, and little groups soon spent most of the time marching up and down the alleys, checking on sore spots and talking over the alley fences with those responsible for them. When a club member found where a garbage can was needed, he called at the home and had the neighbor sign a mimeographed statement that he would keep his part of the alley clean if a can were provided. The next day an oil drum which the Boy Scouts had painted black and stenciled as Erie's property was delivered. More than a thousand of these cans were placed within a year.

The garbage cleanup has been dramatized in various ways. Two parades have been held, the marchers bearing banners and slogans and singing special cleanup songs. Auxiliary K. O. N. C. clubs of boys and girls were organized. To be a member it is necessary to promise to pick up five things a day and never

Will Appear in Historical Pageant

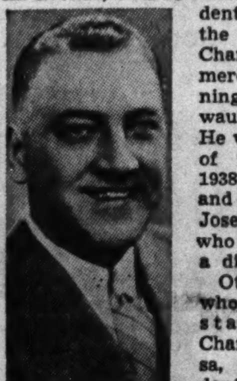
AVONDALE BUSINESS GROUP TO INSTALL NEW STAFF TONIGHT

Walter J. Bialczak, 3020 North Hamlin avenue, will be installed as president for 1941 of the Avondale Chamber of Commerce this evening at 3196 Milwaukee avenue. He was president of the club in 1938 and 1939, and now succeeds Joseph Czekaj, who now becomes a director.



Walter J. Bialczak.

Other officers who will be installed are Charles Kiolbassa, vice president; Nate Rachelson, secretary, and Martin Grossman, treasurer. Frank Derwick is the new chairman of the board of directors, which is made up of Vincent Najdowski, S. J. Freedman, Walter Uhwat, Frank Micek, Ernest Silberhorn, M. R. Poncher, Stanley Ragam, Joseph Miller, Edward Cwik, and Joseph Czekaj.

The program will begin with a banquet at 6 o'clock, and Judge Stephen Adamowski, honorary president, will be the installing officer.

DANCE PROCEEDS WILL APPLY ON CHURCH'S DEBT

As an example of what continued parish support can really accomplish, the annual St. Viator's Washington Birthday ball is at the top of the list. The party, which attracts several thousand persons is to be held Saturday evening in the Stevens hotel under the general chairmanship of the Rev. Gregory A. Galvin pastor of the church.

During the six years in which it has been held, the ball has earned an average of $10,000 a year to apply on the debt on the new church building, the nuns' home, the rectory, and the school in the 4100 block on Addison street.

The 55 year old church is now the only one in Chicago conducted by the St. Viator order. The annual party thus enlists widespread support from old and new parishioners, as well as from alumni of the former St. Viator college in Kankakee.

Card playing will start at 8 o'clock, and dancing at 10 o'clock on the night of the party. A former student at St. Viator's grade school, Kenny Leighton, and his band will furnish the music.

Betty Boyle, Patricia Rochford, Catherine Hilberg, Mary and Patsy Ziegler, Mervyn Hinske, Mary Margaret Wojtalewicz, and Dorothy Edwards, all dressed in colonial costumes, will sell gardenias during the evening.

Subcommittees working under Father Galvin's direction will be headed by Mrs. Conrad E. Niehoff, Mrs. Lawrence Marley, Mrs. J. J. Hank, and Mrs. L. C. Rohrer.

War Disrupts Club in 1917; to Meet Again

Members of the northwest side Fidelity club will be all ears this evening when their secretary, John Rudnik, reads the minutes of the last meeting. For the last meeting of the club, which was founded in 1910, was on Jan. 22, 1917, more than 24 years ago.

Frank J. Janowiak. [Marshall Photo.]

"Meeting called to order by Frank J. Janowiak, chairman," the minutes will say. The members will sigh and lean back and think of a handsome young newlywed calling for order. Chairman Frank J. Janowiak, who now has a 23 year old daughter, probably will lean back, too, thinking what a different looking bunch of members the club has, altho most of them were members of the original club and the others are wives or husbands of original members.

War Took Members.

By the time of the 1917 meeting the old club had been reduced to a mere 16 or 17 by the war draft and by members volunteering. The "next" meeting was never held, at least when scheduled.

Last Jan. 22, the anniversary of the last meeting, Janowiak thought it was about time for another one. The club used to meet at Eckhart park, Chicago avenue and Noble street, but none of the members lived there any more. Janowiak found that most of them had moved to the same region as he had—his home is at 5349 Wrightwood avenue, so he figured that meetings could be held at Blackhawk park, Belden and Lavergne avenues.

Expect 100 to Attend.

He approached some of the members, who reacted favorably. Then arranged a "reunion dinner and meeting" for tonight at Warsaw hall, 820 North Ashland avenue. Nearly 100 are expected to attend, and the committee in charge of the dinner consists of C. J. B. Wronski, A. J. Jankowski, John Rudnik, and Janowiak.

The club was organized in 1910 as a girls' social club. Anna Tadych, now Mrs. Janowiak, was first chairman, and other charter officers, with their later married names, were Bessie Barski Otterson, Estelle Olen Rammel, Pauline Cwik Fatz, Tillie Trush Skorupa, and Laura Szypura Egan.

After a couple of months, it seems, the girls thought it would be nicer if they had boy members, too, so they persuaded their current beaux to join. Frank Janowiak joined in 1914. The maximum membership was about 50. They had dances, card parties, and other activities. When members married, they were dropped, at first, but when Chairman Janowiak married founder Anna Tadych in 1916, they were asked to remain members.

Leaders of the revived club, besides Janowiak and Rudnik, are Mrs. Martha Zahlava and Stephen Carynski, vice chairmen, and Mrs. Mae Jungels, treasurer—the same position she had in 1917. The activities of the new group, which has about 60 members, are not yet decided upon.

"But it's fitting that we should get together again," Janowiak said, considering the name of the club."

EXPLOSIVE SESSION AWAITS CLUB WOMEN AT DISTRICT RALLY

Seventh district club women should display a rising interest in the work of their education department after the balloon ascension meeting which Mrs. Charles E. Shaw, 6072 Neva avenue, education chairman, has arranged for 1:30 o'clock Friday in Wilson park fieldhouse, Milwaukee and Leland avenues.

Mrs. Charles E. Shaw.

Each club will send five delegates, one to act as pilot, and the others as ground crew. When they arrive at the meeting they will find balloons fastened about the room in groups of five. At the appointed time of the race each club group will endeavor to find its own set of balloons. Once found, they will be "landed" by the pilot, and the crew will then busy themselves deflating each sphere, with the help of a pin, in order to obtain questions inserted into each balloon.

The entire club crew will then answer the questions on education department affairs. Their replies will be judged and graded on a "mileage" basis. The winning club will be awarded a book as a prize. Two larger "blimps" will be provided for the club presidents attending the meeting.

BIG HOMECOMING IS ON PROGRAM OF ST. PATRICK'S

More than 1,500 parishioners and former members of St. Patrick's church, Des Plaines and Adams streets, are expected to attend the second annual homecoming card party and dance Saturday evening at the La Salle hotel.

Clarence A. Leary, 722 Clinton street, Oak Park, is general chairman of the arrangements committee, and the Rev. Thomas J. Hayes, pastor of the church, is honorary chairman.

Other heads of the homecoming committee include the Rev. Lawrence Kenney, Roy K. Bennish, Frank C. Spanknabell, and Louis J. Owens.

'Why Crime' to Be Theme in Talk at Division 'Y'

Martin Walsh, attorney, who was a candidate for mayor of Chicago in the 1927 primaries, will speak on the question, "Why Crime?" at the Division street Y. M. C. A., 1621 West Division street, at 8 o'clock tomorrow evening.

THREE MILLION WAR DRESSINGS RED CROSS JOB

Service Pins Given 273 Workers.

The "greatest program since world war days" for the Chicago chapter of the American Red Cross has been announced by its chairman, James B. Forgan, who at the same time told of the award of service pins to 273 additional chapter volunteers who have completed 144 hours of work.

"Our volunteers," Mr. Forgan said, "are to complete a quota of 3,000,000 surgical dressings for the United States army by March 31, and have started work on a new war relief production quota of 117,506 garments, to be completed by May 31."

Mr. Forgan explained that the garment program is to maintain a reservoir of needed supplies in the event that more civilians are affected by new military offensives in the European war. Gauze for the dressings, he added, is supplied by the army to the 52 Red Cross units in Chicago and suburbs.

PENNY IS MAGIC TALISMAN FOR THIS CARNIVAL

A penny will go far if it happens to be produced at the Emerson house next Thursday evening. Not often can a 1 cent piece provide much gayety and entertainment, but both will be apparent during the two and a half hours, starting at 7:30 o'clock, that the first Penny Carnival fills the settlement at 645 North Wood street.

Designed as a means of sociability for adult members of the settlement, the carnival is being sponsored by the house council, composed of representatives from each senior and adult club in the institution. Three cents plus a membership card will entitle any one over 13 years of age to participate in the carnival program and see the amateur show which will be staged during the evening.

Once in the door, almost every carnival caper—fish pond, fortune telling, games, and side shows among others—can be enjoyed at the rate of a copper penny per.

Each of the carnival activities will be put on by one settlement club or group.

William Swanson is business manager in general charge of the carnival. The committee in charge of the amateur show consists of Steve Kosla, Mrs. Jennie Campagna, and Margaret Megliarino. On the arrangements committee are Mrs. Margaret Fioredelise, Gertrude Cwik, Rosario Lusco, Shirly Becker, Pat Blanche, and Mary Bove. Miss Virginia Goodwin is the supervising staff member.

To Hold Bazar.

Immaculate Conception church of Norwood Park will hold a bazar this afternoon and evening in the church hall, Talcott road and Oconto avenue.

'Relief? Not Me,' Declares the Ragpicker

BY JOHN T. M'CUTCHEON JR.

A long, hard week paying only five or six dollars. No boss, no grudges, no worries, and nothing to lose. That's the ragpicker. He is happy and would rather be this way and independent than ask for relief, where he could probably get more money for doing less.

You'll find him wheeling his cart along any of the near northwest or west side streets, camouflaged in a baggy accumulation of patches, his head bundled in something once designed as a hat. He will disappear into the next alley, and emerge after a while with his cart loaded with empty liquor bottles, metal pipes, broken pots and pans, rags, and paper.

If you're near Erie street you'll probably see John Kwarciak, who will gladly tell you about his business. He likes to have some one to talk to. He is 55 years old and has combed the Erie street alleys for 10 years. He has a squint, his face is weatherbeaten, and looks like an old sea captain's.

Took to the Alleys.

"I used to work in a restaurant," John explained, "but in 1930 I was laid off and soon after that my wife died. Then I began to take my turn at the junk business. Most of us are geting along in years. That's because the young fellows would rather do nothing than this; they always aim too high.

'But as long as I can make a living for myself I'll never ask for relief," he declared. "We all feel the same way. This way, when we have a dime left over, we can buy a drink without thinking that we're making the government pay for it."

Few of the ragpickers have dependents and drink accounts for most of the pennies they have left over, according to Kwarciak. But there aren't enough pennies to bring them much trouble.

John plays the violin, but scorns the idea of collecting money that way because it would be "too much like begging."

"Do you mind if I stop here a minute," John asked, turning into an alley. "Some times the lady here keeps something out of the garbage pile so she can give it to me herself."

Deftly he plucks a couple of bottles and some bits of tinware from a heap. He breaks the bottles into a bushel basket in his cart so that they will not take as much room. Glass brings him about 10 cents a hundred pounds. Colored glass won't do, since it cannot be melted with pure glass.

Paper Is Prize Haul.

Paper brings about twice as much as glass, and more if it is already in bundles. Corrugated paper brings still more. A good daily haul of four or five trips will bring 75 cents or a dollar.

The ragpicker is the second lowest caste of junk man, it seems. The lowest is known as the "bush fighter," who travels with a gunny sack slung over his shoulder. Even the cart pushers frown on him. Members of these castes are generally "affiliated" with some neighborhood junk dealer with whom they have been dealing sometimes for many years.

One grade of "unaffiliated" dealer has a horse and wagon with an old sign reading "Junk" hung over the side. Above him financially is the owner of a truck, bedecked in a freshly painted sign saying, "Max gives best prices for junk."

The dealer who buys from the ragpickers and bush fighters, and who sometimes wheels a cart himself, is likely to be prosperous. Some of them have 75 or 80 men selling to them and some of those that operate in the loop are rumored to have saved as much as $100,000. They still dress in rags.

John sells to Robert Harris, who has nine regular men who sell to him. He sits in a basement room at 955 West Erie street looking out on his junk yard.

John shuffled in and warmed up by the stove. It was a while before Harris went out and glanced at the load and handed John 15 cents or so. John unloaded and set off again.

"These steady men are as honest as ever earned a penny," Harris said. "The others that come and go—well, sometimes they borrow a cart and forget to come back. But a cart is only worth a dollar."

From Hand to Hand.

Harris sells glass to a glass man for $3 to $4 a ton, paper to a paper man, iron to an iron man, and so on. The glass man then sells to a glass foundry, and the same routine is followed with the other materials. Broken glass, therefore, goes from ragpicker to junk dealer to glassman to foundry.

The best season for junk, Harris said, are spring and fall, when people are moving. Then they're likely to throw more things away. There is never any quibbling about price or "spheres of influence." Two men may be working right next to each other, or they may have agreed as to separate blocks.

Two of the others in John's group, most of whom live above Harris' junk yard, are Tony Moskowitz and Mike Krubig. Asked if he had ever been on relief, Tony exclaimed:

"Relief! Huh! That's only for after a fellow gives up."

Park Ridge Sea Scout Ship to Give Ball Friday Night

The annual ball of the Sea Scout ship Monsoon of Park Ridge will be held Friday evening at the South park fieldhouse in Park Ridge. Dr. A. W. Koepp, chairman of the Sea Scout committee of Park Ridge, is in charge.

PLAN ADDITION OF 500 ACRES TO VILLAGE AREA

Will Add Millions to Evaluation.

BY MILDRED WILDS.

The village of Melrose Park is expected to be one-third larger by next Monday than it is today. A petition seeking to annex 500 acres of land in Proviso and Leyden townships has been filed by Guy C. Guerine, village attorney, and the hearing is set for Feb. 24 in County court before Judge Edmund K. Jarecki.

Guy C. Guerine.

Six months ago the announcement of the proposed annexation would have caused little more than a ripple of comment. But now the news is that the tract includes the 124 acres acquired by Buick division of General Motors corporation as the site for its 31 million dollar aircraft engine plant. Space for additional national defense works also is available. Ultimately the move is expected to boost the tax valuation of Melrose Park by many millions of dollars.

Second Instance in Year.

The Melrose Park action is the second instance in the last year of a small community on the border of Chicago annexing a rich industrial area. Last fall the village of Bedford Park extended its boundaries to include the 24 million dollar Clearing Industrial district.

Ninety per cent of the owners of the tract north and northwest of Melrose Park have signed the petition for annexation. All are absentee owners, for there is no one residing in the entire expanse. The property will be zoned for industry.

Roughly the area involved is bounded by Mannheim road on the west, Armitage avenue and Franklin Park on the north, and 25th avenue and 20th avenue on the east.

The General Motors aircraft engine plant, which will employ 10,000 persons, is expected to bring approximately 30,000 persons to the west area. The Defense Plant corporation, a subsidiary of the Reconstruction Finance corporation, paid $940 an acre for the tract. The defense corporation is to lease the plant to Buick and if the annexation goes thru Melrose Park will be benefited by the tax receipts.

Four Buildings in Plant.

Dale E. Williams of the Buick organization reported that the new plant will consist of four buildings with a total of more than one million square feet. The plant will have a capacity of approximately 500 Pratt & Whitney 1,200 horse power engines each month. Practically every part of the engine will be made here in addition to being assembled and tested.

Mr. Guerine believes that the Buick plant will mean an increase in value on residential and business property in Maywood, Franklin Park, and Bellwood in addition to Melrose Park. A tool and die company is negotiating for a site within the proposed Melrose Park city limits and an automobile accessory concern has also made inquiry about a site. Melrose Park will be benefited by the tax receipts from all these concerns. The Buick division signified its approval of the annexation plan when E. P. Querl of the Chicago Association of Commerce, who is now holding the land title, signed the petition, Stephen Mitchell, the Buick attorney, announced.

"This annexation probably will mean enlarging our fire department and other service departments in the village," Mr. Guerine said. "The village now has two fire trucks and equipment suitable for a population of 25,000.

"The tract is valuable to industrialists because of its excellent switching facilities," he added. "Here the Indiana Harbor Belt railroad joins the Milwaukee and St. Paul, the Chicago and North Western, the Illinois Central, the Burlington, and the Chicago and Great Western."

Points Out Housing Plans.

Mr. Guerine says he believes Melrose Park can answer the need for new housing which the industrialization of the area will create. "There is a tract zoned for homes," he says, "between Division street and North avenue with all improvements in and a new school. There now are only a few homes in these 300 acres. There are four or five other prospective home building sites to the west and to the south of the village not now within any corporate limits.

Melrose Park has a population of 11,000 and a business district at the intersection of Lake street and Broadway. The average value of homes is $4,500 and there are nine churches and six schools. The population is composed mainly of Americans of Italian and German descent.

Melrose Park suffered only one major catastrophe in its history, a tornado which killed 15 persons and caused half a million dollars worth

REFUSE IN RIVER.

If nobody else does so, I would like to bring to the attention of my neighbors along the north branch of the Chicago river in Albany and North Park the following fact:

The magnificent work which has been done by the city in putting a concrete bottom and concrete walls along the river is not being done so that garbage and other refuse may be washed away more easily when thrown in. It is being done so that the water may flow more easily and thereby be kept cleaner.

I hope people who live along the banks of this part of the river will realize that they are going to have to find some other way of disposing of old baby carriages, bedsprings, boxes, and so forth.

RIPARIAN.

WANTS A NEW PARK.

There is a vacant area of about 20 acres southwest of Addison street and Kedzie avenue and bounded on the other side by the Chicago and North Western railroad tracks. Some time ago I recall some agitation to have a park made out of this land. I know that the park district has a lot on its hands and that there may be a lot of difficulty we don't know about connected with obtaining this land for a park. But we have no large or well equipped parks in the immediate neighborhood, and since I have not heard much on this subject for more than a year I would like to know just what, if anything, is being done about it, and what the difficulties are.

MRS. S. S. J.

DANGEROUS CORNER.

Can't something be done about the intersection of Wrightwood and Pulaski avenues? It seems to me that some one is always having a crash or a narrow escape from an accident on this corner, since they opened Wrightwood avenue about a year ago. In rush hours the traffic is very heavy, and the buildings are so close up to the corner that it is almost impossible for a motorist to see what is coming from the other direction. Traffic lights, or at least stop signs, might help this dangerous situation.

ARRANGE PARADE IN CELEBRATION OF NEW VIADUCT

Marks Completion of Central Avenue Span.

Chairmen have been appointed for the public celebration being arranged by the west and northwest area councils of the Chicago Motor club to mark the completion on May 14 of the Central avenue viaduct over the tracks of the Milwaukee and St. Paul railroad between North and Grand avenues. They are Clare Bullen of the west side council and Walter Miller of the northwest side.

Preliminary plans announced by the committee include a motorcade of floats which will cover a route of several miles, including all of the principal business districts, north of the viaduct to Irving Park boulevard and between Cicero and Harlem avenues.

Foot Parade Also.

Their route will be from Hayes avenue east in North avenue across Austin boulevard to Central avenue. The combined marching units and floats will swing north across the viaduct and pass before a reviewing stand.

County highway engineers reported at the last meeting of the councils that all details of the viaduct will be complete by May 14. The councils formally opened two lanes of the bridge for traffic in October and early in January the other two lanes were opened.

Protection Is Sought.

A recent report to the West Area council indicated that the city of Chicago is willing to install street car loading platforms on North avenue from Narragansett to Austin boulevard, but the village of Oak Park would prefer some type of pedestrian protection instead of, or in addition to, loading platforms.

Joseph J. Butler, superintendent of streets for the city, said that he was willing to include the platforms in his 1941 construction program. Emile O. Bloche, president of the Chamber of Commerce of Oak Park, reported that his conference with officials of the village indicated they would prefer more pedestrian protection. Mr. Butler, C. A. Walls, commissioner of public works of Oak Park, and Kendrick Harger, district engineer for the state highway department, will have a conference on the problem.

ASSESSOR FINDS LITTLE CHANGE IN VALUE OF REALTY

Figures for 20 Townships Are Complete.

Real estate assessments for 1940 in 20 country townships in the north, northwest and western parts of Cook county decreased less than 1 per cent under the quadrennial assessment of 1939, it was announced last week by John S. Clark, county assessor.

The assessment figure in these areas amounts to $281,379,412. The new assessment is a revision of the 1939 quadrennial total, in which land and building values are established for taxing purposes for four years. Revisions are made each year on all properties which investigation shows to have altered in value.

Less Than in 1939.

The 1940 assessed building value in the 20 townships is $122,706 less than in 1939. Building values have declined in the longer settled townships of Evanston, New Trier, River Forest, Oak Park, and Proviso. Building values are increased in the more recently built up townships.

Following is a table of the building assessments by townships for 1939 and 1940 with comparative increases and decreases shown in $1,000 units only:

MELROSE PARK PLANS TO ANNEX G-M PLANT SITE

Action Would Add 500 Acres to Village.

of property damage on March 20, 1930.

It was incorporated as a village in August, 1882, and an order was issued by the Cook County court that an election be held at the chapel on the southeast corner of 19th avenue and 1st street on July 29, 1882. The village used the name of Melrose until the beginning of the next year, when a petition signed by 100 voters was accepted and it became Melrose Park.

Once Was Covington.

Previous to 1882 the settlement was known as Covington. In those days only the fact that Uncle Sam had a postoffice there put it on the map. The first policeman in the village, Tom Boddy, also was a lamplighter.

By 1907 there was a uniformed police force of ten men in the village and a fire department of eleven. Another integral part of the village life was the Harmonie Singing society, whose president was Henry Wachtendorf.

"There are romantic memories of Melrose Park," says Mr. Guerine, "from the days of the lamplighters, the wooden sidewalks, and farm lands. We are in a transition period now between those days of quiet village life and a new era of prosperity, growth, and modernization."

Officials of Village.

Andrew H. Frenzel is the village president and George Bosco is police magistrate. The village clerk is Michael J. Laraia. Trustees are Joseph Darg, chairman of licenses, public lighting and buildings; Carl L. Dehlinger, chairman of finance; William J. Drevs, chairman of fire and water, sewers and drains; Harold E. Larsen, chairman of streets and alleys, highways and transportation; James T. Markett, chairman of police and health, and Frank Marsicano, chairman of sidewalks, parks, and assessments.

Church Party.

The Tabernacle society of St. Thomas Aquinas church, 5112 Washington boulevard, will hold a card party tomorrow evening in the school gymnasium. Mrs. Florence M. Wilkins is chairman.

The diagonally shaded area is to be annexed to Melrose Park. The area includes the new aviation engine plant to be operated by the Buick company.

Still His Own Boss

Distressed at being caught without a shave, but otherwise cheerful, John Kwarciak, one of the veteran rag pickers of Erie street, is shown setting out in quest of glass, paper, iron and tin ware, and rags. He has just sold one load to Robert Harris, a neighborhood junk dealer, for a few cents. Altho this brings him only about $20 a month, he says he is happier this way than he would be on relief.

Starting at the age of 4 playing catch with his father, Herb soon moved on to Kosciuszko park, where he learned the fundamentals of baseball and other sports under the guidance of John Maloskie, park supervisor.

He attended Lane Technical High school, where he pitched the school team to the city championship in 1940, accomplishing the unusual feat of pitching three no hit no run games.

He was also captain of the Lane and the Kosciuszko park basketball teams, the latter of which won the city park championship in 1940.

North Park College to Have Banquet

Four North Park college co-eds who are selling bids for the school's annual midwinter banquet are, left to right, Madge Corey, Sonia Berg, Patricia Meyer, and Jean Dennis. The banquet will be held Friday evening at the Chicago Towers club, with Dr. O. F. Ander, professor of history at Augustana college, as the speaker.

COMMUNITY FAIR TO RAISE FUNDS FOR COMMONS

Clubs Join to Sponsor Fete Tuesday.

For the twentieth year residents in the vicinity of Chicago Commons, 955 West Grand avenue, will throng to the settlement for their annual community fair. In years past the crowd has numbered 1,000 or more, and as many are expected to gather again at 7 o'clock Tuesday evening, according to Lea D. Taylor, head resident of the Commons.

The fair is sponsored by the house council, on which all senior and adult clubs are represented.

Food will form one of the biggest attractions, and one of the star items will be the rosettes, an Italian pastry delicacy, which members of the Nursery Mothers club have been making by the hundreds to serve with coffee in their booth in the kindergarden room. One of the purchases made with fair profits last year was an electric refrigerator for the nursery room.

Mothers Combine Booths.

The seven mothers' clubs of the settlement are presenting a country store coöperative by combining all their booths, both food and other merchandise, in the large neighborhood parlor on the first floor. The Chicago Commons Mothers club, the Polish Mothers' club, the Young Italian Mothers' club, the Commons International Womans' club, the Jolly Mothers' club, and the Tuesday morning club are coöperating. Marjorie Hensel, director of the nursery, and Dorothy Cheney, director of the mothers clubs, are assisting with arrangements.

The girls' clubs will have a different kind of food for sale, and will also present entertainment features. A melodrama will be given by the Wellsites, a fashion show by the Hi-Hi-Steppers, and a puppet show by the Peppy Gals. Fortunes will be told by two clubs. The Rug Cutters will sell grab-bag selections, and the Commons Co-ed club will take tickets at the main entrance. Lucille Brotsman and Mabel Cates, in charge of girls work at the settlement are assisting with the plans.

Dance on Program.

The largest single event will be the dance held in the auditorium from 8 o'clock until midnight. It will be conducted by the Grand Jesters, a senior boys club. Other activities operated by the boys clubs include roller skating to music, games of skill, basketball games, a chamber of horrors, and a photography shop.

TEA WILL OPEN ANNIVERSARY OF POLISH SOCIETY

Arts Club Will Hold a Reception Today.

Celebration of the 15th anniversary of the Polish Arts Club of Chicago will start this afternoon with a reception and tea in the Fine Arts building, 410 South Michigan avenue. From March 16 to 29 there will be a painting exhibition in the Milwaukee Avenue National bank building, 1200 North Ashland avenue.

Today's reception will include a concert by Thaddeus Kozuch, pianist, and the Sarmatia Singing society, conducted by Zdislaw Skubikowski. W. W. Wieczorek, 1174 Milwaukee avenue, is chairman of the committee arranging the reception and other anniversary events.

Besides the exhibition there will be a recital at Kimball hall on March 9 by Jeannette Pytlowany, pianist, and Raymond Neva, violinist, and a dramatic presentation of "He and She," by Rachel Crothers, on March 22.

Still Is President.

The club was organized in February, 1926, by Thaddeus Slesinski, who is still president. At first it had 15 members, now it has about 250 from all parts of the city. It is affiliated with the American Association of Polish Arts clubs, of which its vice president, John C. Hajduk, is president. Mrs. Emily Pawlowski, is secretary, and Walter Pytlowany, is treasurer.

Proposes Trust Fund.

To mark this anniversary, Mr. Slesinski has proposed the establishment of a trust fund, called the "Polish Arts Foundation," to provide for the maintenance of a high standard of work by members of the club.

Other members of the anniversay committee are Mrs. Charles S. Dewey, wife of the congressman and former United States minister to Poland; Mrs. Paul Fox Jr., John Hajduk, Miss Julia Hajduk, Mrs. Stephanie Kwiatkowski, Miss Adele Lagodzinski, Anthony Milewicz, Mrs. B. J. Mix, Anthony Orzelski, Miss Jane Palczynski, Mr. and Mrs. S. R. Pawlowski ,Miss Adele Radecki, Mrs. Victor Schlaeger, Thaddeus Slesinski, Miss Melania Sokolowski, Myron E. Steczynski, Miss Pearl Suchomski, Mrs. Olympia Warczewski, Mrs. J. B. Zielinski, and Casimir Ziolkowski.

Her Mother Heads Benefit Party

Young Barbara Templeman's mother, Mrs. William Templeman, 6634 North Trumbull avenue, is interested in the St. Mary of Providence institute dessert bridge party to be held at 1 o'clock Thursday in the institute, 4242 North Austin avenue. Proceeds will benefit the crippled children's home there. Mrs. James McDonnough, 3535 North Armitage avenue, is co-chairman with Mrs. Templeman of the card party.

Off the Trail

John Shaffer, 4116 North Oakley avenue, has just been reëlected president of Lane Technical High school's Spur and Saddle club. Frank Orciaga was named secretary. The vice president, Joe Randazzo, 3942 Damen avenue, and the treasurer, Robert Bryza, 2035 Wabansia avenue, were reëlected. The club, formed five years ago, is one of the few in Chicago composed entirely of men. Its 55 members ride each Thursday afternoon from the Elston stables.

Frank M. Jones, owner and riding master of Valley Green stables on East River road north of Des Plaines, has announced that he has started a string of polo ponies which will be available to those wishing to learn that fast reviving sport.

One riding outfit for whom polo never went out of style is the Schurz Saddle and Spurs club, which maintained its activity in the sport thruout the times when it had died out in many other quarters.

Othel Kirby, Evanston bus driver, has told friends of his intention to install livery saddle horses in the barn at East River road and Golf road which has lain idle since the River ranch outfit moved out several weeks ago. This will be the fifth stable along the upper Des Plaines trail.

Your Neighbor's Trip

Miss Olga Madsen, 3942 North Kildare avenue, and her two brothers, William and Walter, who live with her, have just completed a trip thru Mexico and are now in San Antonio, Tex., where they will remain until March. William is a painter. The three have been to Florida in previous years, but this is their first trip to the southwest.

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred C. Cook, 4812 North Linder avenue, have gone to Haines City, Fla., to shop around for a permanent home. Mr. Cook is a retired gas company official, while his wife is past president of the Irving Park sorosis. They will return about the middle of March and, if they have located a home, will go down next fall to live permanently except for a part of the summer.

NORWOOD PARK P.-T. A. TO NOTE 30TH BIRTHDAY

Other Units Will Mark Founders' Day.

While the majority of northwest side parent-teacher groups meeting this week have arranged observances of the founding of the national parent-teacher movement, the Norwood Park association also has its own 30th anniversary to celebrate.

Mrs. G. L. Stadtler.

Meeting at 1:15 o'clock Tuesday in the school auditorium at 5900 Nina avenue, the group will see a three act play, written by four members—Mrs. G. L. Stadtler, president; Mrs. Peter I. Bukowski; a past president, Mrs. James Ellis, program chairman, and Mrs. E. W. Droege.

The play depicts the history of the association thru the years 1911 to 1941 and points out that this is the oldest local in the Northwest council.

Hear W-G-N Artists.

One of the most important nonanniversary programs of the week is being arranged by the Portage Park Parent-Teacher association. Radio personalities from W-G-N will take part in the variety show which this group is sponsoring at 8 o'clock on Thursday and Friday evenings in the school auditorium, 5330 Berteau avenue.

Led by Bill Anson in the rôle of master of ceremonies, the artists will include Alice Blue, Kismet, Peggy Knudsen and William Bob Smith.

Other northwest elementary school associations are featuring Founders' day observances. Brief items on their programs are listed below.

Bridge—Meeting at 1:30 Tuesday, a candlelighting ceremony and the cutting of a birthday cake will be featured.

Burbank—Eight past presidents, Mrs. Estelle Hudson, Mrs. Alma Ferrier, Mrs. Elizabeth Erickson, Mrs. Melinda McKelvey, Mrs. Stella Karnuth, Mrs. Ella Sherwin, Mrs. Anne Boeck, and Mrs. Lucille Holt will be guests at the 1:15 o'clock meeting Thursday.

Lyon—A skit and a "Man on the Street" program will be included in the Founders' day program starting at 1:30 Tuesday afternoon.

Mayfair—Costumed in old fashioned dresses, a few members will take their audience to the days of "way back when" in national parent-teacher work, at the 1:15 o'clock meeting Tuesday.

Moos—The Founders' day program will also feature a Lincoln and Washington birthday entertainment presented by seventh grade children, at the meeting held at 1:15 o'clock Thursday.

Murphy—This group will celebrate Founders' day and its own tenth anniversary at 1:15 o'clock Tuesday. Mrs. G. G. Barker, member of the north side council, will talk on the organization and history of the P.-T. A.

In Gay Nineties Tableaux

Their vehicle belies the title, but Miss Evelyn Painter, 4257 North Spaulding avenue, and Kai Henriksen, 2623 North Richmond street, are depicting that well known song of the gay nineties, "On a Bicycle Built for Two." Theirs is one of the more than 30 tableaux which will form "My Book of Memory," an entertainment to be presented at 8 o'clock Friday and Saturday evenings in the Irving Park Presbyterian church community building, Keeler and Belle Plaine avenues, under the sponsorship of the Philathea guild. More than 100 men, women, and children will take part in the pageant which is being directed by Sharlot Grey. Proceeds will be devoted to philanthropic projects of the guild. Mrs. Roger W. Hubbard is chairman of the entertainment.

APPEALS PLACE 9 DRAFTEES IN DEFERRED CLASS

Northwest Siders Win Before Boards.

Deferred draft classifications were won by nine northwest side young men during the week ending last Tuesday, according to reports from the eight selective service appeal boards in Cook county.

For the county as a whole, of 90 cases disposed of in the week, 21 resulted in the outright granting of appeals, 17 were denied, and 52 cases were dismissed when the review officials were informed that local draft boards had previously granted reclassifications.

Since selective service began the appeals boards had disposed of 398 cases up to and including last Tuesday.

Dependency Is Plea.

Of the nine northwest siders, four won outright appeals on grounds of dependency, and the other five obtained deferment thru reclassification while they were waiting for their appeals to be reached.

The four whose appeals were granted, and the dependents each listed, were: Stanley Mrowzynski, 1352 North Ashland avenue, wife; Peter Bochonok, 4500 Thomas street, wife; Sybren Nydam, 1232 North Lawndale avenue, wife, and Bohdan Hlady, 2141 Potomac avenue, mother, two sisters, and brother.

Frederick Mikkelsen, 3526 Le Moyne avenue, a manufacturer of chemical gas analyzers used in aviation, was one of those who won reclassification by their local boards. Mikkelsen claimed occupational deferment.

Four Are Reclassified.

The others, who were reclassified principally because of dependents, were: Joseph Saliture, 1012 North Mozart street; Ralph Ben Schuman, 2552 Hirsch street; Joseph J. Fagan, 2030 West North avenue, and Arthur Ralph Gilbertson, 1453 Wolfram street.

The others whose appeals were denied, and the grounds on which they sought deferred classifications were:

Joseph Burdeen, 3336 Evergreen avenue, dependency of parents.

Nick Arnieri, 819 North California avenue, dependency of mother and three sisters.

Bride in March

Miss Evelyn Reichardt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis T. Reichardt, 3809 North Kimball avenue, will become the bride of Walter H. Vellguth, son of Mr. and Mrs. Hugo Vellguth, 4838 North Lowell avenue, on Saturday, March 8. The Rev. R. R. Fillbrandt will perform the 5:30 o'clock candlelight ceremony in the Gethsemane Evangelical church, Belle Plaine and Monticello avenues. The newlyweds will take a two months' trip thru Florida and California and return to reside in Irving Park.

throw rubbish on the ground.

The problem of garbage has by no means disappeared. Neighbors still forget. "Treasure hunters" still dump the contents out into the alley for examination, and leave them there. Cans are still stolen. But things are certainly much improved. One day the ward superintendent stopped in to see Miss Towne.

"Well," he said, "I see that you people are really doing something in this neighborhood. I came in to find out what we can do to help."

She told him that they could collect the garbage twice a week, and since that time William Knourek, the ward superintendent, has coöperated fully.

This year the neighbors are learning they can do something about housing. Club members are going from house to house, discovering where there is only one stairway, or where the plumbing is bad or the porches and stairs rickety.

Several tragedies in the immediate neighborhood have awakened the neighbors to these dangers. An aged man, a woman and two children were burned to death, and a mother blinded for life, in fires where families were trapped when the only stairway in the building was blocked by flames.

Now the neighbors are trying to make their homes safer. They even put on a play, showing how a family is trapped by fire when there is only one stair. They presented it before a WPA tour group a week or so ago. A few days later Miss Towne received a post card signed "U. S. A. Citizen," reporting a housing violation and containing a plaintive wish that there was "something like your work in other neighborhoods."

400 Cadets in Uniform.

Among the 600 studio guests there will be more than 400 R. O. T. C. cadets in uniform. Of these some 200 will be Chicago R. O. T. C. cadets who have received Tribune awards—gold, silver, and bronze medals—for excellence in military training during the last semester. The guests will come from nearly 70 institutions in Chicagoland that have R. O. T. C. units or other courses in military training.

The Chicago cadets will represent the units of 27 public high schools, St. Mel's High school and the Morgan Park Military academy. From Cook county outside of Chicago will come other delegations, representing Evanston Township High school, the Glenwood Manual Training school, and Northwestern university's R. O. T. C. unit.

Military Leaders Invited.

Besides visitors from Gary, Aurora, Waukegan, and Joliet there will be groups from many universities, colleges, and academies thruout Illinois, Wisconsin, Indiana, Michigan, Iowa, and Missouri.

Johnson, and Col. W. F. Morrison, professor of military science and tactics in the public schools. Col. McCormick and these guests are to speak briefly after the broadcast.

Prior to the broadcast visitors from distant points will make a tour of THE TRIBUNE, starting at 6:45 p. m. At 7:30 the visitors will assemble in the main studio to view the sound pictures, "Trees to Tribunes" and the new Tribune sports film, "The All American Way."

Philip Maxwell of The Tribune editorial staff, who has made many of the R. O. T. C. awards, will be in charge of the program after the broadcast. William A. Bacher produces the Theater of the Air. Henry Weber is the musical director.

WIP to Be Mutual's New Station in Philadelphia

WIP, Philadelphia's most powerful independent radio station, becomes a full-time Mutual Broadcasting System affiliate starting Saturday, March 1. This new affiliation insures Philadelphia listeners a chance to hear the complete, increasingly popular program service of the Mutual network.

Voice of Listener

Many thousands of congratulatory letters are pouring in to W-G-N and the Mutual network offices since listeners were invited to express their feelings about the Chicago Theater of the Air operettas which will conclude their present series on Saturday March 1 with the presentation of "Pagliacci" at the Civic Opera house. Overwhelmingly the letters from listeners insist that these productions be continued next fall.

Below are excerpts from letters received last week:

CHICAGO—I am a little girl 9 years old and I am listening to your program each Saturday night. I like it very much and I wish it continued.
LORRAINE MATUSCHEK.

CONEY ISLAND, N. Y.—I live at home with my aged mother and my income is very small, but sometimes that alone is a blessing if only it brings me such fine music and singing from W-G-N and causes me to stay home every Saturday night with a new thrill in store. I bless you and Henry Weber and Marion Claire and every one connected with these presentations and hope very much they will be continued in the autumn and for a long time to come.
IRWIN LANDES.

CHARLESTON, ILL.—I have enjoyed your operetta productions immensely and I am very desirous that they be continued. You are giving the public entertainment which promotes an appreciation of good music.
THOMAS GREGORY.

DAVENPORT, IA.—Thanks for many happy hours. I wonder if you realize what a blessed relief it is to be spared nerve shattering music.
DOROTHY LEWIS.

WEST BRIGHTON, N. Y.—We have enjoyed your Saturday operatic presentations and we hope for the unlimited continuation of this delightfully colorful program. Congratulations to Mr. Bacher, your musical conductor and your entire cast.
ANN and ALAN DEVITT.

CHICAGO—I sincerely hope your excellent program will continue on the air. For me it's one of the best and most worthwhile radio programs. The music couldn't be improved.
RUTH J. HIBLER.

OTTAWA, ILL.—We do hope you will continue this service next season. I happen to be teaching "Music Appreciation" in Ottawa High school and in this capacity we feel deeply appreciative of the many fine things your station has been and continues to do for good music.
JOHN L. HOFF.

Further expressions of opinion are invited.

Henny Youngman Guest on W-G-N Show of Week

Henny Youngman, radio comedian, will headline the Show of the Week over W-G-N and the Mutual network from 5:30 to 6 p. m. today. Youngman has gained a reputation for spouting off rapid fire, witty puns, sometimes to the accompaniment of a violin he always carries under his arm during a broadcast. Vincent Lopez's orchestra, Buddy Clark and Anne Berrett will handle the musical portion of the program.

1,518 SMITHS ASK FOR TICKETS TO SMITH PROGRAM

More than 1,518 Smiths of Chicago have requested tickets for the première of "Whispering Smith," new W-G-N program which will be heard the first time, Friday, Feb. 28. Last week W-G-N officials issued an invitation for the "Whispering Smith" première to all Smiths of Chicago. They have been responding ever since. Special invitations have been issued to Clayton F. Smith, president of the county board, and other notable Smiths.

Those who responded first will get tickets to the opening show. Others will be accommodated later.

"Whispering Smith," the new program, will be a special radio adaptation of Frank Spearman's novel of the same title. It will relate the adventures of a legendary character who protected the interests of the underdogs in the development of the west by the railroads. An expert marksman, a man feared by all his enemies, Smith received his nickname because whenever danger threatened, he lost his voice and could speak only in a whisper.

Blair Walliser will produce the "Whispering Smith" series, which will be heard every Friday from 7 to 7:30 p. m. [C. S. T.]. Pictures linked with the episodes of the series will be published in the graphic section of the CHICAGO SUNDAY TRIBUNE.

VARIETY TO MARK MELODY PAGEANT HOUR TOMORROW

Music to whistle, music to hum, music to remember will be aired on the Pageant of Melody over W-G-N and the Mutual network from 9 to 9:30 p. m. tomorrow. Presented under the direction of Henry Weber, the program will feature classical music by the W-G-N Concert orchestra, Kathryn Witwer, lyric soprano, and Attilio Baggiore, operatic tenor.

The orchestra will be heard in the first movement of the "Italian Symphony," by Mendelssohn; the second movement from "Eine Kleine Nachtmusik," by Mozart, and the "Du and Du Waltz," by Johann Strauss. Kathryn Witwer will be heard in the "Balatella from Pagliacci," by Leoncavallo.

'Hound of Baskervilles' in Final Episode Friday

With the detective work of Sherlock Holmes once more providing excitement and suspense, the tale of the "Hound of the Baskervilles" will be brought to a thrilling close on W-G-N on Friday. The dramatization, last in a series of six Baskervilles instalments, will be heard from 9:30 to 10 p. m.

WIP to Be Mutual's New Station in Philadelphia

WIP, Philadelphia's most powerful independent radio station, becomes a full-time Mutual Broadcasting System affiliate starting Saturday, March 1. This new affiliation insures Philadelphia listeners a chance to hear the complete, increasingly popular program service of the Mutual network.

Voice of Listener

Many thousands of congratulatory letters are pouring in to W-G-N and the Mutual network offices since listeners were invited to express their feelings about the Chicago Theater of the Air operettas which will conclude their present series on Saturday March 1 with the presentation of "Pagliacci" at the Civic Opera house. Overwhelmingly the letters from listeners insist that these productions be continued next fall.

Below are excerpts from letters received last week:

CHICAGO—I am a little girl 9 years old and I am listening to your program each Saturday night. I like it very much and I wish it continued.
LORRAINE MATUSCHEK.

CONEY ISLAND, N. Y.—I live at home with my aged mother and my income is very small, but sometimes that alone is a blessing if only it brings me such fine music and singing from W-G-N and causes me to stay home every Saturday night with a new thrill in store. I bless you and Henry Weber and Marion Claire and every one connected with these presentations and hope very much they will be continued in the autumn and for a long time to come. IRWIN LANDES.

CHARLESTON, ILL.—I have enjoyed your operetta productions immensely and I am very desirous that they be continued. You are giving the public entertainment which promotes an appreciation of good music.
THOMAS GREGORY.

DAVENPORT, IA.—Thanks for many happy hours. I wonder if you realize what a blessed relief it is to be spared nerve shattering music. DOROTHY LEWIS.

WEST BRIGHTON, N. Y.—We have enjoyed your Saturday operatic presentations and we hope for the unlimited continuation of this delightfully colorful program. Congratulations to Mr. Bacher, your musical conductor and your entire cast.
ANN and ALAN DEVITT.

CHICAGO—I sincerely hope your excellent program will continue on the air. For me it's one of the best and most worthwhile radio programs. The music couldn't be improved. RUTH J. HIBLER.

OTTAWA, ILL.—We do hope you will continue this service next season. I happen to be teaching "Music Appreciation" in Ottawa High school and in this capacity we feel deeply appreciative of the many fine things your station has been and continues to do for good music. JOHN L. HOFF.

Further expressions of opinion are invited.

Henny Youngman Guest on W-G-N Show of Week

Henny Youngman, radio comedian, will headline the Show of the Week over W-G-N and the Mutual network from 5:30 to 6 p. m. today. Youngman has gained a reputation for spouting off rapid fire, witty puns, sometimes to the accompaniment of a violin he always carries under his arm during a broadcast. Vincent Lopez's orchestra, Buddy Clark and Anne Berrett will handle the musical portion of the program.

1,518 SMITHS ASK FOR TICKETS TO SMITH PROGRAM

More than 1,518 Smiths of Chicago have requested tickets for the première of "Whispering Smith," new W-G-N program which will be heard the first time, Friday, Feb. 28. Last week W-G-N officials issued an invitation for the "Whispering Smith" première to all Smiths of Chicago. They have been responding ever since. Special invitations have been issued to Clayton F. Smith, president of the county board, and other notable Smiths.

Those who responded first will get tickets to the opening show. Others will be accommodated later.

"Whispering Smith," the new program, will be a special radio adaptation of Frank Spearman's novel of the same title. It will relate the adventures of a legendary character who protected the interests of the underdogs in the development of the west by the railroads. An expert marksman, a man feared by all his enemies, Smith received his nickname because whenever danger threatened, he lost his voice and could speak only in a whisper.

Blair Walliser will produce the "Whispering Smith" series, which will be heard every Friday from 7 to 7:30 p. m. [C. S. T.]. Pictures linked with the episodes of the series will be published in the graphic section of the CHICAGO SUNDAY TRIBUNE.

VARIETY TO MARK MELODY PAGEANT HOUR TOMORROW

Music to whistle, music to hum, music to remember will be aired on the Pageant of Melody over W-G-N and the Mutual network from 9 to 9:30 p. m. tomorrow. Presented under the direction of Henry Weber, the program will feature classical music by the W-G-N Concert orchestra, Kathryn Witwer, lyric soprano, and Attilio Baggiore, operatic tenor.

The orchestra will be heard in the first movement of the "Italian Symphony," by Mendelssohn; the second movement from "Eine Kleine Nachtmusik," by Mozart, and the "Du and Du Waltz," by Johann Strauss. Kathryn Witwer will be heard in the "Balatella from Pagliacci," by Leoncavallo.

'Hound of Baskervilles' in Final Episode Friday

With the detective work of Sherlock Holmes once more providing excitement and suspense, the tale of the "Hound of the Baskervilles" will be brought to a thrilling close on W-G-N on Friday. The dramatization, last in a series of six Baskervilles instalments, will be heard from 9:30 to 10 p. m.

SEES PLAY LOT YOUNGSTERS AS NATION'S HOPE

Boyish Sports Are Part of Defense, Says Peel.

So says blue eyed, Irish born Peter J. Peel, 20 West Jackson boulevard, the man who is in charge of the Chicago recreation commission committee to extend play spaces for the city's youngsters. Mr. Peel, for many years a national figure in the sports field and a world's record holder in cricket, believes that athletics should be considered one of the most important factors in the nation's defense.

He goes farther than that. "I think," he says slowly, "you might almost define democracy as the right to play on corner lots."

In sports, America has three weapons against totalitarianism, says Mr. Peel—baseball, the hockey stick, and football. "Also," he adds chuckling, "the pop bottle to throw at a bad umpire."

Clear Vacant Lots.

Mr. Peel's committee for the extension of play spaces has coöperated with district and local recreation groups in a campaign to clear rubbish from vacant lots so that they can be used as play spots, especially in neighborhoods where there are no parks and city playgrounds. More than 273 equipped play lots now exist in all parts of the city, but the campaign is not over.

"The defense program," the veteran athlete declares, "is waking us up as a nation to the deep truth that battles are won on the playing fields. O, we're sports conscious, it's true, but we've tended to let our interest focus on the experts, so that we turn out some champions and let the rest of the population become merely spectators."

And that is the wrong approach to sports, he adds. Part of the job, as he sees it, is to break down the "champion complex" that has sprung up in America. The solution is simple. Extend play space and therefore opportunity for everybody to take part in athletics, he says. Thus, America will become a nation of sports participants instead of spectators.

Need More Play Spots.

"It can't be said too often," Mr. Peel continues. "We need more play spaces, more sports, more opportunities for youngsters to gain the great benefits to health and character that athletics bring. Today's children are tomorrow's citizens; tomorrow's defenders of democracy.

"Extended play space—even tho thru simple mediums like neighborhood lots—spells greater opportunity for youngsters to learn Americanism and democracy on their very first testing ground.

"In a world like ours democracy does well to look far ahead. And it's not unlikely that the kids playing this very minute on some corner lot on the west, north, or south sides will one day be needed to fight for democracy."

Mr. Peel was twice president of the United States Football association, organizer and first president of the first state soccer organization in Illinois. He is donor of the challenge cup bearing his name, and a life member of the Peter J. Peel Challenge cup soccer competition, which now is in its 33d year.

DR. JOHN MOTT WILL SPEAK TONIGHT AT SUNDAY EVENING CLUB

Dr. John R. Mott, international missioner, will address the Sunday Evening club tonight in Orchestra hall on the topic "The Advantage of Trials." He will be introduced by John Nuveen, trustee of the club, who will preside in the absence of Clifford W. Barnes. Anthony L. Michel will read the scripture.

Dr. John R. Mott.

Dr. Mott retired from the Y. M. C. A. after 40 years of service as chairman of the international missionary council which brought him in contact with religious leaders the world over. He was the recipient of decorations from many foreign governments in recognition of his services to humanity and congress conferred upon him the Distinguished Service medal.

The music at the informal 7 o'clock meeting will be furnished by the Edgebrook singers, directed by Eva E. Wycoff, and the Bible talk will be given by Hudson H. Pittman, assistant to Mr. Barnes.

Isabella Daughters.

Members of Calumet circle, Daughters of Isabella, will meet at 1:30 o'clock Wednesday afternoon at 120 South Michigan avenue. Members of La Rabida circle of the organization will meet tomorrow evening at Orange temple, 68th and Green streets.

This Week in the Garden

Monday, Feb. 17.

Those who have a small greenhouse or hotbed can start seeds of vegetables, such as tomatoes, cabbage, cauliflower, and lettuce. The plants will have made a fine start long before hot weather comes.

City gardeners can use electricity to furnish heat for the hotbed, but suburbanites who can obtain fresh strawy manure may use it, in a fermented state.

Tuesday, Feb. 18.

It will soon be time to transplant or shift house plants. A good average soil consists of one-half garden loam, one-quarter sand, and one-quarter leafmold or rotted manure. Soil can usually be procured from the local plant grower, who will mix it to accommodate the requirements of individual plants.

Wednesday, Feb. 19.

Perennials in the garden may need to be divided; some may not have been satisfactory and should be replaced with others, and empty spots may need planting.

Screen the garage by using annual vines. Hide the telephone post by planting a pyramidal poplar in front of it. Use some of the low tree forms as a screen along the rear fence, but do not overplant on the small area.

Thursday, Feb. 20.

Pruning should be undertaken for some kinds of plants at this season. Many home gardeners prune all plants in spring. Prune to keep the plants in a vigorous condition and in such a manner that they retain their natural form, unless they are planted as a hedge.

Fruit trees should be pruned to keep the heads low and open. Early pruning should be done so the branches are kept growing out from the main trunk. Avoid formation of a crotch. A tree that is once brought into good bearing condition requires little pruning.

Friday, Feb. 21.

Watch for red spiders in house plants. Syringe the plants occasionally; keep humidors on the radiators; dust with sulphur on both the upper and lower sides of the foliage.

Bulbous plants, such as the hyacinth, narcissus, and tulip, should be kept growing until the foliage turns yellow. When this occurs lay the pots on their sides in a cool place and next fall plant in the garden.

Saturday, Feb. 22.

Shade in city gardens is frequently a problem. Here is a list of some plants that should do very well under such conditions: Shrubs: Five leaved aralia, Japanese kerria, privet, Japanese yew. Perennials: Bugle [ajuga reptans], plantain lily, moneywort, Japanese spurge, periwinkle, violas, lily of the valley, ferns. Vines: Hall's honeysuckle, Virginia creeper, Boston ivy, fleece vine, wild grape, and wisteria.

HOW ARCHITECT DESIGNS HOUSE FOR OWN USES

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

We present today an unusually fine example of the modern with a number of very forward looking features. It shows the many possibilities available today for better design and building, and while it is a larger house than we usually discuss in this department its points of beauty and interest are those which may be adroitly incorporated into homes of less size and cost.

It is the residence of Winston Elting, architect, of Lake Forest.

House Overlooks Ravine.

The plan was dictated largely by a peculiar and beautiful site.

On the south side of the house there is a deep ravine running east to Lake Michigan. Service, garage, entries, hall, and gallery face the north. All the principal rooms open to the southeast or the west, and by placing the building on the north property line, maximum space was reserved for gardens and lawns to the south between the house and the ravine.

As the architect says: "The plan was the principal thing and the elevations followed along."

[This is one of the most sensible trends of contemporary architecture.]

An effort was made to keep the house as low as possible to subjugate it to large elms, maples, and birches on the property, and natural brick and redwood was used on the exterior to blend the house with the landscape.

Screen Separates Rooms.

The plan is open and there is generous use of large glass window areas as well as glass block on the north side.

The house has nine rooms, three and one-half baths, two porches and two sun decks. These decks and porches afford close relation to the home interior and the out of doors.

Among the very interesting personal provisions of the plan, and one which is practical and charming in many homes, is the provision of a folding screen between living room and dining space to permit combination or separation of rooms as desired.

Again, the master bedroom is on the first floor, and is reached thru a gallery on the north side of the house. This secures for the bedroom a semi-isolation. Opening from this gallery there is also a combination room: An architect's work space and alternate guest room when occasion demands.

Glass Block on North.

The problem of north light and privacy for the gallery was handled with glass block. This same type of block was used to give light to garage, mud room, stairwell and pantry off garage. There is also glass block used on the north wall of the work room in order to borrow light from the gallery.

On the second floor there are three bedrooms and large bath and two sun decks. The west deck is for the children and the east deck for the parents. Solid railings have been installed to shield these spots from the wind.

The heating of the home is by a new method known as panel heating, which has been installed in the ceilings thruout the house. The system is entirely automatic, oil fired, with water temperature control and circulation provided by electrically controlled mixture of water from the boiler with the pump-recirculated flow thru the system.

ARMS PLANT TRADE BOOMS 3 TOWNS

ARMY BANDAGE APPEAL SPURS RED CROSS AIDS

3 Million Is Quota of Chicago Area.

South side Red Cross volunteers speeded up production of surgical dressings and war relief garments last week in an effort to help fill the largest three-month quota the Chicago chapter has taken on since the last world war.

The Red Cross has promised to supply the United States army with 3 million bandages by March 31. James B. Forgan, chairman of the Chicago chapter, also announced that the area's 25,000 workers are preparing a quota of 117,560 war relief garments, which are scheduled to be ready by May 31.

The 3 million surgical dressings are to be used as army "reserve stock," officials explained. They are part of the 20 million national quota which the Red Cross has undertaken to fill.

Seek a Surplus.

The war relief garment production program is designed to maintain a reservoir of needed supplies in the event that more civilians are affected by new military offensives in the European war, Mr. Forgan declared.

The 52 production units in the Chicago area have received supplies of gauze from the army. Additional units will start work on the dressings as soon as workers can be taught how to handle them.

Sixty-three south siders received service pins for 144 hours of volunteer bandage-making recently. They are among 273 Chicagoans who were rewarded.

U. of C. Flyers Unite to Cut Cost of Hobby

The University of Chicago Flying club was organized recently by 50 young men and women students in an effort to reduce the cost of airplane rentals after they have won private pilot's licenses. Thru coöperative bargaining members hope to rent a plane for about $4 an hour. The club also was founded to promote interest in aviation on the campus.

Many of the charter members are alumni of the school's C. A. A. flying course, which this month enters its fourth term at the Ford airport in Lansing. The airport has been leased for the training by the university. The club expects to obtain use of facilities and planes at the field for members who have finished the C. A. A. course.

Use English Model.

"In general the club is modeled after those at Oxford and Cambridge in England before the war," explains Reginald J. Stephenson, assistant professor of physics, assistant coördinator of the university's C. A. A. program, and co-faculty adviser of the club. Thornton Page, instructor in astrophysics and former pilot at Oxford university is the other adviser.

Dr. Stephenson said that several universities in the east have similar organizations but that this club is unique in that its membership is open to those who have never flown, in addition to licensed pilots.

Plan Air Meets.

Members of the C. A. A. staff will advise the club and offer help in further training. Elementary flying technique and ground work will be part of the club instruction program and special meetings, lectures and demonstrations will be held on the campus. It is planned also to hold air meets with fliers from other universities.

Under Chairman Charles Sainsbury, junior in the School of Business and C. A. A. graduate, a guiding council is being formed to draw up a constitution for the club's approval.

PLAN PATRIOTIC FETE SATURDAY AT MANN PARK

James R. Mann park will hold a Washington's birthday celebration Saturday evening in the park fieldhouse, 130th street and Carondolet avenue. The event, which will include presentation of colors, speeches, and entertainment, is sponsored by the park district, the American Legion, schools, churches, and newspapers of the community.

Five acts of dancing will be contributed by the Sylvester Smith school of dancing. St. Columba, St. Florian, Lebanon, Lutheran, Trinity, Lutheran, Greek, Methodist, and Four Square churches of the community will furnish choral, quartet, and novelty numbers.

BIG HOMECOMING IS ON PROGRAM OF ST. PATRICK'S

More than 1,500 parishioners and former members of St. Patrick's church, Des Plaines and Adams streets, are expected to attend the second annual homecoming card party and dance Saturday evening at the La Salle hotel.

Clarence A. Leary, 722 Clinton street, Oak Park, is general chairman of the arrangements committee, and the Rev. Thomas J. Hayes, pastor of the church, is honorary chairman.

Other heads of the homecoming committee include the Rev. Lawrence Kenney, Roy K. Bennish, Frank C. Spanknabell, and Louis J. Owens.

Mothers' Club to Sponsor Card Party Thursday Night

St. Thomas the Apostle Mothers' club is sponsoring a pre-Lenten card party Thursday in Tighe hall, 5467 Woodlawn avenue. Mrs. J. P. Gray, 857 East 64th street, is president and Mrs. M. E. Boyle, 1505 East 76th place, is general chairman.

U. of C. Flyers Form Club to Share Costs of Their Sport

START CLEARING WOODLAWN SITE FOR POSTOFFICE

Building Is Last Before Defense Works.

The wrecking of four buildings on the east side of Woodlawn avenue between 63d and 64th streets began last week to make way for the construction of a new $190,000 Jackson Park postoffice. It will be the last postoffice to be built in the United States until after the emergency defense program.

The new building, which will replace the present station at 6315 Langley avenue, will serve 119,431 persons in the Hyde Park and Woodlawn communities. The area is bounded by 55th street on the north, 71st street on the south, State street on the west, and the lake to 67th street, then Stony Island avenue to 71st street on the east.

14,000 Feet of Work Space.

The two-story structure, 119 feet by 108 feet, will be built of cream colored brick with a stone trim. The public lobby, 22 feet wide, will be adjoined on the south end by the superintendent's office and on the north end by the office of the financial section. The remainder of the first floor will be assigned to the 14,000 square feet of work space, which will be lighted by a large skylight, in addition to nine windows.

The usable second floor area will be taken up by the "swing room," relaxing quarters for workers. Postal storage rooms will be on the ground floor.

In 1938 Allotment.

The cost of the project will be covered by an allotment under the federal public buildings appropriations act of 1938. Howard Cheney, of Washington, D. C., is the architect and William R. Goss and company is general contractor for the work. James J. Gleason is superintendent of the Jackson Park station.

Part of the letter, which was dated Dec. 13, 1940, said, "All in America are helping so generously but personally I think it better she should not enter the war herself. An impartial umpire will be needed to help clear up the mess and make the peace later on."

8 SOUTH SIDERS WIN DEFERMENT IN ARMY DRAFT

Four Appeals Denied by Local Boards.

Eight south siders were successful in their appeals for deferred classifications under the selective service act, according to a survey of the cases disposed of during the week ending last Tuesday by the eight draft appeals boards in Cook county.

Only two appeals were actually granted by the appeals boards, the other six appellants having won reclassification by their local draft boards, which had the effect of rendering their appeals unnecessary.

George Wick, 7526 Langley avenue, was granted a deferred classification because of the dependency of his wife. Martin Kujala, 6437 Kimbark avenue, was given deferment because his wife and mother are dependent on him.

Win Reclassification.

Those who won reclassification from their local boards, and whose appeals were therefore dismissed were:

Francis Stoecker, 8115 Eberhardt avenue, dependency of mother; Earle J. Redmond, 6757 Evans avenue, dependency of wife and aunt; Hans Joachim Nord, 6026 Kenwood avenue, dependency of parents; Robert Kerr, 8137 Maryland avenue, occupational [chemical engineer]; Gerald Rogers Davis, 5748 Stony Island avenue, dependency of wife, and John Robert Sarnowski, 6150 Greenwood avenue, dependency of wife.

Four Appeals Denied.

The men whose appeals were denied, and the grounds on which they sought deferment were:

Samuel Street, 4235 Langley avenue, physical; Guy Krum, 5451 Ingleside avenue, partial dependency of parents in Braidwood, Ill.; Dean Vogelaar, 1456 East 71st street, occupational [assistant air line reservation superintendent], and John Kreton, 7110 Vernon avenue, dependency of parents.

Amateurs Cut $99,950 from Cost of Movie

BY PAUL HEALY.

At Grand Crossing park fieldhouse the Screenema club is producing a color movie on a budget of $50. This is approximately $99,950 less than the cost of any self-respecting technicolor film in Hollywood.

"Belles and Bulls of 1890," as the film is tentatively titled, is a musical comedy in which the club's 15 members play all the parts. The club is making its own phonograph recordings of music, singing and dialog which will be synchronized with the film. Members of the cast als collaborate in writing the original script and making all necessary costumes and props.

The club has made two other pictures since it was organized a year ago. Led by Irving Wolf, 6830 Ridgeland avenue, three couples banded together in order to reduce the cost of production. Their purpose was to make movies as a hobby.

Derivation of Name.

After several months six outsiders were admitted to the amateur company, selected because of their dramatic ability, musical background, or ingenuity. They adopted the name Screenema club [screen-cinema] and received permission to do their exhibiting and indoor shooting in Grand Crossing park fieldhouse.

The club hopes to develop until an expensive camera and actual sound equipment are added. Then the members intend to do something ambitious. Mr. Wolf, who supplies the technical backbone for the company, does all the photography and cutting and most of the actual direction. Charles Abrams, 1935 East 71st street, former stock company actor, rehearses the cast and helps with the direction.

The first effort was called "Love Thy Neighbor," a title which Paramount used for its Jack Benny-Fred Allen opus six months later. The second picture was "Doctor Axe," a satire on horror plots.

Use Real Wedding.

"Dr. Axe," explains Mr. Wolf, "went around cutting out the gizzards of pretty girls. It was not too horrible, tho—we showed his operating only in silhouette. In this picture, incidentally, we used scenes from the real wedding of our feminine lead, Mrs. Ruth Tobe."

In making "Doctor Axe," he said, the company went "on location," and many scenes were shot in Jackson park before hundreds of curious south siders.

"Doctor Axe," which ran 60 minutes, was the first feature-length picture. The club uses a 16 millimeter camera and shows its movies on a three by four foot screen.

Wastes Little Film.

Mr. Wolf has learned to be economical in other ways. For example, he plans his "takes" so exactly that he never throws away more than a few feet of film for an entire four reel picture.

One thing that has been a pleasant surprise to the club's director-producer-photographer is the acting of the members. Only one, Mr. Abrams, had had Thespian experience and it was feared that the players would be embarrassed once the camera was trained on them. Now Mr. Wolf is happy to report that they are no more self-conscious than $5,000 a week Hollywood stars. In fact, Albert Weiner, 1935 East 71st street, has proved to be a "natural born comedian"—whether he's catching pies with his face or playing a fiendish Doctor Axe.

All members are under 42 years old. They are Mr. and Mrs. Wolf, Mr. and Mrs. Weiner, Mr. and Mrs. Abrams, Mr. and Mrs. Sam Tobe, 1961 East 61st street; Mrs. and Mrs. William Ryzow, 2307 East 69th street; Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Strauss, 6842 East End avenue; Mr. and Mrs. Milton Riskind, 7314 Jeffery avenue, and Miss Sylvia Sterling, 6828 Ridgeland avenue.

Catholic Women.

Lillian Herstein, director of lectures for the Chicago junior colleges, will address the South Side Catholic Woman's club Thursday afternoon at the Southmoor hotel. Mrs. Peter J. Needham, president, will extend a greeting to members who have joined the club during the last year.

WORKER DELUGE TAXES CAPACITY OF HOMES, ROAD

Trailers Help Meet House Problem.

BY WARD WALKER.

Will county's $53,000,000 bonanza, the Wilmington munitions works, already has caused community headaches in the neighboring towns, a survey revealed yesterday. Problems caused by the boom threaten to become acute during the next 60 days when the present temporary working force of 6,400 men is to be tripled.

Housing for workers is the principal problem, according to civic leaders in the communities, but others, such as traffic, police regulation, sanitation, and lack of business facilities, have also appeared.

The new munitions works, on which construction is just getting under way, will consist of an explosives factory with an estimated annual capacity of 144 million pounds, and a shell loading factory. These factories, known as the Kankakee Ordnance works and the Elwood plant, are being built on 65 square miles of farm land on both sides of alternate U. S. highway 66, about 19 miles south of Joliet. The Kankakee river borders the area on the west side, the village of Elwood on the north, and the town of Wilmington is about three miles south of the southern boundary.

Too Much Money—Too Sudden!

"Too much money, too many people, too sudden," residents of Joliet, Wilmington, and Elwood agreed, sums up the reasons for their present difficulties.

Last September the communities were resting with the dignity of towns more than 100 years old. Many farmers of the district had inherited their land from the original homesteaders.

Within three months the government had purchased the land for the munitions works and yesterday the area was dotted with work crews laying railroad track, pouring foundations, and erecting the framework of small groups of buildings.

Nearly 300 farmers were displaced, of whom some 130 are still in the area. They have until March 1 to vacate the premises. Their homes, for the most part, are being demolished.

Army officials estimated that within 60 days 6,000 men will be at work on the Elwood plant and 12,000 on the Kankakee plant. When the projects are finished sometime this year 5,000 workers—half of them women—will work in former and 3,000 men in the latter.

Tap Chicago Labor Pools.

Altho most of the workers on the project to date have been taken from Will and Grundy counties, the supply of men is limited and labor pools in Chicago must be tapped. Skilled workmen from all over the country also have been called to the job.

Housing conditions in the neighborhood of the project have been bad for the last five years, according to real estate men. There has been little building, few homes were available, and rents were high.

The flood of workers has exhausted the limited supply, rents have climbed still higher, and an increased demand is in prospect as the project continues. Adding to the difficulty is the fact that all of the construction workers will be thru in less than a year.

For this reason civic leaders have warned against extensive building programs, protesting that "ghost towns" would inevitably result. So far there has been no estimate of permanent needs, altho groups in each community are studying the problem.

Communities Face Big Job.

The delicate task of providing adequate permanent facilities, of avoiding over expansion, and of caring for

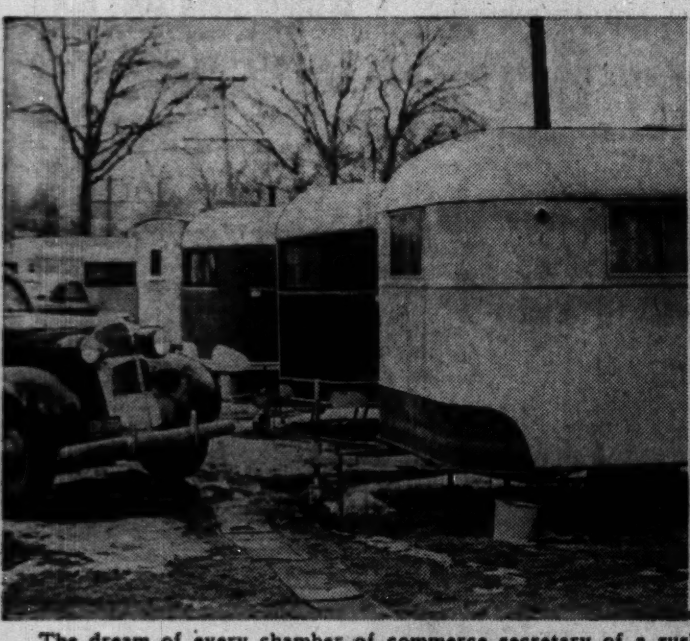
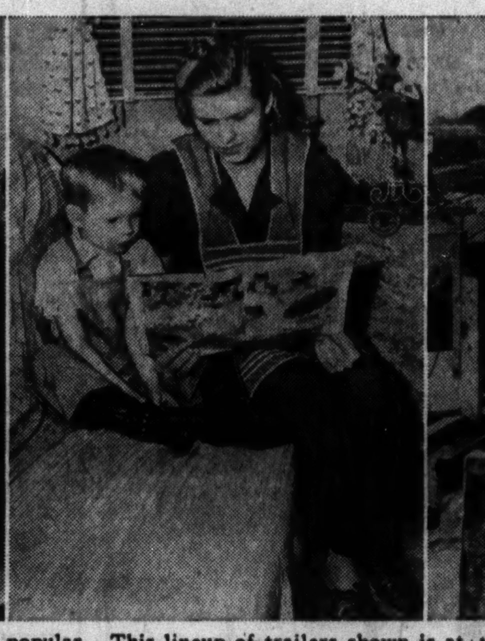
Will County Towns Struggle with the Problems of Defense Millions and Where to Put Thousands of Workers





The dream of every chamber of commerce secretary of a rush of money and people is causing concern for residents of Will county, where the government is constructing a huge munitions plant. There is not enough housing for all the workers on plant construction at Elwood and Wilmington so trailers are popular. This lineup of trailers shown is at Wilmington. Mrs. Frank H. Maass keeps the "porch" of her trailer clean while Mrs. James H. Mertz keeps the home fires burning in her trailer by reading the funnies to her son, George, 4 years old. Much of the construction at the T. N. T. plant will be underground and of concrete. These crews are rushing the building of the inert storage area. Some of the townspeople are wondering what is going to happen after the "emergency" (the national—not the local one)—is over, but they have been assured that the huge plants will be used for purposes of peace after the defense era has passed. Merchants seeking places to start businesses are unable to find them and must build their own. [TRIBUNE Photos.]

Voice of the South Side

Readers of the Metropolitan Section are invited to contribute to this column, on matters of neighborhood interest. Readers should confine themselves to 200 or 300 words. Full names and addresses must be given. No manuscripts will be returned. Address Voice of the South Side, The Tribune.

CONSERVERS OF BEAUTY.

The word for city lover is supposed to be "philopolist," and that is what many of the south side artists are. They prefer to paint the city scenes rather than do pastels about the beauties of nature in the country.

If we look over the different city paintings we see that the best artistic possibilities lie not with the depicters of the drab and dull but with those who pick out the better views of the city as their subject. Not gas stations, railroad sidings, or gas tanks are their subjects, but the squares, the fountains, the churches, the libraries, and the universities.

It is well for us to encourage city painters, for there is no permanence about the sights they draw. All the city will change and the only artistic aspect of it will be on canvas. Let us pay more attention to these artists. G. G.

DIRTY STREET SIGNS.

It is almost impossible for any one but a resident of the neighborhood to find his way to a specific address after dark in parts of the south shore community. I am speaking of the streets crossing 66th, 67th, and 68th streets just east and west of Stony Island avenue. The names of the streets are so high that they are hard to see from an auto window, and when you can see them they are so dirty that they can't be read in the darkness. Suggestions for the signs: [1] Clean them, [2] light them, or [3] lower them. E. C. K.

SHORT PARKING PROBLEM.

I wish the city council or the city engineers would work out a parking plan for some of our congested business districts on the south side, such as East 63d street and certain streets in South Chicago. I don't feel like walking four blocks just to make a short business call and I don't want to pay for having to park my car for 10 minutes either. Maybe parking meters are the answer. Let's do something about it, anyway. B. L. S.

DELUGE OF ARMS BUSINESS GIVES 3 TOWNS HEADACHE

But Will County Makes Best of Bonanza.

the temporary workers is the primary concern of each community.

In Joliet [pop. 42,365], according to John B. Anderson, attorney and real estate dealer, a five room house that rented for $35 a month last year would now command a minimum of $50 if one were available.

"There is a very great shortage of homes," he added, "despite the fact that there is more building under way in Joliet now than during all of the last 10 years. Even building now going on and planned won't be enough, however."

C. J. Kellem, executive secretary of the Joliet Association of Commerce, said that many of the workers now commute from points as far as 80 miles away and this has complicated the survey of housing needs, both immediate and future.

"Our housing committee is wrestling with the problem," Kellem said, "and we estimate that Joliet will gain about 400 families when the plants are put into operation—but frankly the figure is just a guess."

Traffic Problem Complicated.

The commuting has created a traffic problem since alternate U. S. high way 66 is the only thorofare leading to the factory sites. Thruout the day and night there is a continuous stream of heavy trucks and cars over the road, which is now patroled by the state highway police.

Rooming houses are crowded in each town and the lowest rents are at the flat rate of $1 a day.

Left more or less to their own devices, the temporary workers have resorted in many instances to trailer camps, altho the communities have frowned on their growth because of insanitary conditions. These trailer camps are found along the highway and surrounding the towns.

George Bryan manages the Five Oaks trailer camp on the outskirts of Wilmington [pop. 3,000] where 28 trailers are parked. Most of these are owned by the occupants who pay $8 a month for the parking privilege.

However, Bryan rents trailers for from $30 to $35 a month. These will accommodate four persons and the rental includes gas, light, water, and sanitary privileges. Under the influence of a balmy day, Bryan's camp was a sea of mud.

Opinions on Trailers Vary.

"This isn't so bad," said Mrs. Opal Mertz, whose husband is a welder. "I like living in a trailer fine and Georgie [her 4 year old son] is sure happy. Mud? Say, every trailer camp has mud in the spring!"

Her opinion wasn't shared by Mrs. Paul Williams, whose husband is an engineer. She has been living in the camp for five weeks.

"I just don't like them," she said. "It's what I call just existing inside four walls."

The population of Wilmington was about 2,200 before the boom began. Since construction started every vacant room has been filled, two new restaurants and a new billiard parlor have opened, and the theater and the two taverns are doing a land office business.

"I've tripled the police force," said Mayor A. P. Oswald. "That is, I've added two men. We're getting them uniforms and they'll be able to handle the situation nicely."

He said he had received complaints about immoral houses but had not found any.

"There may be a few out in the county, but I doubt it," the mayor added. Several citizens, however, said the night life tempo has increased greatly and wouldn't measure up to a high moral standard.

All Available Stores Rented.

Miss Alice Carroll, employed in the Felix Keeley real estate agency, said every available store in Wilmington has been rented. Rentals have climbed from 50 to 75 per cent in the business district, she estimated.

"Nearly every day men from Chicago come down here looking for places in which to open hamburger stands, restaurants, and taverns," she continued. "Some of them said they are going to build, but prices of lots have gone up, too."

Mayor Oswald said the money and the workers are piling up "pretty fast" but forecasts Wilmington will be able to handle her share, if given time.

An equally optimistic view was taken by the Rev. Harry E. Porter, of the Elwood Presbyterian church, which has 60 families in its congregation.

"There's no doubt the first effect of all this will be detrimental," the Rev. Porter said, "but the standards of the community and the church will not suffer in the long run."

Altho owned by the government, the plants will be operated on a cost plus fixed fee basis by two eastern firms—E. I. du Pont de Nemours and Sanderson and Porter company, New York.

On the basis of 144 million pounds of explosives per year, the du Pont company would show a profit of approximately $708,000 for supervising the manufacture. Sanderson and Porter, according to the contract, will receive $660,000 a year.

Will Be Bride

Joseph Buckley Aamodt, 8243 Chappel avenue, has announced the engagement of his daughter, Marie Elaine, to Raymond J. Duffy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Patrick Duffy of 2038 East 73d street. Miss Aamodt is a graduate of the National College of Education.

YOUNG TEACHER STUDENTS TO AID AT SETTLEMENT

Will Supplant WPA for Hyde Park Club.

A scientific student volunteer relationship between the Chicago Teachers' college and the Hyde Park Neighborhood club, a settlement house, was worked out last week in an effort to provide future Chicago teachers with a better understanding of boys and girls. Beginning this week, 52 students at the college will spend at least one period a week in actual supervision of children's activities at the club.

The plan is unique, according to J. G. Guinessy, director of the club. The college will see that each volunteer is fitted for a certain department of the club's program. Students will be examined by the faculty and judged on their interests, capabilities and background. Then, at regular intervals in their work at the club, the student volunteers will be obliged to keep careful records of their experiences.

Guidance Without Force.

"Our purpose," explained Mr. Guinessy, "is to teach students how to instruct and guide children without compulsion. We expect this to be of great importance to them when they ultimately go into the classroom, where rule usually is by force."

Of necessity, this will mean the eventual elimination of WPA recreational leaders and WPA art project workers and of all teachers and student workers other than those sent from the Chicago Teachers' college. The new plan, Mr. Guinessy pointed out, should be of more value both to the workers and the club. Only the club's current salaried staff consisting of the director, three boys' workers and two girls' workers will be retained.

Students at the college will be assigned to the same department at the club in which they are specializing in school. Club departments include drama, gymnasium, arts and crafts, music, dancing, home economics, social activities, language classes, photograhy, and woodshop.

Seminar on Problems.

The plan, as worked out by Mr. Guinessy, Dr. John Bartky, president of the college, and Jules Karlin, head of social studies at the college, calls for a biweekly seminar in which problems will be discussed. Participating in the seminars will be the club staff, the college faculty members, and volunteer student workers.

About 1,000 boys and girls, 600 of them under 15 years old, are members of the club. They engage in a schedule of activities that operates five days a week, with Saturday reserved for special events. The volunteer student workers will spend their work periods between 3 and 6 o'clock in the afternoon and 7 and 10 o'clock in the evening any week day.

W-G-N TO GIVE R.O.T.C. PARTY ON WASHINGTON DAY

Cadets, Officers to See 'My Maryland.'

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

The second annual Washington's birthday party, to be given in tribute to the R. O. T. C. by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, will be held in W-G-N's main studio next Saturday evening, Feb. 22, in connection with the broadcast of the operetta, "My Maryland" on the Chicago Theater of the Air.

"My Maryland," with Marion Claire as the star, and Walter Cassel, baritone, will be broadcast from 9 to 10 o'clock over the coast to coast network of the Mutual Broadcasting system. The birthday party, however, will start at 7:30 p. m. and will continue for a half hour after the broadcast.

R. O. T. C. cadets and officers, educational and military leaders thruout the Chicagoland area, will be guests at this party with Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE TRIBUNE, as the host.

400 Cadets in Uniform.

Among the 600 studio guests there will be more than 400 R. O. T. C. cadets in uniform. Of these some 200 will be Chicago R. O. T. C. cadets who have received Tribune awards—gold, silver, and bronze medals—for excellence in military training during the last semester. The guests will come from nearly 70 institutions in Chicagoland that have R. O. T. C. units or other courses in military training.

The Chicago cadets will represent the units of 27 public high schools, St. Mel's High school and the Morgan Park Military academy. From Cook county outside of Chicago will come other delegations, representing Evanston Township High school, the Glenwood Manual Training school, and Northwestern university's R. O. T. C. unit.

Military Leaders Invited.

Besides visitors from Gary, Aurora, Waukegan, and Joliet there will be groups from many universities, colleges, and academies thruout Illinois, Wisconsin, Indiana, Michigan, Iowa, and Missouri.

Special guests are to include Brig. Gen. Charles H. Bonesteel, commanding general of the 6th corps area; Col. John T. Rhett, representing the R. O. T. C. in the corps area; James B. McCahey, president Chicago board of education; Maj. Frank L. Beals, assistant superintendent of Chicago schools in charge of military training, who will represent Superintendent of Schools William H. Johnson, and Col. W. F. Morrison, professor of military science and tactics in the public schools. Col. McCormick and these guests are to speak briefly after the broadcast.

Prior to the broadcast visitors from distant points will make a tour of THE TRIBUNE, starting at 6:45 p. m. At 7:30 the visitors will assemble in the main studio to view the sound pictures, "Trees to Tribunes" and the new Tribune sports film, "The All American Way."

Philip Maxwell of The Tribune editorial staff, who has made many of the R. O. T. C. awards, will be in charge of the program after the broadcast. William A. Bacher produces the Theater of the Air. Henry Weber is the musical director.

COMMUNITY HIGH OF BLUE ISLAND NEXT ON CITIZENS' SHOW

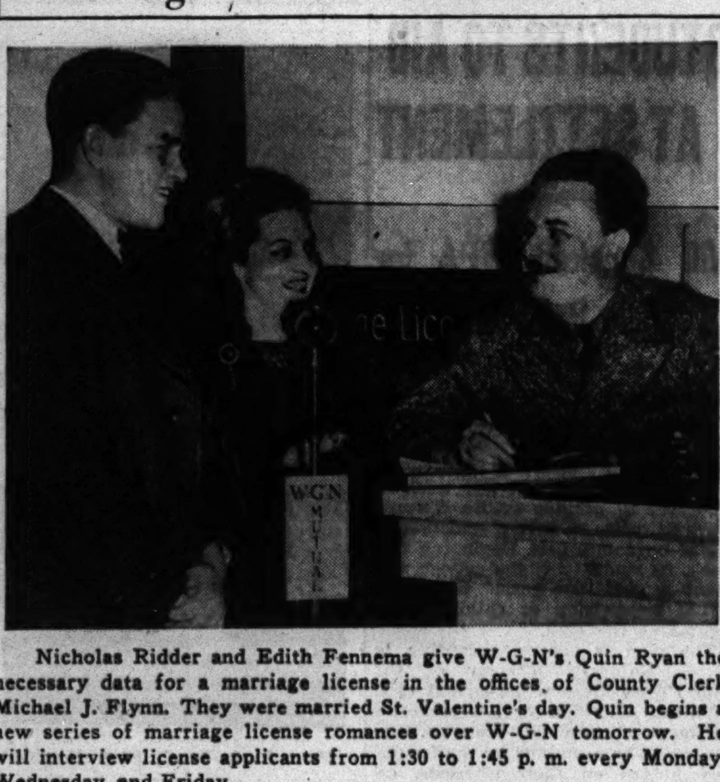
Community High school of Blue Island will be saluted on the Citizens of Tomorrow broadcast at 4:30 p. m. Tuesday over W-G-N. Sponsored by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE and dedicated to the youth of America, this hour of song, cheers and laughs will be witnessed by 600 students of the school in the W-G-N audience studios.

Superintendent H. L. Richards will speak briefly. He will be introduced by Philip Maxwell, master of ceremonies of the broadcast. E. G. Griffin will direct the Community High chorus in three numbers, "Ave Maria," by Bach-Gounod; "Old Black Joe," by Foster, and "Drink to Me Only With Thine Eyes," by Johnson.

Mr. Maxwell, in the rôle of "the principal" will cite the achievements of two new Citizens of Tomorrow honor roll students and interview another.

New honor roll students to be announced will be: Helen Zimmerman, straight "A" student of West Waterloo, Ia., and Jack Hasenfus, outstanding athlete and all-around student of Marinette, Wis. The student to be interviewed is John Flood, Boy Scout leader of St. Rita Catholic High school, Chicago. Mr. Maxwell also will conduct the weekly Tribune News Quiz, awarding crisp $5 bills to those who are still standing at the close of the question barrage.

Marriage License Romances Back



Nicholas Ridder and Edith Fennema give W-G-N's Quin Ryan the necessary data for a marriage license in the offices of County Clerk Michael J. Flynn. They were married St. Valentine's day. Quin begins a new series of marriage license romances over W-G-N tomorrow. He will interview license applicants from 1:30 to 1:45 p. m. every Monday, Wednesday, and Friday.

RYAN'S LICENSE BUREAU QUIZZES BACK TOMORROW

W-G-N's Marriage License Bureau Romances, conducted by Quin Ryan, will return to W-G-N tomorrow and be heard from 1:30 to 1:45 p. m. each Monday, Wednesday and Friday.

Each day three or four couples are selected from the prospective brides and grooms in the marriage license offices of County Clerk Michael J. Flynn—the world's busiest marriage license bureau. Under Quin's guidance, these couples give their ideas on marriage, tell how they first met and their plans for the future.

"This should be a banner year for our program," Ryan predicted. "At least there will be no lack of material, for in addition to the Cook county license bureau being the busiest in the world, the Association for Family Living estimates that there will be 12,000 more marriages before July this year than in any normal year."

Elissa Landi on Air.

Elissa Landi, stage and screen actress, will be the guest speaker on the I'm An American broadcast at 11:15 a. m. today over the NBC-Blue network.

MIRROR REVUE TO BE PREVIEWED ON CHICAGO HOUR

Show Is Student Written and Produced.

A radio preview of the 16th annual University of Chicago Mirror Revue will be given over W-G-N and the coast to coast Mutual Broadcasting System on In Chicago Tonight at 7:30 p. m. next Thursday. The show is student written and produced.

Margaret Exter.

Ruth Wehlan.

Since the university is commemorating its 50th anniversary, the producers are emphasizing this theme in the revue. Songs and sketches cover the whole period from 1891 to 1941.

This will be the first time that a Mirror show has been presented on the air. After the preview the show will have a run of three nights from Feb. 27 to March 1 at Mandel hall on the campus.

Dr. Robert Maynard Hutchins, president of the university, expressed his enthusiasm for the radio production and added that he expected it would prove entertaining to the many friends of the university and bring happy recollections to alumni.

Those who will participate in the broadcast include Ruth Wehlan, Margaret Exter, Betty Ann Evans, Hattie Payne, Albert Droste, Alice Molitor, Dick Lieber, Frank Reker, Pat McGee, and Norm Eaton. The latter two are alumni. Miss Ruth Steel is president of the Mirror production.

The ballads to be given are "Night In Vienna," "Night Bird," and "I Gave My Heart"; novelties, "Warning to a Campus Wolf," "Glamour Girl," and "Toast of Old Broadway." There will also be swing on twin pianos; a rousing tune, "Cheers for the U. S. A.," and comedy sketches.

Ruth Steel and Frank Reker wrote the music.

Production will be handled by William A. Bacher, and the radio backdrops will be provided by the W-G-N Dance orchestra under Harold Stokes and the W-G-N Chorus with Robert Trendler.

JOHN BARBIROLLI RETURNS TODAY TO PHILHARMONIC

John Barbirolli, conductor of the New York Philharmonic-Symphony orchestra, will return after a two month's absence from New York, to conduct the orchestra in its concert over WBBM at 2 p. m. today. Zino Francescatti, the distinguished French violinist, is to be guest soloist in this fine music presentation. Mr. Barbirolli will introduce his concert with the Overture to "Donna Diana," by Reznicek and concludes with the ever popular Symphony in B minor, by Schubert, familiarly known as the "Unfinished." Mr. Francescatti is to play the Concerto for Violin and Orchestra in D major by Brahms.

1,518 SMITHS ASK TICKETS FOR W-G-N'S 'WHISPERING SMITH'

More than 1,518 Smiths of Chicago have requested tickets for the première of "Whispering Smith," new W-G-N program which will be heard the first time, Friday, Feb. 28. Last week W-G-N officials issued an invitation for the "Whispering Smith" première to all Smiths of Chicago. They have been responding ever since. Special invitations have been issued to Clayton F. Smith, president of the county board, and other notable Smiths.

Those who responded first will get tickets to the opening show. Others will be accommodated later.

"Whispering Smith," the new program, will be a special radio adaptation of Frank Spearman's novel of the same title. It will relate the adventures of a legendary character who protected the interests of the underdogs in the development of the west by the railroads. An expert marksman, a man feared by all his enemies, Smith received his nickname because whenever danger threatened, he lost his voice and could speak only in a whisper. This whisper will sound frequently during the episodes of the W-G-N program.

Blair Walliser will produce the "Whispering Smith" series, which will be heard every Friday from 7 to 7:30 p. m. [C. S. T.]. Pictures linked with the episodes of the series will be published in the graphic section of the CHICAGO SUNDAY TRIBUNE.

Voice of Listener

Many thousands of congratulatory letters are pouring in to W-G-N and the Mutual network offices since listeners were invited to express their feelings about the Chicago Theater of the Air operettas which will conclude their present series on Saturday March 1 with the presentation of "Pagliacci" at the Civic Opera house. Overwhelmingly the letters from listeners insist that these productions be continued next fall.

Below are excerpts from letters received last week:

CHICAGO—I am a little girl 9 years old and I am listening to your program each Saturday night. I like it very much and I wish it continued.
LORRAINE MATUSCHEK.

CONEY ISLAND, N. Y.—I live at home with my aged mother and my income is very small, but sometimes that alone is a blessing if only it brings me such fine music and singing from W-G-N and causes me to stay home every Saturday night with a new thrill in store. I bless you and Henry Weber and Marion Claire and every one connected with these presentations and hope very much they will be continued in the autumn and for a long time to come.
IRWIN LANDES.

CHARLESTON, ILL.—I have enjoyed your operetta productions immensely and I am very desirous that they be continued. You are giving the public entertainment which promotes an appreciation of good music.
THOMAS GREGORY.

WEST BRIGHTON, N. Y.—We have enjoyed your Saturday operatic presentations and we hope for the unlimited continuation of this delightfully colorful program. Congratulations to Mr. Bacher, your musical conductor and your entire cast.
ANN and ALAN DEVITT.

DAVENPORT, IA.—Thanks for many happy hours. I wonder if you realize what a blessed relief it is to be spared nerve shattering music.
DOROTHY LEWIS.

CHICAGO—I sincerely hope your excellent program will continue on the air. For me it's one of the best and most worthwhile radio programs. The music couldn't be improved.
RUTH J. HIBLER.

OTTAWA, ILL.—We do hope you will continue this service next season. I happen to be teaching "Music Appreciation" in Ottawa High school and in this capacity we feel deeply appreciative of the many fine things your station has been and continues to do for good music.
JOHN L. HOFF.

Further expressions of opinion are invited.

OPERATIC MUSIC TO BE FEATURE OF CONCERT HOUR

Marion Claire to Sing Verdi's 'Ave Maria.'

Operatic music will occupy a featured spot on the Chicagoland Concert hour to be broadcast over W-G-N and the Mutual network at 8:30 p. m. next Wednesday. Henry Weber, musical director of W-G-N and general director of the Chicago Opera company, will direct the W-G-N Concert orchestra and augmented chorus. Marion Claire, star of the stage, opera, and radio, will be the soloist. Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, will speak during the program.

The three operatic selections to be aired will be the ever popular, rousing march from the opera "Tannhauser" by Wagner, "Ave Maria" from "Othello" by Verdi, and the "Habanera" from Bizet's opera, "Carmen." Miss Claire's principal solo of the evening will be the "Ave Maria."

Another highlight on the program will find Mr. Weber and the concert orchestra in the spotlight as they play the sparkling, gay "Artists' Life" waltz by Johann Strauss.

The complete program follows:

"Tannhauser March"..............Wagner
Chorus and Orchestra.
"Ave Maria from Othello"..........Verdi

Address ....Col. Robert R. McCormick
"Artists' Life"......................Strauss

PRINTER'S DEVIL RISES HIGH IN EDUCATION FIELD

From printer's devil to assistant superintendent of the board of education is the story of the rise of Philip L. McNamee, 2322 East 70th place, who recently was promoted by Superintendent of Schools William H. Johnson. Mr. McNamee, who has been in the Chicago public school system for 24 years, will be in charge of vocational education.

Philip L. McNamee.

The new position means that Mr. McNamee will be Supt. Johnson's right-hand man in supervising the board of education's rôle in training skilled and semiskilled workers under the national defense program. Approximately half of the workers studying trades in Illinois are using Chicago public school facilities.

Knows Many Jobs.

Mr. McNamee has been successively a journeyman printer, reporter, printing instructor, industrial coördinator, organizer of national defense classes and now director of vocational education. He began his printing career with the John F. Higgins Printing company and later worked for several newspapers. In 1916 he entered the Chicago public school system by examination and became a teacher of printing.

He correlated his instruction in printing gradually with journalism, commercial art, and advertising thru school publications.

Studied at Armour.

After studying at Armour institute, Mr. McNamee was appointed industrial coördinator by the late superintendent of schools, William McAndrews. In 1932 he organized the first trade unit classes in Chicago at Washburne, where he was made director two years ago.

CHURCH, PASTOR WILL NOTE FORTY YEARS TOGETHER

Forty years of community service will be celebrated by both a church and its pastor today. The church is Our Redeemer Lutheran, at 6430 South Harvard avenue, and the pastor is the Rev. Guido Schuessler, nearly 68 years old and still noted for his oratory.

Our Redeemer was the first Lutheran mission at which the English language was used exclusively. The first public service took place in old St. Stephen's church building on Englewood avenue on Feb. 17, 1901. Today's anniversary celebration will be at 10:45 o'clock this morning, with the Rev. Martin Walker, Buffalo, N. Y., president of the English district, as guest speaker.

The Rev. Guido Schuessler received his theological training at Concordia seminary in St. Louis. He was graduated from there in 1894 and began his preaching in Coal City, Ill. He remained in Coal City until he was called to Chicago to found his present church.

As Our Redeemer church grew in membership the pastor began establishing new missions. Altogether he founded four other congregations on the south side.

His son, the Rev. Luther Schuessler, has been associate pastor at Our Redeemer since 1932. Before that the younger Schuessler, also an alumnus of Concordia seminary, held pastorates in Detroit and Maywood. There are two other Schuessler sons, Dr. Elmer Schuessler is a dentist and a lieutenant in the navy stationed at Great Lakes and Ralph is an instructor at Concordia college in River Forest.

SEES PLAY LOT YOUNGSTERS AS NATION'S HOPE

Boyish Sports Are Part of Defense, Says Peel.

So says blue eyed, Irish born Peter J. Peel, 20 West Jackson boulevard, the man who is in charge of the Chicago recreation commission committee to extend play spaces for the city's youngsters. Mr. Peel, for many years a national figure in the sports field and a world's record holder in cricket, believes that athletics should be considered one of the most important factors in the nation's defense.

He goes farther than that. "I think," he says slowly, "you might almost define democracy as the right to play on corner lots."

In sports, America has three weapons against totalitarianism, says Mr. Peel—baseball, the hockey stick, and football. "Also," he adds chuckling, "the pop bottle to throw at a bad umpire."

Clear Vacant Lots.

Mr. Peel's committee for the extension of play spaces has coöperated with district and local recreation groups in a campaign to clear rubbish from vacant lots so that they can be used as play spots, especially in neighborhoods where there are no parks and city playgrounds. More than 273 equipped play lots now exist in all parts of the city, but the campaign is not over.

"The defense program," the veteran athlete declares, "is waking us up as a nation to the deep truth that battles are won on the playing fields. O, we're sports conscious, it's true, but we've tended to let our interest focus on the experts, so that we turn out some champions and let the rest of the population become merely spectators."

And that is the wrong approach to sports, he adds. Part of the job, as he sees it, is to break down the "champion complex" that has sprung up in America. The solution is simple. Extend play space and therefore opportunity for everybody to take part in athletics, he says. Thus, America will become a nation of sports participants instead of spectators.

Need More Play Spots.

"It can't be said too often," Mr. Peel continues. "We need more play spaces, more sports, more opportunities for youngsters to gain the great benefits to health and character that athletics bring. Today's children are tomorrow's citizens; tomorrow's defenders of democracy.

"Extended play space—even tho thru simple mediums like neighborhood lots—spells greater opportunity for youngsters to learn Americanism and democracy on their very first testing ground.

"In a world like ours democracy does well to look far ahead. And it's not unlikely that the kids playing this very minute on some corner lot on the west, north, or south sides will one day be needed to fight for democracy."

Mr. Peel was twice president of the United States Football association, organizer and first president of the first state soccer organization in Illinois. He is donor of the challenge cup bearing his name, and a life member of the Peter J. Peel Challenge cup soccer competition, which now is in its 33d year.

This Week in the Garden

Monday, Feb. 17.

Those who have a small greenhouse or hotbed can start seeds of vegetables, such as tomatoes, cabbage, cauliflower, and lettuce. The plants will have made a fine start long before hot weather comes.

City gardeners can use electricity to furnish heat for the hotbed, but suburbanites who can obtain fresh strawy manure may use it, in a fermented state.

Tuesday, Feb. 18.

It will soon be time to transplant or shift house plants. A good average soil consists of one-half garden loam, one-quarter sand, and one-quarter leafmold or rotted manure. Soil can usually be procured from the local plant grower, who will mix it to accommodate the requirements of individual plants.

Wednesday, Feb. 19.

Perennials in the garden may need to be divided; some may not have been satisfactory and should be replaced with others, and empty spots may need planting.

Screen the garage by using annual vines. Hide the telephone post by planting a pyramidal poplar in front of it. Use some of the low tree forms as a screen along the rear fence, but do not overplant on the small area.

Thursday, Feb. 20.

Pruning should be undertaken for some kinds of plants at this season. Many home gardeners prune all plants in spring. Prune to keep the plants in a vigorous condition and in such a manner that they retain their natural form, unless they are planted as a hedge.

Fruit trees should be pruned to keep the heads low and open. Early pruning should be done so the branches are kept growing out from the main trunk. Avoid formation of a crotch. A tree that is once brought into good bearing condition requires little pruning.

Friday, Feb. 21.

Watch for red spiders in house plants. Syringe the plants occasionally; keep humidors on the radiators; dust with sulphur on both the upper and lower sides of the foliage.

Bulbous plants, such as the hyacinth, narcissus, and tulip, should be kept growing until the foliage turns yellow. When this occurs lay the pots on their sides in a cool place and next fall plant in the garden.

Saturday, Feb. 22.

Shade in city gardens is frequently a problem. Here is a list of some plants that should do very well under such conditions: Shrubs: Five leaved aralia, Japanese kerria, privet, Japanese yew. Perennials: Bugle [ajuga reptans], plantain lily, moneywort, Japanese spurge, periwinkle, violas, lily of the valley, ferns. Vines: Hall's honeysuckle, Virginia creeper, Boston ivy, fleece vine, wild grape, and wisteria.

HOW ARCHITECT DESIGNS HOUSE FOR OWN USES

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

We present today an unusually fine example of the modern with a number of very forward looking features. It shows the many possibilities available today for better design and building, and while it is a larger house than we usually discuss in this department its points of beauty and interest are those which may be adroitly incorporated into homes of less size and cost.

It is the residence of Winston Elting, architect, of Lake Forest.

House Overlooks Ravine.

The plan was dictated largely by a peculiar and beautiful site.

On the south side of the house there is a deep ravine running east to Lake Michigan. Service, garage, entries, hall, and gallery face the north. All the principal rooms open to the southeast or the west, and by placing the building on the north property line, maximum space was reserved for gardens and lawns to the south between the house and the ravine.

As the architect says: "The plan was the principal thing and the elevations followed along."

[This is one of the most sensible trends of contemporary architecture.]

An effort was made to keep the house as low as possible to subjugate it to large elms, maples, and birches on the property, and natural brick and redwood was used on the exterior to blend the house with the landscape.

Screen Separates Rooms.

The plan is open and there is generous use of large glass window areas as well as glass block on the north side.

The house has nine rooms, three and one-half baths, two porches and two sun decks. These decks and porches afford close relation to the home interior and the out of doors.

Among the very interesting personal provisions of the plan, and one which is practical and charming in many homes, is the provision of a folding screen between living room and dining space to permit combination or separation of rooms as desired.

Again, the master bedroom is on the first floor, and is reached thru a gallery on the north side of the house. This secures for the bedroom a semi-isolation. Opening from this gallery there is also a combination room: An architect's work space and alternate guest room when occasion demands.

Glass Block on North.

The problem of north light and privacy for the gallery was handled with glass block. This same type of block was used to give light to garage, mud room, stairwell and pantry off garage. There is also glass block used on the north wall of the work room in order to borrow light from the gallery.

On the second floor there are three bedrooms and large bath and two sun decks. The west deck is for the children and the east deck for the parents. Solid railings have been installed to shield these spots from the wind.

The heating of the home is by a new method known as panel heating, which has been installed in the ceilings thruout the house. The system is entirely automatic, oil fired, with water temperature control and circulation provided by electrically controlled mixture of water from the boiler with the pump-recirculated flow thru the system.

ASSESSOR FINDS LITTLE CHANGE IN REALTY VALUES

Figures for North Towns Complete.

Real estate assessments for 1940 in 20 country townships in the north, northwest and western parts of Cook county decreased less than 1 per cent under the quadrennial assessment of 1939, it was announced last week by John S. Clark, county assessor.

The assessment figure in these areas amounts to $281,379,412. The new assessment is a revision of the 1939 quadrennial total, in which land and building values are established for taxing purposes for four years. Revisions are made each year on all properties which investigation shows to have altered in value.

Less Than in 1939.

The 1940 assessed building value in the 20 townships is $122,706 less than in 1939. Building values have declined in the longer settled townships of Evanston, New Trier, River Forest, Oak Park, and Proviso. Building values are increased in the more recently built up townships.

Following is a table of the building assessments by townships for 1939 and 1940 with comparative increases and decreases shown in $1,000 units only:

NORTH AVE. 'Y' OPENS CAMPAIGN TO RAISE $4,300

A drive to raise $4,300 for the North Avenue-Larrabee Y. M. C. A. will get under way tomorrow. Part of the funds will go toward a proposed program to send 200 boys to camp the coming summer.

The campaign, which will close Feb. 28, is an annual event held to raise part of the "Y's" $135,000 yearly working budget.

For the first time in the history of the branch a team of women will be working in the fund raising drive. Mrs. Douglas E. Bushell is chairman. Other members of the team include Mrs. Walter J. Kelley, Mrs. James Coultrap, Mrs. Rose Trebes, Mrs. E. J. Ryan, and Mrs. Charles Pagano.

Harry Delano is general chairman of the campaign. Members of the special gifts committee are A. T. Huizinga, J. T. Forrester, G. O. Mayer, Henry Spanjer, and William Bentley.

Arthur Miller is chairman of the men's work committee, and Charles MacDonnell heads the boys' committee. Members of these committees are William Bartwick, William Surman, A. A. Van Dyke, Charles McDaniels, Charles Pagano, H. J. Elliot, H. A. Dryer, Edward Selling, Roy MacKenzie, Ralph Corcio, Dudley Dewey, William Warneke, Ernest Weickert, Fred Moss, Austin Dunkin, Robert Brenton, and Glen Vasel.

The North avenue "Y" recently completed a $175,000 five story addition to its home. The new building contains an enlarged boys' and men's department and 65 residence rooms.

More than 1,500 parishioners and former members of St. Patrick's church, Des Plaines and Adams streets, are expected to attend the second annual homecoming card party and dance Saturday evening at the La Salle htel.

Clarence A. Leary, 722 Clinton street, Oak Park, is general chairman of the arrangements committee, and the Rev. Thomas J. Hayes, pastor of the church, is honorary chairman.

Other heads of the homecoming committee include the Rev. Lawrence Kenney, Roy K. Bennish, Frank C. Spanknabell, and Louis J. Owens.

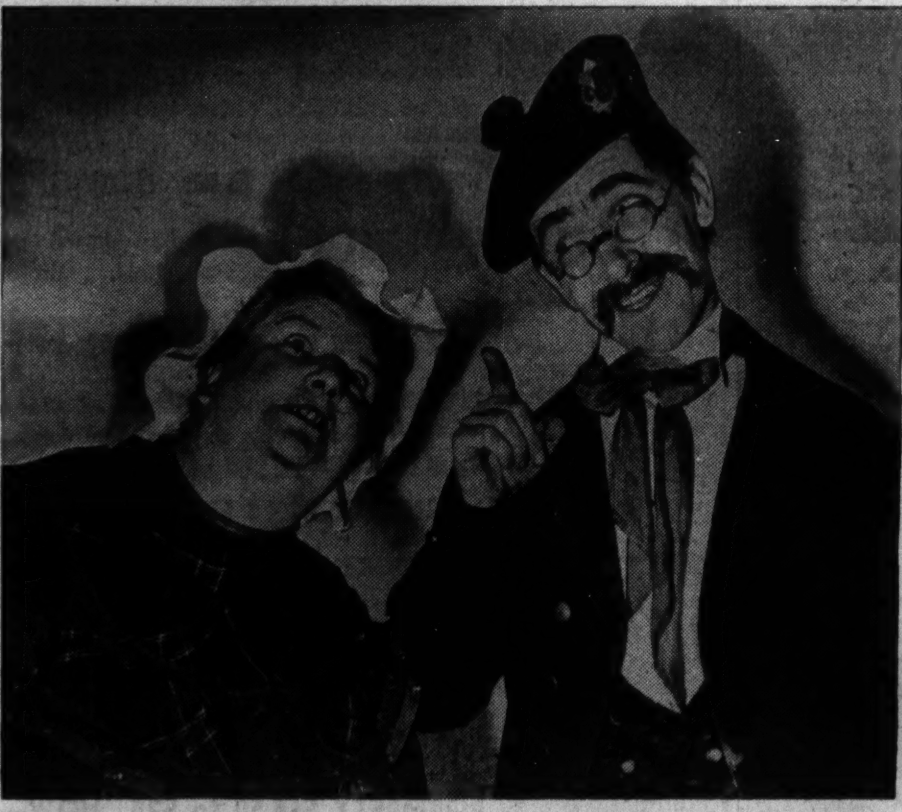
Tho costumes and scenery are important, they are secondary to the acting. Here Nancy Pershall of Glencoe, director, gives a few pointers to Mrs. Shepherd, Charles Fleischmann of Kenilworth, who plays the lead, and Mr. Shepherd, who portrays the male comedy lead. As director, Mrs. Pershall must be ready to answer any and all questions, so later in the evening she helps Mr. Shepherd make the proper mustache for his characterization.



Dorothy Rae of Wilmette, one of the Players' most talented members, will portray the comic Lena Levinsky, sister and trainer of "Bully Boy Brewster." With her is Mr. Shepherd in the comedy lead. In contrast to this pair are the heroine and hero portrayed by lovely Susan Miller of Winnetka, president of the Junior class at New Trier High school, and Mr. Fleischmann, tall, handsome, and a good singer. Others in the cast are J. Lincoln Gibson, Fitzroy Davis, Ed Fischer, Judson Cross, Alan Hokanson, Al Childs, Ann Musson, Robert Martin, R. J. Reynolds, Bud Buell, and Hank Meyers. Everett Millard of Highland Park is arranging the musical score.

Order of Martha Plans Card Party for Thursday

Dr. John R. Ball of the geology department at Northwestern university will given an illustrated lecture on "Silurian Studies in Southern States" at 3 o'clock today in the Chicago Academy of Sciences in Lincoln park.

The Deerfield Stagers will present the old fashioned melodrama, "A Working Girl's Secret," on Friday evening in the Deerfield grammar school auditorium.

That Book in Milady's Hand Is Not Fiction

BY MARCIA WINN.

The Evanston public library believes it has disproved the myth that women read, if at all, only romantic fiction tinged with lavender and old lace.

A month's survey of the library's women readers showed fiction to be their least concern. Excluding fiction and biography, they borrowed books on more than 500 subjects, Miss Ida Faye Wright, librarian, reports.

The trend was evident some time ago, for during the last 10 years the library borrowers have been reading less and less fiction, men and women alike. In 1940 they read only 8 per cent more fiction than in 1930, whereas they read 67 per cent more nonfiction and 154 per cent more books in the practical and creative arts.

Parents Seek Help.

The subject greatest in demand by parents, the survey showed, was that of sex instruction, with books on the physical and mental training of preschool children running a close second. Such books as "Love at the Threshold" and "Being Born" were popular in the first category, and Alschuler's "Two to Six" and "The Child from One to Six," a pamphlet issued by the United States children's bureau, in the second.

Homemakers read a good many books about home making, but few stopped there. The month's reading of the wife of an insurance underwriter, for example, included books on the following: Training a maid, household management, gardening, child study, the economics of business recovery, travel in Minnesota, and American immigration.

A lumberman's wife took out books on house plans, overcoming deafness, physics, photography, archery, and camping. The wife of an industrial engineer borrowed books on how to make a will, personal investments, travel in America and South America.

They Like Travel Books.

Business women, judging from the survey, have a keen interest in travel. During the month they borrowed books "on every conceivable part" of the United States. Their interests also lay in social questions, music, health, and general literature such as plays, poetry and short stories.

Employed men and women formed the largest group of adult users of the library during 1940. Homemakers were second, and students third. During the year the library lent more than 750,000 books, and readers used an estimated three-quarters of a million more in the library.

THREE MILLION DRESSINGS AIM OF RED CROSS

Must Finish Chicago Quota by March 31.

BY DAVID ANDERSON.

The Chicago chapter of the Red Cross during the next three months will step up its production of war bandages far beyond any three month period since the first world war.

Volunteer surgical dressing workers have taken on a quota of 3 million bandages to be completed for the United States army by March 31, it was announced last week by James B. Forgan, chairman of the Chicago chapter. The area's 25,000 volunteers are already at work on a new war relief production quota of 117,506 garments which are scheduled to be ready May 31.

The 3 million surgical dressings are to be used as army "reserve stock," officials explained. They are part of a 20 million national quota which the Red Cross has undertaken to fill.

Reservoir of Supplies.

The war relief garment production program is designed to maintain a reservoir of needed supplies in the event that more civilians are affected by new military offensives in the Europan war, Mr. Forgan declared.

The 52 production units in the Chicago area have received supplies of gauze from the army. Additional units will start work on the dressings as soon as workers can be taught how to make them.

Red Cross service pins for 273 additional chapter volunteers who have completed 144 hours of bandage-making have been awarded. Sixty-one north siders have been presented with the pins.

SIX LAKE COUNTY MEN VOLUNTEER IN DRAFT CALL

Six men of north Chicagoland, all from Lake county, were among the 71 from the metropolitan area who were drafted by the Chicago induction station last Monday and Tuesday, when the February selective service call got underway.

It is expected that before the call ends, 6,914 more men will have been chosen in Illinois, considerably more than half of them from the Chicago area. This total includes the February state quota of 5,213 men plus the 1,701 man unfilled portion of the January quota of 4,739 men.

All six Lake county men volunteered for immediate service rather than wait for their order numbers to be reached. Their names, ages, addresses, and occupations are:

Leslie Libakken, 28, 301 Central-av., Highland Park, high school teacher.

LAMENTS DISSENSION.

I was interested in your Metropolitan story about the two symphony orchestras in Rogers Park. It seems a shame that such a worthwhile project should be spoiled by dissension. Off to a good start, with sufficient interest aroused for more than 50 artists to respond, the orchestra was on its way to make a name for itself. Now the group is dividing its talent, and the new units will compete against each other for new members, directors, and public support at concerts, instead of working together. The next thing you know, we'll be back where we were in the beginning, with no symphony orchestra in Rogers Park. MUSIC LOVER.

THOSE LITTLE WHITE LINES.

Winter has practically erased the bright, white, lane lines that used to guide north side motorists thru the drives of Lincoln park. These lines divided traffic into evenly flowing streams and were a decided aid to safe rush hour driving. Now, without the white lines, traffic is usually in a tangle along these boulevards. Horns are forever honking and brakes screech as drivers cut in front of each other.

Can't these guiding lines be repainted? I hope the park district heads will investigate this situation and put their crews to work. SAFE DRIVER.

WANTS SYMPHONIC HARMONY.

Well, well—so Rogers Park is being blessed with two symphony orchestras! We got along fine without one for years and years and now we're going to have two! Why, in the name of good sense, can't the two orchestras get together and work as one group? Then, maybe, Rogers Park will have something to be proud of. Maybe. MUSIC FAN.

PICTURES OF WAR BRING BACK VIVID NIGHT OF HORROR

Vet Recalls His Task of Burying Dead.

C. E. Becker.

The picture showed the burial in France of rows of caskets of 42d Division men at Baccarat on May 26, 1918. They had been Becker's friends and buddies, members of the 168th Infantry, 84th Brigade, 42d Division with whom he served and saw action at Château-Thierry, St. Michele, Argonne Forest, Verdun, Champagne, and the Lorraine sector.

Recalls 36 Were Killed.

"The men, 36 of them, were killed in the Lorraine sector between the villages of Badonvillers and Village Negre," he explained yesterday. "Some were killed by gas but most of them by shellfire. Seven men from my company were killed when a German shell made a direct hit on a mortar they were in the act of firing. Caskets of six of those men are in the picture. They never found enough of the seventh man to bury him.

"The bodies were brought from the lines in field ambulances about 2 o'clock in the morning and were taken to Baccarat division headquarters, 12 miles behind the lines. I was a dispatch rider out of the 168th infantry headquarters at that time and was asked by the regimental adjutant to take charge of the bodies.

Gets Ready for Burial.

"It wasn't a task to relish but I rode with the ambulance to the cathedral in Baccarat and laid them out in long rows. With the light of but a single candle and alone in this big barnlike place, I got them ready for burial. From the neck of each body, if some of them could be termed such, I took one of the identification discs and put it with any personal belongings in a small cloth bag that was furnished by the nuns. I'll always remember how still, dark, and cold it was in that church!

"Early in the morning the supply company sent boxes for the bodies but none of the drivers would help me put the bodies in them. So I found two nuns from the church who did. They could speak no English nor could I speak French but they pitched in with iron composure and strength.

All Americans Attend.

"The funeral was attended by all the Americans in Baccarat at the time and the long procession followed the big truck carrying the flag draped boxes up the hill to the cemetery. Many French soldiers and civilians attended as well as a few Red Cross nurses. I recognized Col. Bennett, former commander of the 168th infantry. Winifred Robb, chaplain of the 168th infantry, also was in the picture. Most of the other faces are too dim to identify.

"They were a grand bunch of fellows in the 168th infantry and only 800 of 4,000 who made up the original group returned from the war. The name of their burial place is symbolic of war. It's a gamble and one that at the present time the United States isn't ready to take. More pictures, like those now being printed in THE TRIBUNE, should be put before the public who know nothing of war's horrors."

READY TO MAKE HER BOW TO THE SECOND CENTURY

Mrs. Loretta Frye Will Be 100 Saturday.

BY JUANITA DALY.

Next Saturday Mrs. Loretta Frye of Evanston will be one of the few persons anywhere who can state from experience that the "first hundred years are the hardest." On Washington's and her own birthday, Feb. 22, she will be 100 years old.

Frankly she says she doesn't want any gifts, but neighbors, friends, and even casual acquaintances will remember her. They have, on both Christmas and her birthday.

Every one is charmed on meeting her, quickly calls her "Grandma" and for only a smile earns a pin cushion or crocheted dish cloth which she makes in a jiffy. When she isn't sewing, Mrs. Frye reads the newspapers and magazines or listens to band music and operas over the radio.

Fond of Movies.

Until a heart attack put her to bed at Christmas time, Mrs. Frye had been almost as active as her daughter, Mrs. Carrie McGrath, and granddaughter, Mrs. Rodney Hench, with whom she lives at 602 Michigan avenue. The three went to luncheons and the movies frequently and attended the morning service at Hemingway Methodist church every Sunday.

Mrs. Frye was born and reared on a farm in Adams county, Pa., about 25 miles from Gettysburg. During the civil war, she watched the flames shooting over Chambersburg when it was burned. When a company of soldiers camped on their farm, she and her four sisters baked biscuits all night to feed them.

Married Union Soldier.

On Oct. 28, 1866, Loretta Weagly married Dallas Frye, a Union soldier from nearby Upton. She likes to remember the outfit she wore that Sunday morning—a long black silk dress covered with a black cape and a corn colored bonnet trimmed with blue ribbons which tied under her chin and fell to her knees. After the ceremony at home, the newlyweds went to church and the bride took her usual place with the choir.

The Fryes resided in Chambersburg for 50 years and had three children. Only the daughter is living, but there are eight grandchildren and nine great-grandchildren.

Mrs. Frey would pick the airplane as the greatest invention during her lifetime, but she doesn't want to ride in one.

Long Life Recipe

Mrs. Loretta Frye, 602 Michigan avenue, Evanston, says a person should "lead a good life" if he hopes to equal her record of 100 years. She will have a big cake to celebrate her 100th birthday Saturday.

why you get THE WORLD'S BEST TELEPHONE SERVICE when you call the Tribune

SHOWN above is a portion of the main switchboard staff which last year delivered the world's best telephone service while completing more than 10,000,000 calls between the Chicago Tribune and the outside world.

Business calls—news, circulation, advertising, production and administration—exceeded 8,600,000 incoming and outgoing.

Service to readers—answers to requests for sports results, election returns, inquiries about the draft, the weather, news reports and rumors—accounted for more than 1,500,000 incoming calls.

All these were in addition to more than 2,000,000 calls handled automatically between staff members by the Tribune's intercommunicating house phone system.

To handle this huge volume, averaging more than 27,000 every 24 hours, requires 23 skilled operators and attendants, working in three daily shifts every day of the year.

It requires 944 instruments and extensions thruout Tribune Tower, the Public Service offices, roto plant, garage and paper storage warehouse. It is expedited by three different numbers and 214 trunk lines connecting with novel equipment specially designed to Tribune specifications in order to give readers, advertisers, staff members and correspondents the fastest, most efficient phone service in the world.

When you call this newspaper to place a want ad, renew your subscription, report a news happening or for any other purpose, the excellence of the service you get is the result of Tribune experience over 58 years and the co-operation of the telephone company.

Since the Tribune installed its first two phones in 1883, it has adopted each new advance as fast as science and the inventiveness of its own staff developed them.

The Tribune pioneered many innovations in telephone service to the public and spurred the development of special equipment and methods by which this service has been steadily expanded.

By telephone, as in its printed product, the Tribune spares no expense in an effort to deliver each day better service than the day before.

"TELEPHONE SERVICE—Streamlined"

By Anne Garrow

Manager of the Chicago Tribune telephone system

The flash of a switchboard light, the ringing of a telephone bell in a newspaper office, may be the forerunner of news destined to shape the life of a man, of a community, of a nation or all mankind.

Telephone lines are the arteries thru which flows news—the lifeblood of a newspaper. Without the telephone network, the newspaper as we know it today could not exist. News is born every second—on the battlefield, in the tenement, on the farm, in the air, under the sea—wherever men live and die. Tomorrow's most important news may happen across the street from you or in one of the far corners of the earth, but wherever it may be, one of the world's more than 42,000,000 telephones is almost sure to be somewhere near.

Because the essence of news is timeliness, the Tribune maintains thru its telephone switchboard a streamlined service to speed the handling of news from its birth to the printed page. A maximum number of telephone channels is kept in readiness day and night for the accurate, efficient and speedy reception of news. Trained, experienced operators contribute their skill to streamlining this service.

To meet the great demands made on a great newspaper every hour of time, the Tribune maintains a system built for speed and efficiency, using advanced equipment and methods specially designed and developed to anticipate emergencies and future growth and to deliver at all times maximum service.

PICTURED here is the ingenious equipment designed by the manager of the Tribune telephone system. This enables a single operator to answer as many as thirty calls every twenty seconds. It is used to handle peak load inquiries about sport results, war reports and other topics which produce massed calls about a single event. When such calls begin to pile up on the main board, they are automatically switched to a bulletin service room which is equipped with the above shown apparatus enclosing special circuits and connected with an amplifier which permits bulletin service ten times faster than possible without such equipment.

CHURCH IS TRUE TO NAME AS IT NOTES 50 YEARS

Endeavor Has a Wide Program of Help.

True to its name, the Endeavor Presbyterian church, Paulina street and Cornelia avenue, as it passes its 50th anniversary milestone, is continuing its efforts to serve the Lake View community with "a program centered in worship but also including Christian education and wholesome recreation and social life." This morning the Rev. Rolland C. Stone, minister, will open the golden jubilee week with an anniversary worship at 10:45 o'clock.

Rev. Rolland C. Stone.

The Rev. Paul Sheldon Johnson, executive secretary of the Presbytery of Chicago, will speak on "What You Find in Church." For the golden jubilee banquet Wednesday evening, the Rev. James T. Veneklasen of Wilmette, moderator of the Chicago Presbytery, will be guest speaker.

Will Give Playlet.

The Tuxis society has prepared a playlet, "Our Presbyterian Church," for the young people's program this evening. A choral synopsis of the life of Christ will be presented by the junior and senior choirs Friday evening under the direction of Miss Jean McDougall.

Endeavor was originally the Gross park branch of the Fullerton avenue church. On Feb. 19, 1891, it became a full fledged church and took the park name, later changing it to Endeavor.

Dedicated in 1893.

The 25 charter members, under the leadership of the Rev. D. L. Parsons, went to work to raise more than $10,000 for a building. With the assistance of other Presbyterian groups, the church was built and dedicated in October, 1893. Not until 1921 did Endeavor become fully independent financially.

Pastors during this period included the Rev. Herbert A. Bradford, the Rev. Thomas S. Anderson, the Rev. Walter E. Price, the Rev. D. M. Ross, the Rev. E. N. Ware, the Rev. Emmet P. Day, the Rev. Archibald R. Wright, the Rev. Marshall R. Olsen, and the Rev. George Cleaver. The Rev. William Ruby was in charge from 1924 to 1929 when the church gained many new members and created a building fund.

However, the early 30s wiped away all plans for expansion and before the period was over, the church turned once more to the extension board for assistance. The board advised a student minister and held down all expenses.

Planning the Program.

Members of the committee for the anniversary program are Edgar S. Jefferson, Otto Orth, Anton Reese Jr., Jerome Hansen, Mrs. William A. Stone, Miss Bonnie Bannister, Mrs. John Wooley, and Miss Lois Beese, secretary.

Assisting the pastor in conducting Endeavor activities are members of the session, Mr. Stone, Mr. Jefferson, Anton Halverson, Ernest Griebel, and Mr. Orth; trustees, George Garrod, Mr. Hansen, William Griebel, Anton Van Bladel, Clifford Jones, Martin Reese, Anton Reese, Paul A. Beese, Harry Gates, and William F. Smith; Miss McDougall, director of religious education and music, and Miss Norma B. Coryell, organist.

Play's the Thing

For more than half his life, Alvin E. Anderson, 22 years old, 3541 North Wolcott avenue, has followed gas model plane flying and building as a hobby, yet he is now more enthusiastic than ever. In fact, he has visions of becoming soon one of the largest manufacturers of model airplane parts.

It was 12 years ago when Alvin first took up his hobby at the Hamlin park craft shop at Wellington and Hoyne avenues. Park district instructors found that he picked up the technique of flying and building easily, and his progress was rapid.

He began winning distinction by triumphs in park district meets, gradually widening his field, until in 1937 he defeated some of the big leaguers of his hobby in the Berryloid championship contest. That was his greatest thrill, Alvin admits. He also won the American Legion championship and the Rockford Gas Bugs' championship.

Off the Trail

with HAROLD SMITH

Earl Butler, new president of the Town and Country Equestrian association, and his wife are spending a three months' vacation in Texas and Arizona, where Mr. Butler hopes to recuperate more fully from injuries incurred in an automobile accident nearly a year ago.

Writ Stafford, 820 Michigan avenue, Evanston, a former member of the Black Horse troop, was in the January call of men under the selective service act.

Miss Irma Thoms, 500 Florence avenue, and Miss Catherine Gratia, 2744 Asbury avenue, both in Evanston, are among the Jack and Jill club members who do their riding from the Silver Spur stables on East River road north of Des Plaines.

R. O. T. C. cadets and officers, educational and military leaders thruout the Chicagoland area, will be guests at this party with Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE TRIBUNE, as the host.

400 Cadets in Uniform.

Among the 600 studio guests there will be more than 400 R. O. T. C. cadets in uniform. Of these some 200 will be Chicago R. O. T. C. cadets who have received Tribune awards—gold, silver, and bronze medals—for excellence in military training during the last semester. The guests will come from nearly 70 institutions in Chicagoland that have R. O. T. C. units or other courses in military training.

The Chicago cadets will represent the units of 27 public high schools, St. Mel's High school and the Morgan Park Military academy. From Cook county outside of Chicago will come other delegations, representing Evanston Township High school, the Glenwood Manual Training school, and Northwestern university's R. O. T. C. unit.

Military Leaders Invited.

Besides visitors from Gary, Aurora, Waukegan, and Joliet there will be groups from many universities, colleges, and academies thruout Illinois, Wisconsin, Indiana, Michigan, Iowa, and Missouri.

Special guests are to include Brig. Gen. Charles H. Bonesteel, commanding general of the 6th corps area; Col. John T. Rhett, representing the R. O. T. C. in the corps area; James B. McCahey, president Chicago board of education; Maj. Frank L. Beals, assistant superintendent of Chicago schools in charge of military training, who will represent Superintendent of Schools William H. Johnson, and Col. W. F. Morrison, professor of military science and tactics in the public schools. Col. McCormick and these guests are to speak briefly after the broadcast.

Prior to the broadcast visitors from distant points will make a tour of THE TRIBUNE, starting at 6:45 p. m. At 7:30 the visitors will assemble in the main studio to view the sound pictures, "Trees to Tribunes" and the new Tribune sports film, "The All American Way."

Philip Maxwell of The Tribune editorial staff, who has made many of the R. O. T. C. awards, will be in charge of the program after the broadcast. William A. Bacher produces the Theater of the Air. Henry Weber is the musical director.

BLUE ISLAND HIGH NEXT SCHOOL ON CITIZENS' SHOW

Community High school of Blue Island will be saluted on the Citizens of Tomorrow broadcast at 4:30 p. m. Tuesday over W-G-N. Sponsored by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE and dedicated to the youth of America, this hour of song, cheers and laughs will be witnessed by 600 students of the school in the W-G-N audience studios.

Superintendent H. L. Richards will speak briefly. He will be introduced by Philip Maxwell, master of ceremonies of the broadcast. E. G. Griffin will direct the Community High chorus in three numbers, "Ave Maria," by Bach-Gounod; "Old Black Joe," by Foster, and "Drink to Me Only With Thine Eyes," by Johnson.

New honor roll students to be announced will be: Helen Zimmerman, straight "A" student of West Waterloo, Ia., and Jack Hasenfus, outstanding athlete and all-around student of Marinette, Wis. The student to be interviewed is John Flood, Boy Scout leader of St. Rita Catholic High school, Chicago. Mr. Maxwell also will conduct the weekly Tribune News Quiz, awarding crisp $1 bills to those who are still standing at the close of the question barrage.

1,518 SMITHS ASK TICKETS FOR W-G-N'S 'WHISPERING SMITH'

More than 1,518 Smiths of Chicago have requested tickets for the première of "Whispering Smith," new W-G-N program which will be heard the first time, Friday, Feb. 28. Last week W-G-N officials issued an invitation for the "Whispering Smith" première to all Smiths of Chicago. They have been responding ever since. Special invitations have been issued to Clayton F. Smith, president of the county board, and other notable Smiths.

Those who responded first will get tickets to the opening show. Others will be accommodated later.

"Whispering Smith," the new program, will be a special radio adaptation of Frank Spearman's novel of the same title. It will relate the adventures of a legendary character who protected the interests of the underdogs in the development of the west by the railroads. An expert marksman, a man feared by all his enemies, Smith received his nickname because whenever danger threatened, he lost his voice and could speak only in a whisper.

Blair Walliser will produce the "Whispering Smith" series, which will be heard every Friday from 7 to 7:30 p. m. [C. S. T.]. Pictures linked with the episodes of the series will be published in the graphic section of the CHICAGO SUNDAY TRIBUNE.

On Opera Auditions.

Marian McManus, soprano; Harold Patrick, baritone, and Donald Hultgren, tenor, aspirants to fame as opera singers, will make their vocal applications during the Metropolitan Auditions of the Air at 4 p. m. today over WMAQ and NBC. Edward Johnson is m. c. and Wilfred Pelletier will conduct.

'Hound of Baskervilles' in Final Episode Friday

With the detective work of Sherlock Holmes once more providing excitement and suspense, the tale of the "Hound of the Baskervilles" will be brought to a thrilling close on W-G-N on Friday. The dramatization, last in a series of six Baskervilles instalments, will be heard from 9:30 to 10 p. m.

Marion Claire to Sing Verdi's 'Ave Maria.'

Operatic music will occupy a featured spot on the Chicagoland Concert hour to be broadcast over W-G-N and the Mutual network at 8:30 p. m. next Wednesday. Henry Weber, musical director of W-G-N and general director of the Chicago Opera company, will direct the W-G-N Concert orchestra and augmented chorus. Marion Claire, star of the stage, opera, and radio, will be the soloist.

The three operatic selections to be aired will be the ever popular, rousing march from the opera "Tannhauser" by Wagner, "Ave Maria" from "Othello" by Verdi, and the "Habanera" from Bizet's opera, "Carmen." Miss Claire's principal solo of the evening will be the "Ave Maria."

Another highlight on the program will find Mr. Weber and the concert orchestra in the spotlight as they play the sparkling, gay "Artists' Life" waltz by Johann Strauss.

The complete program follows:

MIRROR REVUE TO BE PREVIEWED ON CHICAGO HOUR

Show Student Written and Produced.

A radio preview of the 16th annual University of Chicago Mirror Revue will be given over W-G-N and the coast to coast Mutual Broadcasting System on In Chicago Tonight at 7:30 p. m. next Thursday. The show is student written and produced.

Margaret Exter.

Ruth Wehlan.

Since the university is commemorating its 50th anniversary, the producers are emphasizing this theme in the revue. Songs and sketches cover the whole period from 1891 to 1941.

This will be the first time that a Mirror show has been presented on the air. After the preview the show will have a run of three nights from Feb. 27 to March 1 at Mandel hall on the campus.

Those who will participate in the broadcast include Ruth Wehlan, Margaret Exter, Betty Ann Evans, Hattie Payne, Albert Droste, Alice Molitor, Dick Lieber, Frank Reker, Pat McGee, and Norm Eaton. The latter two are alumni. Miss Ruth Steel is president of the Mirror production.

294 NORTH SIDE DRIVERS OBTAIN LOW AUTO TAGS

More than Fourth of First 1,000 in Area.

Chicago north siders and residents of the north suburban area received the lion's share of Illinois automobile license numbers in the first 1,000 bracket, according to volume 1 of the state license directory issued by Secretary of State Edward J. Hughes. This booklet lists numbers from 1 to 25,000.

There are 294 of the first 1,001 licenses now decorating the automobiles of north side and suburban owners. Mayor Kelly is listed in the state license book as having been given plate number 209, which matches his address at 209 Lake Shore drive.

WIN DEFERMENT ON APPEALS TO DRAFT BOARDS

18 of 20 North Siders Are Successful.

Eighteen north siders of the 20 who sought deferred classifications under selective service were victorious in their quests, according to to a survey of cases disposed of by the eight Cook county draft appeal boards during the week ending last Tuesday. Only two appeals were denied.

That was far better than the average for the rest of the county. Of the 90 cases disposed of for Cook county as a whole during the week, 17 resulted in denials, 21 appeals were granted, and 52 cases were dismissed because the appellants had been reclassified by their local draft boards.

Up to last Tuesday night the Cook county review officials had disposed of 398 cases since selective service began. They granted 90 appeals, denied 204 others, and dismissed 104 that had been reclassified by local boards.

Win Outright Appeals.

Six of the north siders won outright appeals, the others achieving their victories by the reclassification route.

Two of the six who won appeals were given 90 day deferments on occupational grounds. They are William Mox, 5326 Winthrop avenue, assistant to the vice president of an insurance company, and Edward Hanegan, 5547 Kenmore avenue, student traffic dispatcher for a telegraph company.

The others obtained their deferments on grounds of wife dependency. They are: Walter Widmer Jr., 1237 Foster avenue; Edward Gromek, 1758½ Juneway terrace; Alva Roebuck, 1546 Jonquil terrace, and Kenneth Haelsig, 1802 Juneway terrace.

Cases are Dismissed.

Those whose cases were dismissed because of local boards' reclassifications, and the dependents on whose account they sought deferment, were:

Sidney Dry, 3156 Sheridan road, wife.
Bernard Clark, 4150 North Oakley avenue, wife.
Carl Gothard Mueller, 1427 Howard street, wife.
William Zagon, 1333 Birchwood avenue, wife and parents.
Richard J. Elwart, 4022 North Campbell avenue, wife.
Robert Wray Lisco, 4210 North Albany avenue, daughter.
Edward August Oja, 4117 North Wolcott avenue, wife.
John Joseph Lowery, 3706 North Wolcott avenue, wife.
Kenneth Johnson, 708 Cornelia avenue, wife, mother-in-law, and sister-in-law.
John Weyrauch, 4751 North Hermitage avenue, parents.
Charles Keller, 7229 North Damen avenue, parents.
Lester Aakerson, 6208 North Hoyne avenue, wife.

Wilbur Schwarz, 1747 Waller avenue, vice president and supervisor of a dye house, was denied the occupational deferment he asked. Burton Holmgren, 1448 Faragut avenue, who claimed his mother and sister as dependents, was the other north sider whose appeal was denied.

Voice of Listener

Many thousands of congratulatory letters are pouring in to W-G-N and the Mutual network offices since listeners were invited to express their feelings about the Chicago Theater of the Air operettas which will conclude their present series on Saturday March 1 with the presentation of "Pagliacci" at the Civic Opera house. Overwhelmingly the letters from listeners insist that these productions be continued next fall.

Below are excerpts from letters received last week:

CHICAGO—I am a little girl 9 years old and I am listening to your program each Saturday night. I like it very much and I wish it continued.

LORRAINE MATUSCHEK.

CONEY ISLAND, N. Y.—I live at home with my aged mother and my income is very small, but sometimes that alone is a blessing if only it brings me such fine music and singing from W-G-N and causes me to stay home every Saturday night with a new thrill in store. I bless you and Henry Weber and Marion Claire and every one connected with these presentations and hope very much they will be continued in the autumn and for a long time to come.

IRWIN LANDES.

CHARLESTON, ILL.—I have enjoyed your operetta productions immensely and I am very desirous that they be continued. You are giving the public entertainment which promotes an appreciation of good music.

THOMAS GREGORY.

DAVENPORT, IA.—Thanks for many happy hours. I wonder if you realize what a blessed relief it is to be spared nerve shattering music.

DOROTHY LEWIS.

WEST BRIGHTON, N. Y.—We have enjoyed your Saturday operatic presentations and we hope for the unlimited continuation of this delightfully colorful program. Congratulations to Mr. Bacher, your musical conductor and your entire cast.

ANN and ALAN DEVITT.

CHICAGO—I sincerely hope your excellent program will continue on the air. For me it's one of the best and most worthwhile radio programs. The music couldn't be improved.

RUTH J. HIBLER.

Further expressions of opinion are invited.

W-G-N's Marriage License Bureau Romances, conducted by Quin Ryan, will return to W-G-N tomorrow and be heard from 1:30 to 1:45 p. m. each Monday, Wednesday and Friday.

Each day three or four couples are selected from the prospective brides and grooms in the marriage license offices of County Clerk Michael J. Flynn—the world's busiest marriage license bureau. Under Quin's guidance, these couples give their ideas on marriage, tell how they first met and their plans for the future.

"This should be a banner year for our program," Ryan predicted. "At least there will be no lack of material, for in addition to the Cook county license bureau being the busiest in the world, the Association for Family Living estimates that there will be 12,000 more marriages before July this year than in any normal year."

SEES PLAY LOT YOUNGSTERS AS NATION'S HOPE

Boyish Sports Are Part of Defense, Says Peel.

So says blue eyed, Irish born Peter J. Peel, 20 West Jackson boulevard, the man who is in charge of the Chicago recreation commission committee to extend play spaces for the city's youngsters. Mr. Peel, for many years a national figure in the sports field and a world's record holder in cricket, believes that athletics should be considered one of the most important factors in the nation's defense.

He goes farther than that. "I think," he says slowly, "you might almost define democracy as the right to play on corner lots."

In sports, America has three weapons against totalitarianism, says Mr. Peel—baseball, the hockey stick, and football. "Also," he adds chuckling, "the pop bottle to throw at a bad umpire."

Clear Vacant Lots.

Mr. Peel's committee for the extension of play spaces has coöperated with district and local recreation groups in a campaign to clear rubbish from vacant lots so that they can be used as play spots, especially in neighborhoods where there are no parks and city playgrounds. More than 273 equipped play lots now exist in all parts of the city, but the campaign is not over.

"The defense program," the veteran athlete declares, "is waking us up as a nation to the deep truth that battles are won on the playing fields. O, we're sports conscious, it's true, but we've tended to let our interest focus on the experts, so that we turn out some champions and let the rest of the population become merely spectators."

And that is the wrong approach to sports, he adds. Part of the job, as he sees it, is to break down the "champion complex" that has sprung up in America. The solution is simple. Extend play space and therefore opportunity for everybody to take part in athletics, he says. Thus, America will become a nation of sports participants instead of spectators.

Need More Play Spots.

"It can't be said too often," Mr. Peel continues. "We need more play spaces, more sports, more opportunities for youngsters to gain the great benefits to health and character that athletics bring. Today's children are tomorrow's citizens; tomorrow's defenders of democracy.

"Extended play space—even tho thru simple mediums like neighborhood lots—spells greater opportunity for youngsters to learn Americanism and democracy on their very first testing ground.

"In a world like ours democracy does well to look far ahead. And it's not unlikely that the kids playing this very minute on some corner lot on the west, north, or south sides will one day be needed to fight for democracy."

Mr. Peel was twice president of the United States Football association, organizer and first president of the first state soccer organization in Illinois. He is donor of the challenge cup bearing his name, and a life member of the Peter J. Peel Challenge cup soccer competition, which now is in its 33d year.

This Week in the Garden

Monday, Feb. 17.

Those who have a small greenhouse or hotbed can start seeds of vegetables, such as tomatoes, cabbage, cauliflower, and lettuce. The plants will have made a fine start long before hot weather comes.

City gardeners can use electricity to furnish heat for the hotbed, but suburbanites who can obtain fresh strawy manure may use it, in a fermented state.

Tuesday, Feb. 18.

It will soon be time to transplant or shift house plants. A good average soil consists of one-half garden loam, one-quarter sand, and one-quarter leafmold or rotted manure. Soil can usually be procured from the local plant grower, who will mix it to accommodate the requirements of individual plants.

Wednesday, Feb. 19.

Perennials in the garden may need to be divided; some may not have been satisfactory and should be replaced with others, and empty spots may need planting.

Screen the garage by using annual vines. Hide the telephone post by planting a pyramidal poplar in front of it. Use some of the low tree forms as a screen along the rear fence, but do not overplant on the small area.

Thursday, Feb. 20.

Pruning should be undertaken for some kinds of plants at this season. Many home gardeners prune all plants in spring. Prune to keep the plants in a vigorous condition and in such a manner that they retain their natural form, unless they are planted as a hedge.

Fruit trees should be pruned to keep the heads low and open. Early pruning should be done so the branches are kept growing out from the main trunk. Avoid formation of a crotch. A tree that is once brought into good bearing condition requires little pruning.

Friday, Feb. 21.

Watch for red spiders in house plants. Syringe the plants occasionally; keep humidors on the radiators; dust with sulphur on both the upper and lower sides of the foliage.

Bulbous plants, such as the hyacinth, narcissus, and tulip, should be kept growing until the foliage turns yellow. When this occurs lay the pots on their sides in a cool place and next fall plant in the garden.

Saturday, Feb. 22.

Shade in city gardens is frequently a problem. Here is a list of some plants that should do very well under such conditions: Shrubs: Five leaved aralia, Japanese kerria, privet, Japanese yew. Perennials: Bugle [ajuga reptans], plantain lily, moneywort, Japanese spurge, periwinkle, violas, lily of the valley, ferns. Vines: Hall's honeysuckle, Virginia creeper, Boston ivy, fleece vine, wild grape, and wisteria.

HOW ARCHITECT DESIGNS HOUSE FOR OWN USES

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

We present today an unusually fine example of the modern with a number of very forward looking features. It shows the many possibilities available today for better design and building, and while it is a larger house than we usually discuss in this department its points of beauty and interest are those which may be adroitly incorporated into homes of less size and cost.

It is the residence of Winston Elting, architect, of Lake Forest.

House Overlooks Ravine.

The plan was dictated largely by a peculiar and beautiful site.

On the south side of the house there is a deep ravine running east to Lake Michigan. Service, garage, entries, hall, and gallery face the north. All the principal rooms open to the southeast or the west, and by placing the building on the north property line, maximum space was reserved for gardens and lawns to the south between the house and the ravine.

As the architect says: "The plan was the principal thing and the elevations followed along."

[This is one of the most sensible trends of contemporary architecture.]

An effort was made to keep the house as low as possible to subjugate it to large elms, maples, and birches on the property, and natural brick and redwood was used on the exterior to blend the house with the landscape.

Screen Separates Rooms.

The plan is open and there is generous use of large glass window areas as well as glass block on the north side.

The house has nine rooms, three and one-half baths, two porches and two sun decks. These decks and porches afford close relation to the home interior and the out of doors.

Among the very interesting personal provisions of the plan, and one which is practical and charming in many homes, is the provision of a folding screen between living room and dining space to permit combination or separation of rooms as desired.

Again, the master bedroom is on the first floor, and is reached thru a gallery on the north side of the house. This secures for the bedroom a semi-isolation. Opening from this gallery there is also a combination room: An architect's work space and alternate guest room when occasion demands.

Glass Block on North.

The problem of north light and privacy for the gallery was handled with glass block. This same type of block was used to give light to garage, mud room, stairwell and pantry off garage. There is also glass block used on the north wall of the work room in order to borrow light from the gallery.

On the second floor there are three bedrooms and large bath and two sun decks. The west deck is for the children and the east deck for the parents. Solid railings have been installed to shield these spots from the wind.

The heating of the home is by a new method known as panel heating, which has been installed in the ceilings thruout the house. The system is entirely automatic, oil fired, with water temperature control and circulation provided by electrically controlled mixture of water from the boiler with the pump-recirculated flow thru the system.

LEARN BY DOING IS SCHOOL CREDO IN BLUE ISLAND

Preparation for Life Dominates Study.

BY GLADYS PRIDDY.

Doing instead of talking about how to do—that is the moving force of Blue Island Community High school where nearly 1,400 boys and girls study, recite, sing, and play according to that plan. It is all part of the education philosophy of the superintendent, H. L. Richards, who expresses the idea as, "Less theory — more practice."

H. L. Richards.

These Blue Island boys and girls, schooled in practicality as part of their curriculum, will be the Citizens of Tomorrow at 4:30 o'clock Tuesday afternoon on the W-G-N program of that name. This feature, conducted by Philip Maxwell of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, is given by the high school selected for the week, and students of that school make up the studio audience. Thus, Blue Island High school boys and girls will be on both sides of the mike.

Two Units in School.

E. Glenn Griffin, chorus director, will lead his singers in a program of songs prepared since the ASCAP ban has made it impossible for them to use their most frequently practiced and best developed numbers. "That ruling applies even to the tune of our school song," Griffin said. He is not only chorus director but also literary editor of the school newspaper, Red and White.

Blue Island is divided into two parts, the North school which houses the freshmen, and the main building where the upper classmen matriculate. "We didn't plan it that way," says Mr. Richards, "it just happened." The freshman building was originally a junior high school. It came into its present status when the junior high school system was abandoned and the student population had grown so large that the main structure was too small. Students come from the communities of Calumet Park, Robbins, Crestwood, Worth, Chicago Ridge, Alsip, and Blue Island.

The Blue Island High school was established in 1887 with a two year course of study. By 1903 a high school district was established and four teachers were employed. This was under J. E. Lemon, who had been elected superintendent of schools in 1894. Mr. Lemon retired in 1935 after establishing the longest record for superintendent of schools in Illinois. He died recently. The present superintendent came to Blue Island as an economics teacher in 1928, and he succeeded Mr. Lemon in 1935.

Gives Meaning to Learning.

Ever since that time Mr. Richards has devoted himself to developing his educational ideal. He explains, "No subject matter has any place in the curriculum unless it can be definitely tied up to some phase of the living world. Our greatest concern in educating youth is to prepare our boys and girls for as near a perfect assumption of society's responsibilities as is possible. They should not become just automatic cogs in a machine; they should know what every move means and to where it leads. The teaching of facts as bare facts is silly nonsense."

At least two courses have come into being because of this outlook. One is the history of the west and the other is conservation. The first is described as "a social history of western United States with some archeological and anthropological

Activities Program Reaches Every Student at Blue Island Community High School

WORKER DELUGE TAXES CAPACITY OF HOMES, ROAD

Trailers Help Meet House Problem.

BY WARD WALKER.

Will county's $53,000,000 bonanza, the Wilmington munitions works, already has caused community headaches in the neighboring towns, a survey revealed yesterday. Problems caused by the boom threaten to become acute during the next 60 days when the present temporary working force of 6,400 men is to be tripled.

Housing for workers is the principal problem, according to civic leaders in the communities, but others, such as traffic, police regulation, sanitation, and lack of business facilities, have also appeared.

The new munitions works, on which construction is just getting under way, will consist of an explosives factory with an estimated annual capacity of 144 million pounds, and a shell loading factory. These factories, known as the Kankakee Ordnance works and the Elwood plant, are being built on 65 square miles of farm land on both sides of alternate U. S. highway 66, about 19 miles south of Joliet. The Kankakee river borders the area on the west side, the village of Elwood on the north, and the town of Wilmington is about three miles south of the southern boundary.

Too Much Money—Too Sudden!

"Too much money, too many people, too sudden," residents of Joliet, Wilmington, and Elwood agreed, sums up the reasons for their present difficulties.

Last September the communities were resting with the dignity of towns more than 100 years old. Many farmers of the district had inherited their land from the original homesteaders.

Within three months the government had purchased the land for the munitions works and yesterday the area was dotted with work crews laying railroad track, pouring foundations, and erecting the framework of small groups of buildings.

Nearly 300 farmers were displaced, of whom some 130 are still in the area. They have until March 1 to vacate the premises. Their homes, for the most part, are being demolished.

Army officials estimated that within 60 days 6,000 men will be at work on the Elwood plant and 12,000 on the Kankakee plant. When the projects are finished sometime this year 5,000 workers—half of them women—will work in former and 3,000 men in the latter.

Tap Chicago Labor Pools.

Altho most of the workers on the project to date have been taken from Will and Grundy counties, the supply of men is limited and labor pools in Chicago must be tapped. Skilled workmen from all over the country also have been called to the job.

Housing conditions in the neighborhood of the project have been bad for the last five years, according to real estate men. There has been little building, few homes were available, and rents were high.

The flood of workers has exhausted the limited supply, rents have climbed still higher, and an increased demand is in prospect as the project continues. Adding to the difficulty is the fact that all of the construction workers will be thru in less than a year.

For this reason civic leaders have warned against extensive building programs, protesting that "ghost towns" would inevitably result. So far there has been no estimate of permanent needs, altho groups in each community are studying the problem.

Communities Face Big Job.

The delicate task of providing adequate permanent facilities, of avoiding over expansion, and of caring for

E. L. BAKER, 9432 Longwood drive, received a letter recently from his first cousin, Florence Holmes, in Lonsdale, Westmoreland, England. Part of the letter, which was dated Dec. 13, 1940, said, "All in America are helping so generously but personally I think it better she should not enter the war herself. An impartial umpire will be needed to help clear up the mess and make the peace later on."

Two south siders were among the seven park policemen who were rewarded with police merit badges by the Chicago park district recently. The awards, which total $600, were given for the fourth year by R. J. Dunham, park district president.

The fifth prize was shared by Patrolman Joseph Moriarty, 431 West Garfield boulevard, and Raymond Earsman, 10315 Avenue H, for their quick apprehension on very slim clues of three men wanted for kidnaping, robbery, and attempted rape of a young woman at Mark White square last Dec. 9. Patrolman Moriarty, who joined the force in 1927, received first place in the merit awards for 1938 and honorable mention in 1939 for outstanding work.

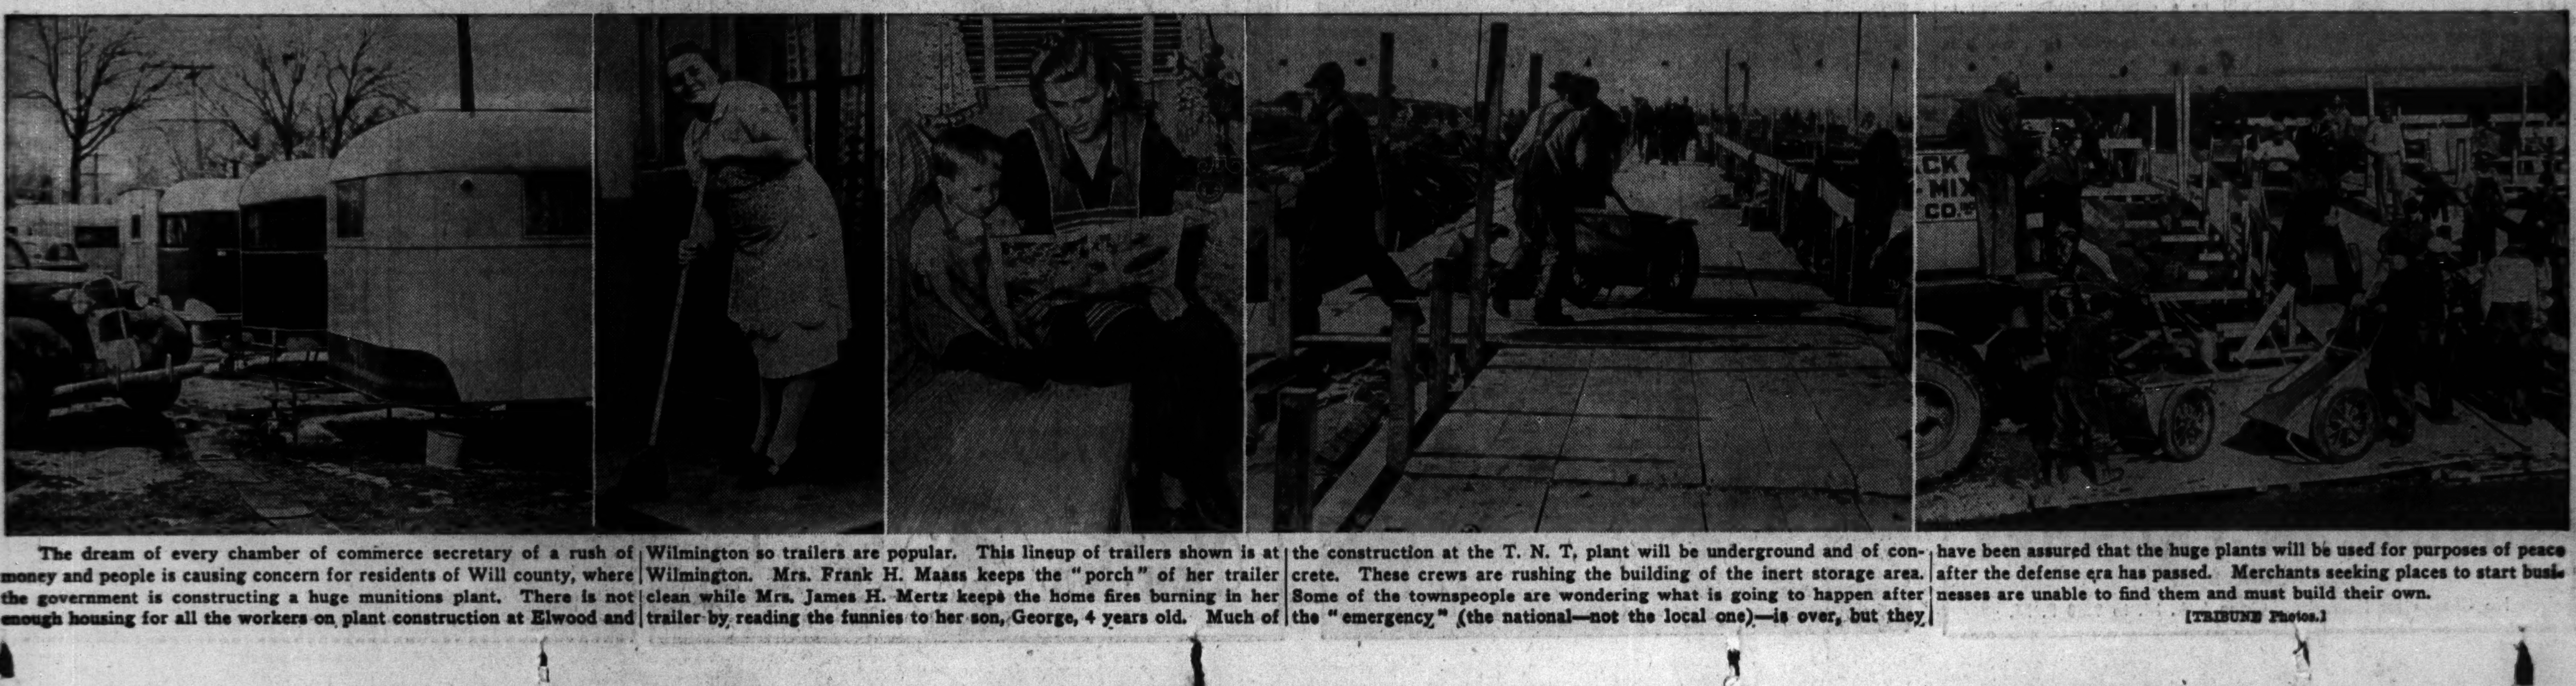
Will County Towns Struggle with the Problems of Defense Millions and Where to Put Thousands of Workers



The dream of every chamber of commerce secretary of a rush of money and people is causing concern for residents of Will county, where the government is constructing a huge munitions plant. There is not enough housing for all the workers on plant construction at Elwood and Wilmington so trailers are popular. This lineup of trailers shown is at Wilmington. Mrs. Frank H. Maass keeps the "porch" of her trailer clean while Mrs. James H. Mertz keeps the home fires burning in her trailer by reading the funnies to her son, George, 4 years old. Much of the construction at the T. N. T. plant will be underground and of concrete. These crews are rushing the building of the inert storage area. Some of the townspeople are wondering what is going to happen after the "emergency" (the national—not the local one)—is over, but they have been assured that the huge plants will be used for purposes of peace after the defense era has passed. Merchants seeking places to start businesses are unable to find them and must build their own.

Voice of the Southwest Side

Readers of the Metropolitan Section are invited to contribute to this column on matters of neighborhood interest. Readers should confine themselves to 200 or 300 words. Full names and addresses must be given. No manuscripts will be returned. Address Voice of the Southwest Side, The Tribune.

CITY TOO BIG?

I suppose that unless a city is planned on paper before a single building is put up the town just grows like Topsy and inconveniences grow with it. When railroads were first built into Chicago from the southwest, probably no one thought the city would grow so far south and so far west as it has.

Now we residents of the far southwest side find ourselves cut off by a series of railroad embankments. Only the main arterials are good for east-west travel, and many of the north-south streets are cut off also. I know that building a railroad underpass is a long, expensive job, but I think the great southwest expansion deserves a great deal of consideration for facilitating traffic.

I propose a permanent program for the elimination of dead end streets on the southwest side, and I predict a better traffic accident record if such a program were carried out. J. M.

APPLAUSE FOR HOME WORK.

I have noticed stories in the Metropolitan section detailing projects that some of our southwest side improvement associations hope to accomplish in 1941. I want to applaud these programs and commend these associations. We are told that this is a period of national emergency, and the natural tendency is to neglect affairs at home to look after affairs of the nation and of foreign countries, too, from reports. I believe that a house in order is the best preparation for any kind of emergency. Therefore, I cheer these improvement associations who refuse to let the weeds grow at home while foraging afield. They are doing a patriotic duty in keeping their communities in order. L. J. P.

WANTS DAMEN BUSES.

Will some one please tell me when the buses are going to be put into service on Damen avenue? I heard not so long ago that buses were to run from 87th street to the 74th street carline. I am only two blocks from Damen and in the 82d block of Wolcott avenue. The nearest line is at 79th street or Ashland avenue. The extra service would be especially appreciated in cold weather. There are a lot of people out this way who have to hike to transportation. So how about it, streetcar officials? D. H.

CHURCH, PASTOR WILL NOTE 40 YEARS TOGETHER

Our Redeemer Was Founded by Preacher.

Forty years of community service will be celebrated by both a church and its pastor today. The church is Our Redeemer Lutheran at 6430 South Harvard avenue, and the pastor is the Rev. Guido Schuessler, nearly 68 years old and still noted for his oratory.

Our Redeemer was the first Lutheran mission at which the English language was used exclusively. The first public service took place in old St. Stephen's church building on Englewood avenue on Feb. 17, 1901. Today's anniversary celebration will be at 10:45 o'clock this morning, with the Rev. Martin Walker, Buffalo, N. Y., president of the English district, as guest speaker.

The Rev. Guido Schuessler received his theological training at Concordia seminary in St. Louis. He was graduated from there in 1894 and began his preaching in Coal City, Ill. He remained in Coal City until he was called to Chicago to found his present church.

As Our Redeemer church grew in membership the pastor began establishing new missions. Altogether he founded four other congregations on the south side. From these four organizations four other churches have sprung. If the Rev. Mr. Schuessler had kept all communicants within the mother church his present congregation would be 7,000 instead of its 1,600 adult communicants.

His son, the Rev. Luther Schuessler, has been associate pastor at Our Redeemer since 1932. Before that the younger Schuessler, also an alumnus of Concordia seminary, held pastorates in Detroit and Maywood. There are two other Schuessler sons, Dr. Elmer Schuessler is a dentist and a lieutenant in the navy stationed at Great Lakes and Ralph is an instructor at Concordia college in River Forest.

GAGE PARK CLUB THUMBS THRU ITS 35 YEAR RECORD

Birthday Dinner to Note Civic Works.

Church groups, school organizations, women's societies, business, and service clubs will join in a celebration of the Gage Park Citizens' Improvement club's 35th birthday at 8 o'clock Tuesday evening in Gage park fieldhouse. Benjamin S. Adamowski, former Democratic floor leader of the Illinois house of representatives, and now an attorney for the county board of election commissioners, will be the principal speaker.

The improvement club is one of the oldest civic groups in the city. The charter was granted on Feb. 8, 1906, but club meetings had been held regularly since the previous November. Charles Sagert was one of the founders. He served as president for 28 years, and now, still an active member, is honorary president.

Count Their Successes.

Residents of the Gage Park district credit many community improvements to the club which has maintained a record of functioning for the purpose its name indicates. The fire house at 52d street and Western avenue was built thru club efforts in 1912. The club is credited with bringing about the building of the Gage Park elementary school at 55th street and Maplewood avenue in 1916. An extension of the Western avenue street car line was brought about by the club in that same period.

The early '20s brought in a boom in club membership. The roll call numbered more than 1,000 as Gage Park residents united to oppose the special assessments for the widening of Western avenue. In the end, the city instead of property owners paid the bill, according to club members who like to recall that bit of excitement.

Fieldhouse and High School.

After the club had sent committees to the old South Park board for five years, Gage park fieldhouse was built in 1927.

The latest achievement is the Gage Park High school which will graduate its first class in June.

This project represents many years of civic effort to relieve the overcrowding at Lindblom High school. The building, which is located at 56th and Rockwell streets, was begun in 1931, but work was halted for lack of funds. The iron framework stood until 1938 when the Improvement club, Gage Park Woman's club, and Gage Park Elementary School P.-T. A. worked to bring about completion of the project. By the fall of 1939 the new school was opened.

Streamlining the intersection of 55th street and Western avenue is the club's current project. There is a sharp jog where Garfield boulevard becomes 55th street.

Robert W. Schulze is president of the club; S. Charles Bubacz, vice president; Harry Hehl, recording secretary; Mrs. J. K. Beers, treasurer; Steve Hajicek, financial secretary; Martin Grabowski, sergeant at arms; August W. Steinert, chairman of the executive board, and Jerry Pech, attorney.

SCOUTS TO HAVE FATHER AND SON DINNER PARTIES

Mrs. L. M. Dangremond, president of the Mothers' club of Boy Scout Troop No. 655, will be in charge of the dinner the club will serve at 6:30 o'clock Friday evening in Morgan Park Congregational church 112th street and Hoyne avenue. The occasion will be a fathers and sons' banquet.

Mrs. L. M. Dangremond. [Mandel Photo.]

Mrs. Dangremond will be assisted by the following: Mrs. Otto Schenk, Mrs. Byron Deming, Mrs. Harry Krummel, Mrs. Joseph Johnson, Mrs. Henry O. Daniels, Mrs. Harold S. Foyer, Mrs. C. R. Ecklund, Mrs. Cedric Hale, Mrs. A. T. Perry, Mrs. W. N. Brooks, Mrs. Harley D. Jones, Mrs. Clarence Killebrew, and Mrs. Julia Farrington. A motion picture, "Batting Around the American League," will follow the dinner.

The third annual father and son's banquet of Troop 647 will take place at 7:30 o'clock Thursday evening at Messiah Lutheran church, 64th street and Wolcott avenue. Capt. James P. O'Donovan, former British army officer, will be on the program. There will be a colored movie, "Trail to Citizenship." Harry Tannehill is president of the Parents' club, which is sponsoring the dinner.

DELUGE OF ARMS BUSINESS GIVES 3 TOWNS HEADACHE

But Will County Makes Best of Bonanza.

the temporary workers is the primary concern of each community.

In Joliet [pop. 42,365], according to John B. Anderson, attorney and real estate dealer, a five room house that rented for $35 a month last year would now command a minimum of $50 if one were available.

"There is a very great shortage of homes," he added, "despite the fact that there is more building under way in Joliet now than during all of the last 10 years. Even building now going on and planned won't be enough, however."

C. J. Kellem, executive secretary of the Joliet Association of Commerce, said that many of the workers now commute from points as far as 80 miles away and this has complicated the survey of housing needs, both immediate and future.

"Our housing committee is wrestling with the problem," Kellem said, "and we estimate that Joliet will gain about 400 families when the plants are put into operation—but frankly the figure is just a guess."

Traffic Problem Complicated.

The commuting has created a traffic problem since alternate U. S. highway 66 is the only thorofare leading to the factory sites. Thruout the day and night there is a continuous stream of heavy trucks and cars over the road, which is now patroled by the state highway police.

Rooming houses are crowded in each town and the lowest rents are at the flat rate of $1 a day.

Left more or less to their own devices, the temporary workers have resorted in many instances to trailer camps, altho the communities have frowned on their growth because of insanitary conditions. These trailer camps are found along the highway and surrounding the towns.

George Bryan manages the Five Oaks trailer camp on the outskirts of Wilmington [pop. 3,000] where 28 trailers are parked. Most of these are owned by the occupants who pay $8 a month for the parking privilege.

However, Bryan rents trailers for from $30 to $35 a month. These will accommodate four persons and the rental includes gas, light, water, and sanitary privileges. Under the influence of a balmy day, Bryan's camp was a sea of mud.

Opinions on Trailers Vary.

"This isn't so bad," said Mrs. Opal Mertz, whose husband is a welder. "I like living in a trailer fine and Georgie [her 4 year old son] is sure happy. Mud? Say, every trailer camp has mud in the spring!"

Her opinion wasn't shared by Mrs. Paul Williams, whose husband is an engineer. She has been living in the camp for five weeks.

"I just don't like them," she said. "It's what I call just existing inside four walls."

The population of Wilmington was about 2,200 before the boom began. Since construction started every vacant room has been filled, two new restaurants and a new billiard parlor have opened, and the theater and the two taverns are doing a land office business.

"I've tripled the police force," said Mayor A. P. Oswald. "That is, I've added two men. We're getting them uniforms and they'll be able to handle the situation nicely."

He said he had received complaints about immoral houses but had not found any.

"There may be a few out in the county, but I doubt it," the mayor added. Several citizens, however, said the night life tempo has increased greatly and wouldn't measure up to a high moral standard.

All Available Stores Rented.

Miss Alice Carroll, employed in the Felix Keeley real estate agency, said every available store in Wilmington has been rented. Rentals have climbed from 50 to 75 per cent in the business district, she estimated.

"Nearly every day men from Chicago come down here looking for places in which to open hamburger stands, restaurants, and taverns," she continued. "Some of them said they are going to build, but prices of lots have gone up, too."

Mayor Oswald said the money and the workers are piling up "pretty fast" but forecasts Wilmington will be able to handle her share, if given time.

An equally optimistic view was taken by the Rev. Harry E. Porter, of the Elwood Presbyterian church, which has 60 families in its congregation.

"There's no doubt the first effect of all this will be detrimental," the Rev. Porter said, "but the standards of the community and the church will not suffer in the long run."

Altho owned by the government, the plants will be operated on a cost plus fixed fee basis by two eastern firms—E. I. du Pont de Nemours and Sanderson and Porter company, New York.

On the basis of 144 million pounds of explosives per year, the du Pont company would show a profit of approximately $708,000 for supervising the manufacture. Sanderson and Porter, according to the contract, will receive $660,000 a year.

LEARN BY DOING IS SCHOOL CREDO IN BLUE ISLAND

Preparation for Working World Dominant.

background. Emphasis is placed upon the life and customs of the people with the express purpose of illustrating how living of an earlier period affects the living of today."

The conservation class is set up "to make people conscious of the quantity and quality of our resources, the extent to which these resources have been used or misused. . . . Since all wealth comes directly or indirectly from these resources . . . to Americans, it [conservation] must become a way of living." Safety is part of the conservation course.

Few Required Courses.

As chairman of the Committee of Eighteen, a state group interested in guidance, Richards has had the opportunity to carry his ideas to other parts of Illinois. His philosophy has attracted attention to the extent that an associate professor from the University of Illinois, Max Goodson, is now working on curriculum organization at the school.

This project is to take the material pertaining to health and social responsibility and extend it thru the entire curriculum. The whole scheme is to tie up factual material with the practicalities of life.

There are few required courses at Blue Island. English and social studies are stressed. All sophomores must take commercial geography; all seniors must study economics. Students can listen to themselves talk in recordings. While the physical education department is limited, Blue Island students have many clubs for recreational facilities. Saddle club members start for their meetings at 8:15 o'clock these frosty mornings. A meeting is a morning ride out of Stalford stables at La Grange. A spring horse show is the present project. Bowling, badminton, and rifle shooting are among school activities. The camera club has achieved sufficient proficiency that members are taking the pictures for the school annual, Chips. There is a studio and darkroom in the school.

Prepare for Jobs.

The mechanical drawing room is considered one of the best lighted in the state. It was especially constructed. There are shops in both the freshman and main buildings, but industrial arts are not emphasized at Blue Island. Since just 15 per cent of the students go to college, Mr. Richards feels that their high school time should be a preparation for life.

He thinks that industry itself should assume a large portion of the training of workers. This theory of training is reflected in the activity of the Junior Classical league. Blue Island is one of 30 Illinois schools having chapters in this national organization. The high school biology club is enrolled as a member of the Illinois Junior Academy of Science.

Contrary to what appears to be the principal's conception of background education, the study of languages or the so-called cultural subjects is not stressed. "Let them study what they must use," he declares. "They'll need English and economics every day of their lives." A mathematician himself, Richards believes that a student may acquire the same training in reasoning in subjects he likes rather than by struggling thru advanced mathematics courses.

Charles B. Price is freshman principal and head of the freshman building. The other class principals are: Clarence E. Ames, seniors; Birt E. Frobish, juniors, and Rufus Caawe, sophomores. These class principals and four other teachers make up what Mr. Richards calls "the cabinet." All questions pertaining to the school generally go to this group. The cabinet functions in close association with the student council.

Both student body and faculty are looking forward to the grading and development of the recently purchased athletic field, a 29⅛ acre tract near the senior school. When finished, they believe it will be one of the finest athletic fields in the Chicago area.

Dr. Frank W. Tracy, Blue Island dentist, is board president, and Emil J. Blatt is secretary. The other members are Louis J. Biedenkopf, Clifford L. Aulwurm, and Fred A. Hohman. Blatt and Biedenkopf have served since the community high school district, No. 218, was established in 1927.

Draws from 23 Schools.

The district draws from 23 grade schools, and many students come from nonhigh school territory in Tinley Park, Oak Forest, Midlothian, Oak Lawn, Palos Park, and Orland. Therefore, school authorities believe the athletic field will become a popular center and serve a popular need in this area.

Fourteen teachers look after the 425 freshmen while 33 instructors conduct classes in the main building. Miss Ruth J. McHenry, chairman of the English department, has the longest record of service. She has been in the Blue Island High school for 27 years. Second in service is William T. Ewing, chemistry and mathematics teacher, with a 23 year record. The public relations representative for the school is a social science teacher, Miss Beatrice Krantz.

Sources of Name.

The community of Blue Island is interesting historically. Its name, according to conjectures, comes from the fact that it is a ridge of land surrounded by lowlands. The vapors rising from it are bluish, hence the name, Blue Island. Then, too, there used to be acres of blue irises there. And, according to another report, a tribe of Indians painted their faces blue and were called the "Blues of the Ridge." At any rate, hunters and traders were calling the spot Blue Island in 1832.

W-G-N TO GIVE R.O.T.C. PARTY ON WASHINGTON DAY

Cadets, Officers to See 'My Maryland.'

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

The second annual Washington's birthday party, to be given in tribute to the R. O. T. C. by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, will be held in W-G-N's main studio next Saturday evening, Feb. 22, in connection with the broadcast of the operetta, "My Maryland" on the Chicago Theater of the Air.

"My Maryland," with Marion Claire as the star, and Walter Cassel, baritone, will be broadcast from 9 to 10 o'clock over the coast to coast network of the Mutual Broadcasting system. The birthday party, however, will start at 7:30 p. m. and will continue for a half hour after the broadcast.

R. O. T. C. cadets and officers, educational and military leaders thruout the Chicagoland area, will be guests at this party with Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE TRIBUNE, as the host.

400 Cadets in Uniform.

Among the 600 studio guests there will be more than 400 R. O. T. C. cadets in uniform. Of these some 200 will be Chicago R. O. T. C. cadets who have received Tribune awards—gold, silver, and bronze medals—for excellence in military training during the last semester. The guests will come from nearly 70 institutions in Chicagoland that have R. O. T. C. units or other courses in military training.

The Chicago cadets will represent the units of 27 public high schools, St. Mel's High school and the Morgan Park Military academy. From Cook county outside of Chicago will come other delegations, representing Evanston Township High school, the Glenwood Manual Training school, and Northwestern university's R. O. T. C. unit.

Military Leaders Invited.

Besides visitors from Gary, Aurora, Waukegan, and Joliet there will be groups from many universities, colleges, and academies thruout Illinois, Wisconsin, Indiana, Michigan, Iowa, and Missouri.

Special guests are to include Brig. Gen. Charles H. Bonesteel, commanding general of the 6th corps area; Col. John T. Rhett, representing the R. O. T. C. in the corps area; James B. McCahey, president Chicago board of education; Maj. Frank L. Beals, assistant superintendent of Chicago schools in charge of military training, who will represent Superintendent of Schools William H. Johnson, and Col. W. F. Morrison, professor of military science and tactics in the public schools. Col. McCormick and these guests are to speak briefly after the broadcast.

Prior to the broadcast visitors from distant points will make a tour of THE TRIBUNE, starting at 6:45 p. m. At 7:30 the visitors will assemble in the main studio to view the sound pictures, "Trees to Tribunes" and the new Tribune sports film, "The All American Way."

Philip Maxwell of The Tribune editorial staff, who has made many of the R. O. T. C. awards, will be in charge of the program after the broadcast. William A. Bacher produces the Theater of the Air. Henry Weber is the musical director.

RYAN'S LICENSE BUREAU QUIZZES BACK TOMORROW

W-G-N's Marriage License Bureau Romances, conducted by Quin Ryan, will return to W-G-N tomorrow and be heard from 1:30 to 1:45 p. m. each Monday, Wednesday and Friday.

Each day three or four couples are selected from the prospective brides and grooms in the marriage license offices of County Clerk Michael J. Flynn—the world's busiest marriage license bureau. Under Quin's guidance, these couples give their ideas on marriage, tell how they first met and their plans for the future.

"This should be a banner year for our program," Ryan predicted. "At least there will be no lack of material, for in addition to the Cook county license bureau being the busiest in the world, the Association for Family Living estimates that there will be 12,000 more marriages before July this year than in any normal year."

As an added feature Quin plans to interview stage and screen stars from time to time.

MIRROR REVUE TO BE PREVIEWED ON CHICAGO HOUR

A radio preview of the 16th annual University of Chicago Mirror Revue will be given over W-G-N and the coast to coast Mutual Broadcasting System on In Chicago Tonight at 7:30 p. m. next Thursday. The show is student written and produced.

Margaret Exter.

Ruth Wehlan.

Since the university is commemorating its 50th anniversary, the producers are emphasizing this theme in the revue. Songs and sketches cover the whole period from 1891 to 1941.

This will be the first time that a Mirror show has been presented on the air. After the preview the show will have a run of three nights from Feb. 27 to March 1 at Mandel hall on the campus.

Those who will participate in the broadcast include Ruth Wehlan, Margaret Exter, Betty Ann Evans, Hattie Payne, Albert Droste, Alice Molitor, Dick Lieber, Frank Reker, Pat McGee, and Norm Eaton. The latter two are alumni. Miss Ruth Steel is president of the Mirror production.

Production will be handled by William A. Bacher, and the radio backdrops will be provided by the W-G-N Dance orchestra under Harold Stokes and the W-G-N Chorus with Robert Trendler.

OPERATIC MUSIC TO BE FEATURE OF CONCERT HOUR

Marion Claire to Sing Verdi's 'Ave Maria.'

Operatic music will occupy a featured spot on the Chicagoland Concert hour to be broadcast over W-G-N and the Mutual network at 8:30 p. m. next Wednesday. Henry Weber, musical director of W-G-N and general director of the Chicago Opera company, will direct the W-G-N Concert orchestra and augmented chorus. Marion Claire, star of the stage, opera, and radio, will be the soloist.

The three operatic selections to be aired will be the ever popular, rousing march from the opera "Tannhauser" by Wagner, "Ave Maria" from "Othello" by Verdi, and the "Habanera" from Bizet's opera, "Carmen." Miss Claire's principal solo of the evening will be the "Ave Maria."

Another highlight on the program will find Mr. Weber and the concert orchestra in the spotlight as they play the sparkling, gay "Artists' Life" waltz by Johann Strauss.

The complete program follows:

"Tannhauser March" ... Wagner
Chorus and Orchestra.
"Ave Maria from Othello" ... Verdi
Marion Claire.
"Habanera from Carmen" ... Bizet
Orchestra.
Address ... Col. Robert R. McCormick
"Artists' Life" ... Strauss

1,518 SMITHS ASK FOR TICKETS TO SMITH PROGRAM

More than 1,518 Smiths of Chicago have requested tickets for the première of "Whispering Smith," new W-G-N program which will be heard the first time, Friday, Feb. 28. Last week W-G-N officials issued an invitation for the "Whispering Smith" première to all Smiths of Chicago. They have been responding ever since. Special invitations have been issued to Clayton F. Smith, president of the county board, and other notable Smiths.

Those who responded first will get tickets to the opening show. Others will be accommodated later.

"Whispering Smith," the new program, will be a special radio adaptation of Frank Spearman's novel of the same title. It will relate the adventures of a legendary character who protected the interests of the underdogs in the development of the west by the railroads. An expert marksman, a man feared by all his enemies, Smith received his nickname because whenever danger threatened, he lost his voice and could speak only in a whisper. This whisper will sound frequently during the episodes of the W-G-N program.

Blair Walliser will produce the "Whispering Smith" series, which will be heard every Friday from 7 to 7:30 p. m. [C. S. T.]. Pictures linked with the episodes of the series will be published in the graphic section of the CHICAGO SUNDAY TRIBUNE.

YOUNG TEACHER STUDENTS TO AID AT SETTLEMENT

Will Supplant WPA at Hyde Park Club.

A scientific student volunteer relationship between the Chicago Teachers' college and the Hyde Park Neighborhood club, a settlement house, was worked out last week in an effort to provide future Chicago teachers with a better understanding of boys and girls. Beginning this week, 52 students at the college will spend at least one period a week in actual supervision of children's activities at the club.

The plan is unique, according to J. G. Guinessy, director of the club. The college will see that each volunteer is fitted for a certain department of the club's program. Students will be examined by the faculty and judged on their interests, capabilities and background. Then, at regular intervals in their work at the club, the student volunteers will be obliged to keep careful records of their experiences.

"Our purpose," explained Mr. Guinessy, "is to teach students how to instruct and guide children without compulsion. We expect this to be of great importance to them when they ultimately go into the classroom, where rule usually is by force."

Of necessity, this will mean the eventual elimination of WPA recreational leaders and WPA art project workers and of all teachers and student workers other than those sent from the Chicago Teachers' college. The new plan, Mr. Guinessy pointed out, should be of more value both to the workers and the club. Only the club's current salaried staff consisting of the director, three boys' workers and two girls' workers will be retained.

ROTARY TO LINK U. S. WITH SOUTH AMERICA THRU W-G-N-MUTUAL

Rotary International, thru its Chicago headquarters, has completed arrangements with W-G-N and the Mutual Broadcasting system for the presentation of a series of exchange programs with South and Central American countries from 2 to 2:30 p. m. each Sunday.

The broadcasts, international in scope, will be presented as a contribution to the promotion of good will and understanding between the peoples of the western hemisphere. The program will be given world-wide coverage thru the short wave facilities of WRUL in Boston.

The first broadcast next Sunday will be a special program commemorating Rotary's 36th anniversary. It will present a rapid-fire dramatization of the history and activities of Rotary International, depicting its growth from one club to 5,000 clubs with 210,000 members in 76 different countries. An address by Paul P. Harris, who founded the first Rotary club in Chicago in 1905, will be a feature of the broadcast.

10 WIN APPEALS FOR DEFERMENT OF ARMY DUTY

Four on Southwest Side Refused Delay.

Ten of 14 southwest siders who sought draft deferment were successful in their pleas during the week ending last Tuesday, according to the records of the eight draft appeals boards in Cook county. Only four of the appeals were denied.

Six of the ten appeals were granted by the appeals board. In the other four cases, the appeals were dismissed because the appellants' local draft boards had given them deferred classifications since their appeals were filed.

Grounds for Appeals.

Those whose appeals were granted, and the grounds on which the actions were taken, are:

John Ilka Jr., 11831 La Salle street,, dependency of parents and brother; James Darmody, 1162 West 80th street, dependency of mother and niece; Robert Haglund, 10707 South Albany avenue, dependency of mother, sister, and brother; Harold Nagel, 15130 Vine avenue, Harvey, dependency of wife; Berthier Gibbs, 4300 Drexel boulevard, dependency of wife; Henry Fiebig, 1824 North Kedzie avenue [registered in Flossmoor], dependency of wife.

Those granted reclassification by their local boards were:

Frank Bartonek, 1755 Garfield boulevard, dependency of wife; Irwin Bandemer, 6632 South Hermitage avenue, dependency of parents; James Rouen, ,120 West 95th street, physical; Steve Steffan Jr., 11823 South Peoria street, physical.

Both Rouen and Steffan had sought deferred classifications on grounds of dependency.

Four Appeals Denied.

Those whose appeals were denied, and the grounds on which they asked deferment were:

Thomas Dennsion, 15112 Paulina avenue, Harvey, dependency of wife; Elmer Rasche, 15533 Center avenue, Harvey, dependency of parents, and cousin; Jack Mott, 15521 Myrtle avenue, Harvey, dependency of mother and sister, and Joseph Lillis, 7935 South Ada street, dependency of parents.

By last Tuesday night 398 cases had been disposed of by the eight Cook county appeals boards. Of these, 90 appeals were granted, 204 were denied, and 104 cases were dismissed because of reclassification by local draft boards.

START FILLING FEBRUARY QUOTA IN ARMY DRAFT

Fifteen volunteers were among the 24 southwest side men drafted into the army by the Chicago induction station during the first two days of its task of filling its February selective service quota, which began on Monday.

These 24 were included in 71 selectees chosen from Chicagoland counties, 45 of whom were volunteers. In addition, the Chicago station also accepted for army training 174 men from downstate counties, including 47 colored draftees, all of them furnished by the Cairo board in Alexander county.

The job of catching up with the Chicagoland quota is a big one. Of the 6,914 men to be inducted in Illinois before the March quota is reached, 55 per cent, or about 3,800 are expected to come from Cook county alone. That called for an average of about 300 inductions a day for the 13 inducting days remaining in the month as of last Tuesday night.

Fails to Appeal.

One of the southwest siders drafted last week was Peter Zagone, 26 years old, 1417 Parnell avenue, Chicago Heights, who has a wife and a 5 months old child. Zagone, a building worker, expressed surprise that he was drafted, but was unable to appeal because the time limit for this step had expired.

All the southwest side men accepted on Monday and Tuesday were sent by the Chicago Heights draft board. Here are their names, ages, addresses, and occupations, the letter V denoting those who volunteered for service without waiting for their order numbers to be called:

SEES PLAY LOT YOUNGSTERS AS NATION'S HOPE

Boyish Sports Are Part of Defense, Says Peel.

So says blue eyed, Irish born Peter J. Peel, 20 West Jackson boulevard, the man who is in charge of the Chicago recreation commission committee to extend play spaces for the city's youngsters. Mr. Peel, for many years a national figure in the sports field and a world's record holder in cricket, believes that athletics should be considered one of the most important factors in the nation's defense.

He goes farther than that. "I think," he says slowly, "you might almost define democracy as the right to play on corner lots."

In sports, America has three weapons against totalitarianism, says Mr. Peel—baseball, the hockey stick, and football. "Also," he adds chuckling, "the pop bottle to throw at a bad umpire."

Clear Vacant Lots.

Mr. Peel's committee for the extension of play spaces has coöperated with district and local recreation groups in a campaign to clear rubbish from vacant lots so that they can be used as play spots, especially in neighborhoods where there are no parks and city playgrounds. More than 273 equipped play lots now exist in all parts of the city, but the campaign is not over.

"The defense program," the veteran athlete declares, "is waking us up as a nation to the deep truth that battles are won on the playing fields. O, we're sports conscious, it's true, but we've tended to let our interest focus on the experts, so that we turn out some champions and let the rest of the population become merely spectators."

And that is the wrong approach to sports, he adds. Part of the job, as he sees it, is to break down the "champion complex" that has sprung up in America. The solution is simple. Extend play space and therefore opportunity for everybody to take part in athletics, he says. Thus, America will become a nation of sports participants instead of spectators.

Need More Play Spots.

"It can't be said too often," Mr. Peel continues. "We need more play spaces, more sports, more opportunities for youngsters to gain the great benefits to health and character that athletics bring. Today's children are tomorrow's citizens; tomorrow's defenders of democracy.

"Extended play space—even tho thru simple mediums like neighborhood lots—spells greater opportunity for youngsters to learn Americanism and democracy on their very first testing ground.

"In a world like ours democracy does well to look far ahead. And it's not unlikely that the kids playing this very minute on some corner lot on the west, north, or south sides will one day be needed to fight for democracy."

Mr. Peel was twice president of the United States Football association, organizer and first president of the first state soccer organization in Illinois. He is donor of the challenge cup bearing his name, and a life member of the Peter J. Peel Challenge cup soccer competition, which now is in its 33d year.

This Week in the Garden

Monday, Feb. 17.

Those who have a small greenhouse or hotbed can start seeds of vegetables, such as tomatoes, cabbage, cauliflower, and lettuce. The plants will have made a fine start long before hot weather comes.

City gardeners can use electricity to furnish heat for the hotbed, but suburbanites who can obtain fresh strawy manure may use it, in a fermented state.

Tuesday, Feb. 18.

It will soon be time to transplant or shift house plants. A good average soil consists of one-half garden loam, one-quarter sand, and one-quarter leafmold or rotted manure. Soil can usually be procured from the local plant grower, who will mix it to accommodate the requirements of individual plants.

Wednesday, Feb. 19.

Perennials in the garden may need to be divided; some may not have been satisfactory and should be replaced with others, and empty spots may need planting.

Screen the garage by using annual vines. Hide the telephone post by planting a pyramidal poplar in front of it. Use some of the low tree forms as a screen along the rear fence, but do not overplant on the small area.

Thursday, Feb. 20.

Pruning should be undertaken for some kinds of plants at this season. Many home gardeners prune all plants in spring. Prune to keep the plants in a vigorous condition and in such a manner that they retain their natural form, unless they are planted as a hedge.

Fruit trees should be pruned to keep the heads low and open. Early pruning should be done so the branches are kept growing out from the main trunk. Avoid formation of a crotch. A tree that is once brought into good bearing condition requires little pruning.

Friday, Feb. 21.

Watch for red spiders in house plants. Syringe the plants occasionally; keep humidors on the radiators; dust with sulphur on both the upper and lower sides of the foliage.

Bulbous plants, such as the hyacinth, narcissus, and tulip, should be kept growing until the foliage turns yellow. When this occurs lay the pots on their sides in a cool place and next fall plant in the garden.

Saturday, Feb. 22.

Shade in city gardens is frequently a problem. Here is a list of some plants that should do very well under such conditions: Shrubs: Five leaved aralia, Japanese kerria, privet, Japanese yew. Perennials: Bugle [ajuga reptans], plantain lily, moneywort, Japanese spurge, periwinkle, violas, lily of the valley, ferns. Vines: Hall's honeysuckle, Virginia creeper, Boston ivy, fleece vine, wild grape, and wisteria.

HOW ARCHITECT DESIGNS HOUSE FOR OWN USES

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

We present today an unusually fine example of the modern with a number of very forward looking features. It shows the many possibilities available today for better design and building, and while it is a larger house than we usually discuss in this department its points of beauty and interest are those which may be adroitly incorporated into homes of less size and cost.

It is the residence of Winston Elting, architect, of Lake Forest.

House Overlooks Ravine.

The plan was dictated largely by a peculiar and beautiful site.

On the south side of the house there is a deep ravine running east to Lake Michigan. Service, garage, entries, hall, and gallery face the north. All the principal rooms open to the southeast or the west, and by placing the building on the north property line, maximum space was reserved for gardens and lawns to the south between the house and the ravine.

As the architect says: "The plan was the principal thing and the elevations followed along."

[This is one of the most sensible trends of contemporary architecture.]

An effort was made to keep the house as low as possible to subjugate it to large elms, maples, and birches on the property, and natural brick and redwood was used on the exterior to blend the house with the landscape.

Screen Separates Rooms.

The plan is open and there is generous use of large glass window areas as well as glass block on the north side.

The house has nine rooms, three and one-half baths, two porches and two sun decks. These decks and porches afford close relation to the home interior and the out of doors.

Among the very interesting personal provisions of the plan, and one which is practical and charming in many homes, is the provision of a folding screen between living room and dining space to permit combination or separation of rooms as desired.

Again, the master bedroom is on the first floor, and is reached thru a gallery on the north side of the house. This secures for the bedroom a semi-isolation. Opening from this gallery there is also a combination room: An architect's work space and alternate guest room when occasion demands.

Glass Block on North.

The problem of north light and privacy for the gallery was handled with glass block. This same type of block was used to give light to garage, mud room, stairwell and pantry off garage. There is also glass block used on the north wall of the work room in order to borrow light from the gallery.

On the second floor there are three bedrooms and large bath and two sun decks. The west deck is for the children and the east deck for the parents. Solid railings have been installed to shield these spots from the wind.

The heating of the home is by a new method known as panel heating, which has been installed in the ceilings thruout the house. The system is entirely automatic, oil fired, with water temperature control and circulation provided by electrically controlled mixture of water from the boiler with the pump-recirculated flow thru the system.

MELROSE PARK TO ANNEX G-M PLANT

'PLAY' CLASSES TURN OUT REAL PILOTS FOR U. S.

Oak Park Flyers in Service Now.

BY MILDRED WILDS.

Five years ago the WPA assigned an airplane pilot to the Oak Park playgrounds. Miss Josephine Blackstock, playground director, wondered what they would do with a pilot. The pilot, John Carleton, wondered what he could do at the playgrounds.

They finally decided he would teach boys how to build model planes. Model building took place on the second floor of a building at 604 Harrison street. More big boys than little fellows turned out. It became a ground school with full size engines to tinker with and lecturers sent over by the commercial air lines.

Last week the Oak Park Aviation club, an outgrowth of that early activity, heralded one of its many flyers who have gone beyond the ground school. Lew Weimer, 805 Mapleton avenue, former president and a pioneer member and now in the royal Canadian air force, was back home in Oak Park for a visit. In three months he expects to go to London.

With the Canadians.

Frank Bostleman, Joseph Thompson, and Kenneth Johnson have all joined the Canadian air force. Six young men are in the aviation service of the United States army. Fred Haupt of Oak Park and his pal, Norman Ingle, are at Chanute field, Rantoul, Ill.; Jack Martin of Maywood is at the Panama canal. Robert Hines is in Guatemala and Clifford Rademacher is in Alaska. Warren Palm is in the Hawaiian Islands.

It was also five years ago that Amelia Earhart, on her way to her final flight, stopped in Chicago. She met Miss Blackstock and heard of the aviation school beginning with a ground course. She said she could see no reason why girls should not be as successful as men in any branch of aviation except the handling of heavy machinery.

Today 75 of the members who have soloed include 10 young women. Most spectacular in achievement is Helen Rockwell, Oak Park High school student, who was licensed as a pilot two years ago.

For the last year the instructor has been Richard Dick of Riverside, a pilot from United Air Lines. A few months ago, Robert Lindsay, graduate of Annapolis and Pensacola, took over the instruction job.

Is for Recreation.

The Oak Park Aviation club is for recreation. Its successful members are only byproducts. The year 1940 found the club with a membership of 150 and a calendar of exciting activity. In January there was a snow party, a flight to northern Wisconsin by 25 of its members. Here the group enjoyed sleigh riding, tobogganing, ice skating, and skiing.

Provision was made for the airplanes to land, a runway having been plowed thru four feet of snowdrifts by a big highway snow plow furnished by the state of Wisconsin.

The latter part of March saw the organization of a flying club consisting of members who were more seriously interested in the actual piloting of aircraft. Those who received their solo licenses were Bill Burgess, Jerry Bliss, Peter Stalnaker, Bill Hannigan, Magnus Olen, Dick Dickerson, Harry Kruse, Larry Nelson, Angelo Jannatta, Charles Peterson, Fred Johnson, Charles Alder, Helen Rockwell, Mary McDonnell, Elizabeth Zydorizak, Helma Lindsay, Helen Picchietti, Helen Turner, and Edith Anderson.

Have Private Licenses.

Private pilot's licenses are held by John Musengo, Neil Daniels, Dick Schliep, Charles Peterson, George Mojonnier, Dick Airey, Frank Peterson, and Fred Muntwyler. Robert Lindsay and Gordon Horlick hold commercial pilot ratings.

In May, in conjunction with the Oak Park Kiwanis club, which is an active sponsor of the organization, the club held a minstrel show. Notable cross-country flights undertaken during the course of the year by members of the club were a flight from Lockhaven, Pa., to Chicago by Oliver Mordard and Fred Muntwyler, a tour of the north woods by Neil Daniels and Dick Schliep, a flight over the Grand Canyon by Mr. Dick, and a vacation flight over northern Wisconsin by Dick Airey.

Lew Weimer acted as a ferry pilot for the Chicago Chamber of Commerce Flying club. Robert and Helma Lindsay took part in the light plane cavalcade to Florida. Charles Bostleman, John Jones, Dorothy Morard, and Helen Picchietti flew to southern Indiana and back over a Sunday. Karl Daniels and Dick Schliep spent several days circumnavigating Lake Michigan.

Make 'Chute Jumps.

Recently members started making parachute jumps, some in Wisconsin and others at local airports near Oak Park. The jumps were made only after the men had received a course of instruction from George Waltz, holder of the world's record for jumps made in one day. The parachutists are Karl Daniels, Fred C. Muntwyler, Lew Weimer, Neil Daniels, Charles Muntwyler, Frank Bostleman, Dick Airey, Bud Morard, Charles Peterson, and Frank Peterson.

West Side Mothers Active in Battle to Defeat War Powers Bill

In living rooms, kitchens, and around the family radio these are the scenes today in thousands of American homes. These are the neighbors on the west side who are pledged to defend democracy by defending it inside America. These mothers and their sons are a cross section of the work being done back home to help defeat the dictator lease-lend bill H. R. 1776. Most active are the members of the Austin unit of the Mothers of American Sons whose primary purpose in organizing is to "let their sons work in peace at home, not rest in peace on foreign soil." Off to Washington, D. C., last week went Mrs. John Mauser, 5810 Addison street (left). Helping her pack for the trip is Mrs. Albert C. Beckman, 5701 West Erie street. They are among the 100 women from Chicago who joined delegations from other states in a mothers' crusade to defeat bill 1776. Mrs. Thomas Wetherall, 1216 North Menard avenue, president of the unit, bakes a cake in her kitchen as refreshments for the benefit card party to be held Wednesday evening in Austin Town hall to raise money to pay the expenses of additional delegates. A mother who stays at home, Mrs. Cornelius Bus, 5219 Potomac avenue, passes out handbills which urge peace and democracy in America.

Clustered around the radio listening to commentary about the dictator bill is a family circle that might be broken forever if America is led to war again. Mrs. Anton Karmgard, 1637 North Narragansett avenue, has much at stake in the event of war. Her three draft age sons are Mark, Arvid, and Russell (left to right). After these radio broadcasts mothers rush to use the opportunity that democracy gives them, to write and urge their senators to defeat the dictator bill. Mrs. William Lahey, 1749 North Lotus avenue, writes an appeal while her son, William, reads news of the fight for peace.

[TRIBUNE Photos.]

Most solemn among the club meetings in west side neighborhoods are the meetings of the Mothers of American Sons when bill 1776 is studied. Believing that the greatest threat to American democratic principles is within the boundaries of America, they plan ways to express their opinion by telegram, letter, and thru the Washington crusade. A committee from the membership of 200 are, left to right, Mrs. Beckman, Mrs. Bus, Mrs. Wetherall, Mrs. W. H. Noftsker, Mrs. Mauser, Mrs. Kormgard, and Mrs. Lahey.

Colorful Event Is Set for Saturday.

The ninth annual military ball sponsored by the Du Page county chapter of the Reserve Officers association will be held next Saturday at the Medinah Country club. This event which will climax National Defense week activities in Du Page county, in past years has proved to be one of the most colorful pre-Lenten gatherings of the western suburbs. It is attended not only by officers of the armed forces, but by their friends and by civilians interested in patriotic organizations.

Lieut. L. P. Parsons.

Delegations from other chapters of the Reserve Officers association and from American Legion posts and other ex-service men's groups are expected.

Many Men in Service.

First Lieutenant L. P. Parsons Jr., Glen Ellyn, co-chairman of the ball, said the decision to hold it this year was made with the realization that many reserve officers of Du Page county already are on active duty at military establishments thruout the country. Some of these, he said, are still in the Chicago area or are near enough to return for the ball and are planning to do so.

A reception for guests and for officers of the chapter will be followed by a ceremonial presentation of the colors under command of Lieut. C. A. Framberg of River Forest, with a color guard of officers.

Next comes the grand march, to be led by Lieut. Col. H. P. Hodson and Mrs. Hodson of Villa Park and Chairman Parsons and Miss Dorothy Kern of Wheaton. Col. Hodson is president of the chapter. At midnight a buffet supper will be served.

Also on Committee.

Other committee members, in addition to Lieut. Parsons, are: First Lieutenant George P. Hitchcock of Wheaton, co-chairman, now on active duty at Fort Sheridan; Lieut. Col. O. G. Miller and Capt. I. K. Hendron of Glen Ellyn, Lieut. Col. W. H. Damon, Lieut. Col. H. G. Weaver and Lieut. L. H. Henry of Wheaton; Lieut. Col. S. R. French and Lieut. D. B. Russell of Elmhurst, Lieut. Ernest C. Spyrison of Maywood, and Capt. Claude F. Johnson of Brookfield.

Among Du Page county reserve officers already ordered to active duty are Maj. Howard C. Wade of Hinsdale, serving with the selective service system of Illinois; Maj. Arthur L. Johnson of Downers Grove, at Chanute field, Rantoul, Ill.; Capt. L. P. Warner of La Grange, district ordnance office, Chicago.

SEVERAL west side policemen were given the 1940 Chicago park district police merit award recently by Robert J. Dunham. The second prize of $150 was presented to Frank Clay of the west section for capturing two robbers who held up a haberdashery at 1604 Roosevelt road on Jan. 27. Clay won the March Tribune monthly award for his quick thinking in this holdup. He entered the store and let himself be a perfect target for the robbers while he yelled to them that they were surrounded.

Clay who lives at 5411 Wellington avenue joined the park police on Aug. 17, 1937. In 1939 he received third prize in the park police merit award for another act of bravery.

Thomas Hoban and Martin Helledy from the west section shared the fourth prize of $60 for their diligence in trapping a car traveling at high speed without lights at 4:17 a. m. on June 29. The speeders were discovered to have committed a long series of robberies. Hoban is a south side man and Helledy lives at 719 North Latrobe avenue.

Since he entered De Paul university last fall, John Ouska Jr., 2520 Millard avenue, has been elected president of the freshman commerce students and named a member of the student council. He is a graduate of St. Ignatius High school.

PLAN ADDITION OF 500 ACRES TO VILLAGE AREA

Will Add Millions to Evaluation.

(Map on page 2.)

The village of Melrose Park is expected to be one-third larger by next Monday than it is today. A petition seeking to annex 500 acres of land in Proviso and Leyden townships has been filed by Guy C. Guerine, village attorney, and the hearing is set for Feb. 24 in County court before Judge Edmund K. Jarecki.

Guy C. Guerine.

Six months ago the announcement of the proposed annexation would have caused little more than a ripple of comment. But now the news is that the tract includes the 124 acres acquired by Buick division of General Motors corporation as the site for its 31 million dollar aircraft engine plant. Space for additional national defense works also is available. Ultimately the move is expected to boost the tax valuation of Melrose Park by many millions of dollars.

Second Instance in Year.

The Melrose Park action is the second instance in the last year of a small community on border of Chicago annexing a rich industrial area. Last fall the village of Bedford Park extended its boundaries to include the 24 million dollar Clearing Industrial district.

Ninety per cent of the owners of the tract north and northwest of Melrose Park have signed the petition for annexation. All are absentee owners, for there is no one residing in the entire expanse. The property will be zoned for industry.

Roughly the area involved is bounded by Mannheim road on the west, Armitage avenue and Franklin Park on the north, and 25th avenue and 20th avenue on the east.

The General Motors aircraft engine plant, which will employ 10,000 persons, is expected to bring approximately 30,000 persons to the west area. The Defense Plant corporation, a subsidiary of the Reconstruction Finance corporation, paid $940 an acre for the tract. The defense corporation is to lease the plant to Buick and if the annexation goes thru Melrose Park will be benefited by the tax receipts.

Four Buildings in Plant.

Dale E. Williams of the Buick organization reported that the new plant will consist of four buildings with a total of more than one million square feet. The plant will have a capacity of approximately 500 Pratt & Whitney 1,200 horse power engines each month. Practically every part of the engine will be made here in addition to being assembled and tested.

Mr. Guerine believes that the Buick plant will mean an increase in value on residential and business property in Maywood, Franklin Park, and Bellwood in addition to Melrose Park. A tool and die company is negotiating for a site within the proposed Melrose Park city limits and an automobile accessory concern has also made inquiry about a site. Melrose Park will be benefited by the tax receipts from all these concerns. The Buick division signified its approval of the annexation plan when E. P. Querl of the Chicago Association of Commerce, who is now holding the land title, signed the petition, Stephen Mitchell, the Buick attorney, announced.

"This annexation probably will mean enlarging our fire department and other service departments in the village," Mr. Guerine said. "The village now has two fire trucks and equipment suitable for a population of 25,000.

"The tract is valuable to industrialists because of its excellent switching facilities," he added. "Here the Indiana Harbor Belt railroad joins the Milwaukee and St. Paul, the Chicago and North Western, the Illinois Central, the Burlington, and the Chicago and Great Western."

Points Out Housing Plans.

Mr. Guerine says he believes Melrose Park can answer the need for new housing which the industrialization of the area will create. "There is a tract zoned for homes," he says, "between Division street and North avenue with all improvements in and a new school. There now are only a few homes in these 300 acres. There are four or five other prospective home building sites to the west and to the south of the village not now within any corporate limits.

Melrose Park has a population of 11,000 and a business district at the intersection of Lake street and Broadway. The average value of homes is $4,500 and there are nine churches and six schools. The population is composed mainly of Americans of Italian and German descent.

Melrose Park suffered only one major catastrophe in its history, a tornado which killed 15 persons and caused half a million dollars worth

Voice of the West Side

Readers of the Metropolitan Section are invited to contribute to this column on matters of neighborhood interest. Readers should confine themselves to 200 or 300 words. Full names and addresses must be given. No manuscripts will be returned. Address Voice of the West Side, The Tribune.

MUTINY UNDER A HAT.

I want to answer the stupid letter written by "Hat Hater" in the Metropolitan section last week. Does he think the women want to wear those little mole hills, and flat birds, and rubberized bouquets? It's the men who design those jobs and the men who expect us to walk into a millinery store, sparkle at ourselves in the mirror from beneath an upside down fruit bowl, while the clerk chortles, "Dearie, it does so much for you."

I'm not only against hats, I'm against men. If men weren't so dumb they wouldn't need to go to a lecture on income tax like "Hat Hater" did.

And another thing I want to say to "Hat Hater." If his wife came out with a drab dark Derby he would plod patiently beside her until he saw a blonde with birdies on her hat. Then the "wheeeee" he would let out of him would be even loud enough to make the bird on the hat sit up and sing. MAN HATER.

GROUNDS FOR DEFERMENT.

I wish more men and women would write to you about the terrible hardships this conscription is creating in a land which should be and is considered at peace with the world. I have a cleaning woman who was widowed after her fifth child was born. She scrubs and sweeps every day and in an office on Sunday to keep herself so she is not a burden to her children nor the community. One of her sons, the eldest, is married and has a 4 year old son. They live in the same apartment with the wife's mother. The mother works in a factory and makes $21 a week. The wife works three nights a week in the five and ten. That son was drafted because he was told his mother-in-law and wife could support the child. WOMAN AGAINST WAR.

NEW ELEVATOR IS THE GOAL OF HOSPITAL UNIT

Loretto Women Are to Play Cards Tuesday.

Last spring Loretto hospital auxiliary held a card party to raise money for a new elevator. The motto was "Give Us a Lift." On Tuesday the women and their friends will play cards again in the hospital solarium, 645 South Central avenue, because they didn't get the elevator.

Mrs. John Biemeck.

"Instead, another improvement was made at the hospital that seemed more imperative," explains Mrs. Frank J. Kotalik, president of the auxiliary. In November $1,000 was presented to the Sisters of St. Casimir who operate the hospital, to be used for the complete renovating of the scrub rooms in the surgery and maternity departments. The rooms are now done in cream tile trimmed with black chromium and all scrub sinks have automatic devices.

Help Plan Party.

Mrs. John C. Biemeck is chairman of the Tuesday party assisted by Mrs. Albert Klunder, Mrs. F. J. Novark, Mrs. C. A. Pikas, Mrs. Jewell Polka, and Mrs. Frank Kelly.

Eleven card parties have been held by the women. Last May there was a dance and card party given at the Madison Athletic club which raised the earnings to $1,350. On Jan. 21 there was a card party attended by 300 persons.

Taken Over by Sisters.

Loretto hospital was the Francis Willard hospital before it was taken over by the Sisters of St. Casimir, a Lithuanian order, in January, 1939. It is a general hospital with 150 beds.

Taking a cue from the auxiliary organization, a nurses' club was organized, of which Mrs. Katherine Holberg is president. The nurses earned $300 at their first card party and purchased new lockers for their quarters.

ASSESSOR FINDS LITTLE CHANGE IN VALUE OF REALTY

Figures for 20 Townships Are Complete.

Real estate assessments for 1940 in 20 country townships in the north, northwest and western parts of Cook county decreased less than 1 per cent under the quadrennial assessment of 1939, it was announced last week by John S. Clark, county assessor.

The assessment figure in these areas amounts to $281,379,412. The new assessment is a revision of the 1939 quadrennial total, in which land and building values are established for taxing purposes for four years. Revisions are made each year on all properties which investigation shows to have altered in value.

Less Than in 1939.

The 1940 assessed building value in the 20 townships is $122,706 less than in 1939. Building values have declined in the longer settled townships of Evanston, New Trier, River Forest, Oak Park, and Proviso. Building values are increased in the more recently built up townships.

Following is a table of the building assessments by townships for 1939 and 1940 with comparative increases and decreases shown in $1,000 units only:

GOBLINS, SECRET PANELS SURE TO MAKE 'EM QUAKE

Elmhurst children are looking for information about a land "east of the sun, west of the moon, and somewhere not too far from the coast of Cornwall." This land will be the setting for the second Elmhurst College Children's theater production at 8 o'clock Friday evening, at 10:30 Saturday morning, and 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon in the recital hall of the college. The play is a children's mystery in five scenes by Constance MacKay, adopted from the story, "The Princess and the Goblin," by George MacDonald. The director is Margaret Severin.

The hero of the story is Billy Potvin, cast as Cubert who possesses the magic ring. He will rescue Princess Gwenda, in reality his sister, Mary Jean, from the caverns of the goblins. Francine Appleman is an alternate for the princess rôle.

Both Billy and Mary Jean Potvin are veterans of the previous Children's Theater production, "Five Little Peppers." Three actors borrowed from the Elmhurst college theater will help the young thespians. They are Jost Washburn as King Radnor; Thorwald and Solberg, guards, played by Maynard Strothman and Chesley Birklebach.

Dame Morna will be played by Ruth Brunton and the "woman from beyond the hills" will be Jane Sykora. Betsy Ault will be cast as Nurse Mabina and Rogerta Dickinson as Alcie.

He is Lew Weimer, 805 Mapleton avenue, Oak Park, who left the presidency of the Oak Park Aviation club to enlist with the Canadian forces. In three weeks he expects to sail to England. He visited the club headquarters at 604 Harrison street recently when he was home on furlough.

MELROSE PARK PLANS TO ANNEX G-M PLANT SITE

Action Would Add 500 Acres to Village.

of property damage on March 20, 1930.

It was incorporated as a village in August, 1882, and an order was issued by the Cook County court that an election be held at the chapel on the southeast corner of 19th avenue and 1st street on July 29, 1882. The village used the name of Melrose until the beginning of the next year, when a petition signed by 100 voters was accepted and it became Melrose Park.

Once Was Covington.

Previous to 1882 the settlement was known as Covington. In those days only the fact that Uncle Sam had a postoffice there put it on the map. The first policeman in the village, Tom Boddy, also was a lamplighter. He carried a small ladder and climbed up to light the kerosene lamps every evening.

By 1907 there was a uniformed police force of ten men in the village and a fire department of eleven. Another integral part of the village life was the Harmonie Singing society, whose president was Henry Wachtendorf.

"There are romantic memories of Melrose Park," says Mr. Guerine, "from the days of the lamplighters, the wooden sidewalks, and farm lands. We are in a transition period now between those days of quiet village life and a new era of prosperity, growth, and modernization."

Officials of Village.

Andrew H. Frenzel is the village president and George Bosco is police magistrate . The village clerk is Michael J. Laraia. Trustees are Joseph Darg, chairman of licenses, public lighting and buildings; Carl L. Dehlinger, chairman of finance; William J. Drevs, chairman of fire and water, sewers and drains; Harold E. Larsen, chairman of streets and alleys, highways and transportation; James T. Markett, chairman of police and health, and Frank Marsicano, chairman of sidewalks, parks, and assessments.

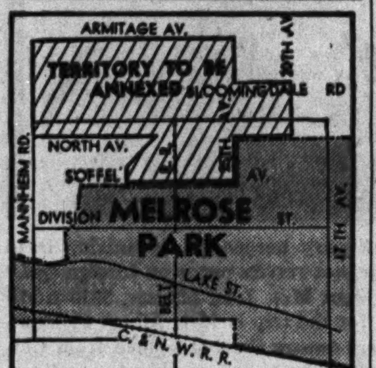
Enters Melrose Park



The diagonally shaded area is to be annexed to Melrose Park. The area includes the new aviation engine plant to be operated by the Buick company.

BIG HOMECOMING IS ON PROGRAM OF ST. PATRICK'S

More than 1,500 parishioners and former members of St. Patrick's church, Des Plaines and Adams streets, are expected to attend the second annual homecoming card party and dance Saturday evening at the La Salle hotel.

Clarence A. Leary, 722 Clinton street, Oak Park, is general chairman of the arrangements committee, and the Rev. Thomas J. Hayes, pastor of the church, is honorary chairman.

Other heads of the homecoming committee include the Rev. Lawrence Kenney, Roy K. Bennish, Frank C. Spanknabell, and Louis J. Owens.

Card Party Thursday.

Our Lady of Sorrows Woman's club will hold its annual card party Thursday evening in the parish hall, 330 South Albany avenue.

ARRANGE PARADE IN CELEBRATION OF NEW VIADUCT

To Mark the Completion of Central Avenue Span.

Chairmen have been appointed for the public celebration being arranged by the west and northwest area councils of the Chicago Motor club to mark the completion on May 14 of the Central avenue viaduct over the tracks of the Milwaukee and St. Paul railroad between North and Grand avenues. They are Clare Bullen of the west side council and Walter Miller of the northwest side.

Preliminary plans announced by the committee include a motorcade of floats which will cover a route of several miles, including all of the principal business districts, north of the viaduct to Irving Park boulevard and between Cicero and Harlem avenues.

Foot Parade Also.

Their route will be from Hayes avenue east in North avenue across Austin boulevard to Central avenue. The combined marching units and floats will swing north across the viaduct and pass before a reviewing stand.

County highway engineers reported at the last meeting of the councils that all details of the viaduct will be complete by May 14. The councils formally opened two lanes of the bridge for traffic in October and early in January the other two lanes were opened.

Protection Is Sought.

A recent report to the West Area council indicated that the city of Chicago is willing to install street car loading platforms on North avenue from Narragansett to Austin boulevard, but the village of Oak Park would prefer some type of pedestrian protection instead of, or in addition to, loading platforms.

Joseph J. Butler, superintendent of streets for the city, said that he was willing to include the platforms in his 1941 construction program. Emile O. Bloche, president of the Chamber of Commerce of Oak Park, reported that his conference with officials of the village indicated they would prefer more pedestrian protection. Mr. Butler, C. A. Walls, commissioner of public works of Oak Park, and Kendrick Harger, district engineer for the state highway department, will have a conference on the problem.

1,518 SMITHS ASK TICKETS FOR W-G-N'S 'WHISPERING SMITH'

More than 1,518 Smiths of Chicago have requested tickets for the première of "Whispering Smith," new W-G-N program which will be heard the first time, Friday, Feb. 28. Last week W-G-N officials issued an invitation for the "Whispering Smith" première to all Smiths of Chicago. They have been responding ever since. Special invitations have been issued to Clayton F. Smith, president of the county board, and other notable Smiths.

Those who responded first will get tickets to the opening show. Others will be accommodated later.

"Whispering Smith," the new program, will be a special radio adaptation of Frank Spearman's novel of the same title. It will relate the adventures of a legendary character who protected the interests of the underdogs in the development of the west by the railroads. An expert marksman, a man feared by all his enemies, Smith received his nickname because whenever danger threatened, he lost his voice and could speak only in a whisper.

Blair Walliser will produce the "Whispering Smith" series, which will be heard every Friday from 7 to 7:30 p. m. [C. S. T.]. Pictures linked with the episodes of the series will be published in the graphic section of the CHICAGO SUNDAY TRIBUNE.

16 WIN APPEALS FOR DEFERMENT OF ARMY DUTY

Three from West Side Denied Delays.

Sixteen of 19 west siders who appealed from their draft classifications won the deferment they sought, according to the records of the eight Cook county draft appeals boards for the week ending last Tuesday.

During the week the eight boards disposed of 90 cases. They granted 21 appeals, denied 17, and dismissed 52 cases upon learning that the local draft boards had reclassified the appellants.

This brought the appeal boards' total score since selective service began to 398 cases disposed of, including 90 appeals granted, 204 denied, and 104 cases dismissed because of the local boards' reclassification.

13 Are Reclassified.

Of the 16 west siders who were victorious during the week that ended Tuesday, only three won their appear outright, the 13 others winning reclassification by their local boards before their cases were reached by the review officials.

Those granted appeals were Lester Hilberer, 3251 Maypole avenue, on grounds of wife dependency; Burgess Gunnell Jr., 205 North Kedzie avenue, also for wife dependency, and Irving Plotkin, 3658 Harrison street, dependency of mother.

The men given reclassification were:

William Soderberg, 7221 Madison street, Forest Park; Casimir Bulat, 2706 West 23d street; Steve Krupsky, 2653 West Cermak road; Charles Barton, 20 North Ashland avenue; Sol Schwartz, 1447 South Spaulding avenue; Martin Michael Kluch, 1146 West 18th street; Charles Louis Matekunas, 329 South Central Park avenue; Charles Edward Pellino, 3406 West Adams street; Frank Bukauskas, 1627 South 49th court, Cicero; Nick Radic, 5629 Roosevelt road, Cicero; Sertirio De Legge, 615 South May street; Anthony Constantine, 3520 Van Buren street, and John Joseph Egan, 24 North Parkside avenue.

Egan won deferment on occupational grounds. He is the operating vice president of a warehouse and trucking company, he told the draft board. The others won reclassification principally because of dependency.

Some Are Denied.

The men whose appeals were denied, and the grounds on which they claimed deferment, were: Marshall Sola, 3930 Jackson boulevard, dependency of parents; Harry Bierma, 1247 South Clarence avenue, Berwyn, dependency of mother, and William Novak, 1936 South Clinton avenue, Berwyn, dependency of mother.

39 FROM WEST SUBURBS TAKEN IN ARMY DRAFT

22 in First February Group Volunteer.

Thirty-nine young men of western Chicagoland were among the 71 in the metropolitan area who were drafted into the army by the Chicago induction station Monday and Tuesday as it began its huge task of catching up with its quotas.

The February draft quota for the state is 5,213 men. Besides these, there is an unfilled balance of 1,701 from the January quota, making 6,914 Illinoisans who should be inducted this month.

More than half this total will come from Cook and other Chicagoland counties. It is expected that 55 per cent will come from Cook county alone. That will mean that more than 3,800 men, or about 300 a day, must be accepted from Cook county in the 13 inducting days that remained in the month last Wednesday morning.

22 Are Volunteers.

Twenty-two of the west side's bloc of 39 newly drafted men were volunteers, who preferred immediate service to waiting until their order numbers were reached. Of the 71 from Chicagoland, 45 were volunteers. Of the 174 draftees from downstate counties accepted for army service by the Chicago station, 47 were colored, all from the Cairo draft board in Alexander county.

Here are the names of the west side selectees, their ages, addresses, and occupations, the letter V, denoting volunteers:

W-G-N TO GIVE R.O.T.C. PARTY ON WASHINGTON DAY

Cadets, Officers to See 'My Maryland.'

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

The second annual Washington's birthday party, to be given in tribute to the R. O. T. C. by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, will be held in W-G-N's main studio next Saturday evening, Feb. 22, in connection with the broadcast of the operetta, "My Maryland" on the Chicago Theater of the Air.

"My Maryland," with Marion Claire as the star, and Walter Cassel, baritone, will be broadcast from 9 to 10 o'clock over the coast to coast network of the Mutual Broadcasting system. The birthday party, however, will start at 7:30 p. m. and will continue for a half hour after the broadcast.

R. O. T. C. cadets and officers, educational and military leaders thruout the Chicagoland area, will be guests at this party with Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE TRIBUNE, as the host.

400 Cadets in Uniform.

Among the 600 studio guests there will be more than 400 R. O. T. C. cadets in uniform. Of these some 200 will be Chicago R. O. T. C. cadets who have received Tribune awards—gold, silver, and bronze medals—for excellence in military training during the last semester. The guests will come from nearly 70 institutions in Chicagoland that have R. O. T. C. units or other courses in military training.

The Chicago cadets will represent the units of 27 public high schools, St. Mel's High school and the Morgan Park Military academy. From Cook county outside of Chicago will come other delegations, representing Evanston Township High school, the Glenwood Manual Training school, and Northwestern university's R. O. T. C. unit.

Military Leaders Invited.

Besides visitors from Gary, Aurora, Waukegan, and Joliet there will be groups from many universities, colleges, and academies thruout Illinois, Wisconsin, Indiana, Michigan, Iowa, and Missouri.

Special guests are to include Brig. Gen. Charles H. Bonesteel, commanding general of the 6th corps area; Col. John T. Rhett, representing the R. O. T. C. in the corps area; James B. McCahey, president Chicago board of education; Maj. Frank L. Beals, assistant superintendent of Chicago schools in charge of military training, who will represent Superintendent of Schools William H. Johnson, and Col. W. F. Morrison, professor of military science and tactics in the public schools. Col. McCormick and these guests are to speak briefly after the broadcast.

Prior to the broadcast visitors from distant points will make a tour of THE TRIBUNE, starting at 6:45 p. m. At 7:30 the visitors will assemble in the main studio to view the sound pictures, "Trees to Tribunes" and the new Tribune sports film, "The All American Way."

Philip Maxwell of The Tribune editorial staff, who has made many of the R. O. T. C. awards, will be in charge of the program after the broadcast. William A. Bacher produces the Theater of the Air. Henry Weber is the musical director.

Voice of Listener

Many thousands of congratulatory letters are pouring in to W-G-N and the Mutual network offices since listeners were invited to express their feelings about the Chicago Theater of the Air operettas which will conclude their present series on Saturday March 1 with the presentation of "Pagliacci" at the Civic Opera house. Overwhelmingly the letters from listeners insist that these productions be continued next fall.

Below are excerpts from letters received last week:

CHICAGO—I am a little girl 9 years old and I am listening to your program each Saturday night. I like it very much and I wish it continued.
LORRAINE MATUSCHEK.

CONEY ISLAND, N. Y.—I live at home with my aged mother and my income is very small, but sometimes that alone is a blessing if only it brings me such fine music and singing from W-G-N and causes me to stay home every Saturday night with a new thrill in store. I bless you and Henry Weber and Marion Claire and every one connected with these presentations and hope very much they will be continued in the autumn and for a long time to come.
IRWIN LANDES.

CHARLESTON, ILL.—I have enjoyed your operetta productions immensely and I am very desirous that they be continued. You are giving the public entertainment which promotes an appreciation of good music.
THOMAS GREGORY.

DAVENPORT, IA.—Thanks for many happy hours. I wonder if you realize what a blessed relief it is to be spared nerve shattering music.
DOROTHY LEWIS.

Further expressions of opinion are invited.

SEES PLAY LOT YOUNGSTERS AS NATION'S HOPE

Boyish Sports Are Part of Defense, Says Peel.

Peter J. Peel.
[Moffett photo.]

So says blue eyed, Irish born Peter J. Peel, 20 West Jackson boulevard, the man who is in charge of the Chicago recreation commission committee to extend play spaces for the city's youngsters. Mr. Peel, for many years a national figure in the sports field and a world's record holder in cricket, believes that athletics should be considered one of the most important factors in the nation's defense.

He goes farther than that. "I think," he says slowly, "you might almost define democracy as the right to play on corner lots."

In sports, America has three weapons against totalitarianism, says Mr. Peel—baseball, the hockey stick, and football. "Also," he adds chuckling, "the pop bottle to throw at a bad umpire."

Clear Vacant Lots.

Mr. Peel's committee for the extension of play spaces has coöperated with district and local recreation groups in a campaign to clear rubbish from vacant lots so that they can be used as play spots, especially in neighborhoods where there are no parks and city playgrounds. More than 273 equipped play lots now exist in all parts of the city, but the campaign is not over.

"The defense program," the veteran athlete declares, "is waking us up as a nation to the deep truth that battles are won on the playing fields. O, we're sports conscious, it's true, but we've tended to let our interest focus on the experts, so that we turn out some champions and let the rest of the population become merely spectators."

And that is the wrong approach to sports, he adds. Part of the job, as he sees it, is to break down the "champion complex" that has sprung up in America. The solution is simple. Extend play space and therefore opportunity for everybody to take part in athletics, he says. Thus, America will become a nation of sports participants instead of spectators.

Need More Play Spots.

"It can't be said too often," Mr. Peel continues. "We need more play spaces, more sports, more opportunities for youngsters to gain the great benefits to health and character that athletics bring. Today's children are tomorrow's citizens; tomorrow's defenders of democracy.

"Extended play space—even tho thru simple mediums like neighborhood lots—spells greater opportunity for youngsters to learn Americanism and democracy on their very first testing ground.

"In a world like ours democracy does well to look far ahead. And it's not unlikely that the kids playing this very minute on some corner lot on the west, north, or south sides will one day be needed to fight for democracy."

Mr. Peel was twice president of the United States Football association, organizer and first president of the first state soccer organization in Illinois. He is donor of the challenge cup bearing his name, and a life member of the Peter J. Peel Challenge cup soccer competition, which now is in its 33d year.

This Week in the Garden

Monday, Feb. 17.

Those who have a small greenhouse or hotbed can start seeds of vegetables, such as tomatoes, cabbage, cauliflower, and lettuce. The plants will have made a fine start long before hot weather comes.

City gardeners can use electricity to furnish heat for the hotbed, but suburbanites who can obtain fresh strawy manure may use it, in a fermented state.

Tuesday, Feb. 18.

It will soon be time to transplant or shift house plants. A good average soil consists of one-half garden loam, one-quarter sand, and one-quarter leafmold or rotted manure. Soil can usually be procured from the local plant grower, who will mix it to accommodate the requirements of individual plants.

Wednesday, Feb. 19.

Perennials in the garden may need to be divided; some may not have been satisfactory and should be replaced with others, and empty spots may need planting.

Screen the garage by using annual vines. Hide the telephone post by planting a pyramidal poplar in front of it. Use some of the low tree forms as a screen along the rear fence, but do not overplant on the small area.

Thursday, Feb. 20.

Pruning should be undertaken for some kinds of plants at this season. Many home gardeners prune all plants in spring. Prune to keep the plants in a vigorous condition and in such a manner that they retain their natural form, unless they are planted as a hedge.

Fruit trees should be pruned to keep the heads low and open. Early pruning should be done so the branches are kept growing out from the main trunk. Avoid formation of a crotch. A tree that is once brought into good bearing condition requires little pruning.

Friday, Feb. 21.

Watch for red spiders in house plants. Syringe the plants occasionally; keep humidors on the radiators; dust with sulphur on both the upper and lower sides of the foliage.

Bulbous plants, such as the hyacinth, narcissus, and tulip, should be kept growing until the foliage turns yellow. When this occurs lay the pots on their sides in a cool place and next fall plant in the garden.

Saturday, Feb. 22.

Shade in city gardens is frequently a problem. Here is a list of some plants that should do very well under such conditions: Shrubs: Five leaved aralia, Japanese kerria, privet, Japanese yew. Perennials: Bugle [ajuga reptans], plantain lily, moneywort, Japanese spurge, periwinkle, violas, lily of the valley, ferns. Vines: Hall's honeysuckle, Virginia creeper, Boston ivy, fleece vine, wild grape, and wisteria.

HOW ARCHITECT DESIGNS HOUSE FOR OWN USES

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

We present today an unusually fine example of the modern with a number of very forward looking features. It shows the many possibilities available today for better design and building, and while it is a larger house than we usually discuss in this department its points of beauty and interest are those which may be adroitly incorporated into homes of less size and cost.

It is the residence of Winston Elting, architect, of Lake Forest.

House Overlooks Ravine.

The plan was dictated largely by a peculiar and beautiful site.

On the south side of the house there is a deep ravine running east to Lake Michigan. Service, garage, entries, hall, and gallery face the north. All the principal rooms open to the southeast or the west, and by placing the building on the north property line, maximum space was reserved for gardens and lawns to the south between the house and the ravine.

As the architect says: "The plan was the principal thing and the elevations followed along."

[This is one of the most sensible trends of contemporary architecture.]

An effort was made to keep the house as low as possible to subjugate it to large elms, maples, and birches on the property, and natural brick and redwood was used on the exterior to blend the house with the landscape.

Screen Separates Rooms.

The plan is open and there is generous use of large glass window areas as well as glass block on the north side.

The house has nine rooms, three and one-half baths, two porches and two sun decks. These decks and porches afford close relation to the home interior and the out of doors.

Among the very interesting personal provisions of the plan, and one which is practical and charming in many homes, is the provision of a folding screen between living room and dining space to permit combination or separation of rooms as desired.

Again, the master bedroom is on the first floor, and is reached thru a gallery on the north side of the house. This secures for the bedroom a semi-isolation. Opening from this gallery there is also a combination room: An architect's work space and alternate guest room when occasion demands.

Glass Block on North.

The problem of north light and privacy for the gallery was handled with glass block. This same type of block was used to give light to garage, mud room, stairwell and pantry off garage. There is also glass block used on the north wall of the work room in order to borrow light from the gallery.

On the second floor there are three bedrooms and large bath and two sun decks. The west deck is for the children and the east deck for the parents. Solid railings have been installed to shield these spots from the wind.

The heating of the home is by a new method known as panel heating, which has been installed in the ceilings thruout the house. The system is entirely automatic, oil fired, with water temperature control and circulation provided by electrically controlled mixture of water from the boiler with the pump-recirculated flow thru the system.
